HUNGARY FACES HITLER RULE

MODIFY CLAIMS AGAINST CZECHS, BUDAPEST TOLD

Magyars Speed Up War Preparations.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Hungary speeded up military measures today by ordering mobilization of agricultural workers to ensure an adequate food supply in any emergency arising from her dispute with Czechoslovakia on minority claims.

The official gazette tomorrow will publish far-reaching decrees supplementing the calling to the colors of five army classes of about 200,000 men, which boosted the number of Hungarians under arms to an estimated half million.

Study Hitler's Views.

Authorities were directed to muster all unemployed farm workers for transfer from farm to farm to ensure continuity of agricultural output. Another decree will hold employers of agricultural workers responsible for payment of adequate sums to safeguard the interests of families of those men called to arms.

Former Premier Koloman Daranyi, who presented Hungary's case against Czechoslovakia before Reichsfuehrer Hitler in Munich yesterday, returned today with Germany's views on settlement of the territorial dispute.

Reports from Munich said Hitler had asked that a similar yardstick be applied on the Czechoslovak-Hungarian border as was used in the Sudetenland—that Czechoslovak territory with more than 50 per cent of Hungarian peoples be ceded to Hungary forthwith and other claims be negotiated.

Rush Youths to Army Camps.

Hungary generally was quiet as the "protective measure." mobilization proceeded. Crowds gathered about bulletin boards in Budapest streets reading the mobilization orders, but there were no demonstrations.

Posters were plastered throughout the city bearing appeals of the wives of Regent Horthy and Premier Imredi to the people to contribute funds for the nation's poor and for refugees from Czechoslovak territory.

Military trucks, wagons, and trains carried thousands of young Hungarians to military training camps. The mobilization of the five classes is scheduled to be completed by 8 p. m. Monday.

Czech Terrorism Reported.

Hungarian newspapers continued to publish accounts of what they described as Czechoslovak terrorism in Hungarian populated districts, saying Hungarian flags were torn down and that the jails were filled with Hungarians who demonstrated for union with Hungary.

Hungary stood ready to negotiate further with Czechoslovakia if her demands are first accepted in principle by the Prague government.

An informed source said the Czechoslovak government in addition would have to give sufficient guarantees that if an agreement were reached, Czechoslovak troops would evacuate the territories involved without resistance.

Hungary looked to Czechoslovakia to make the first move for any resumption of negotiations. A foreign office spokesman said the Komarom conference did not break up Thursday so much because of differences over territories concerned as because Czechoslovak army generals shortly before the last meeting indicated the Czechoslovak army would not yield any territory.

Cites Radio Announcement.

The spokesman cited an announcement over the Bratislava radio station on behalf of the Czechoslovak army stating that Czechoslovak troops under no circumstances would permit Hungary to take possession of the territories she claimed.

The spokesman added that Hungarian negotiators not only regarded such statements as extremely serious but as making further negotitions at that time futile and as necessitating Hungarian mobilization as a precautionary measure.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini told Hungarian representatives who arrived in Munich and Rome yesterday that they felt confident an agreement could be reached, with Germany and Italy aiding Hungary and Czechoslovakia to resume negotiations.

However, Germany and Italy demanded that the city of Bratislava remain with Slovakia, whereas Hungary had demanded its cession to her.

ON THE RECORD
(An Editorial)

The New Deal has come to another accounting to the people. They will say what they think of it on Nov. 8. Here are some of the items which the truly good must submit for consideration:

National debt up 18 billions.

Labor divided, distracted, warring, and half captured by the communist party.

Industry threatened, apprehensive, profitless, and shorn of initiative by constant governmental attack upon the whole structure of private enterprise.

Taxation punitive, revengeful, and destructive.

The money market stagnant.

Transportation one-third in bankruptcy; the other two-thirds headed for it.

The state of the nation sullen, angry, preyed upon by quacks, deceived by false prophets, and embittered by governmental invective.

That's the record the New Deal must submit in the sixth year of its pompous, pretentious stewardship and administration of the trust committed to it in 1932 by the American people.

C.I.O. Rioters Halt Speaking at G.O.P. Rally

Crystal City, Mo., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Nearly 200 organized hecklers, wearing buttons of the Committee for Industrial Organization, provoked a riot at a Republican political meeting here tonight and prevented Congressman Clare E. Hoffman of Michigan from completing an address attacking the C. I. O. and the Roosevelt administration.

Several persons, including women, were slightly injured. Representative Hoffman was caught in an aftermath of the disturbance when some one lunged at him and tore his shirt and collar.

Sponsored by State G. O. P.

The riot occurred in the city hall. About 700 persons were present for the meeting, sponsored by the Republican state committee. Many were from St. Louis, thirty-five miles north. Representative Hoffman, nationally known as a bitter enemy of the Democratic national leadership and the John L. Lewis dominated C. I. O., was billed as the principal speaker.

Several dozen police and deputy sherifs of Jefferson county, the latter commanded by Sherif A. R. McKee, mingled with the crowd as the result of advance information that a demonstration had been planned.

Boos Greet Hoffman.

The demonstration began as soon as Hoffman was introduced. He was greeted with boos and hisses from the C. I. O. buttoned hecklers, none of whom was known to local authorities.

Hoffman ignored the disturbance and started to read his prepared speech. The going was difficult. He frequently was interrupted by shouted questions, by jeers and by catcalls. Undaunted, Hoffman went ahead. He attacked the Roosevelt expenditures, the C. I. O., and the national labor board.

Suddenly one heckler, more violent than the others, stood up and in a screaming voice asked Hoffman: "Did you come here to speak for the Republican party or to attack the C. I. O. and the labor board?" Hoffman, or some one else on the platform, demanded the heckler be ejected.

As deputies advanced toward the man, fighting started. Several men fell under blows. Four women were knocked down and two fainted. Men

BERLIN DEMANDS FORMATION OF PRO-NAZI REGIME

British Money Backs German Expansion.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler, his great victory in central Europe complete, today turned to southeastern Europe. Nazi officials intimated that Hungary, which produces a great part of the wheat and pork Germany needs, would be next to receive the Fuehrer's attention. He already has annexed Austria and part of Czechoslovakia, and has reduced the remainder of the Czech republic to a German puppet.

"A big cabinet reshuffle may be expected in Hungary within a very short time," one Nazi official declared. "Only men who are willing to coöperate with Germany to the fullest extent—the same as the Czechs—will remain in the reorganized Hungarian cabinet."

Demands Premier Resign.

[In Budapest, capital of Hungary, Kalman Hubay, Hungarian Nazi leader, yesterday demanded that Premier Bela Imredi's cabinet resign immediately because, he said, "Imredi is not qualified to lead Hungary at such a serious moment." Hubay predicted that Hungary soon would have another cabinet, including former Premier Koloman Daranyi, who conferred in Munich Friday with Hitler.]

Germany realizes that in the Hungarian question she may have trouble with her friend, Premier Mussolini, but she is confident that Germany's viewpoint will win.

Influential German circles expect that Germany's position in the southeast will be strengthened by British financiers, who have informed their German friends that they are willing to provide the funds Germany lacks for her southeastern expansion.

Fear British Trick.

The Nazis are suspicious of these British offers of help, fearing that the English may be trying to strengthen Germany in southeastern Europe to anger Mussolini and thus weaken the Rome-Berlin axis.

But they have decided to take whatever financial aid they can obtain from England because, they declare, "the Rome-Berlin axis is strong enough to weather the storm," and because they are convinced that if England is seriously engaged financially, she will object to "the propaganda of anti-German elements."

Though peace is the keyword of the moment, the German military high command is losing no time in making the fullest use of the Sudeten population to increase the German army, already the most powerful in Europe. Hitler issued a proclama-

THE CHANGING WORLD

The conqueror of today wins his conquests without a single battle.

In the old days, before the automobile, the ladies used to run to mystery in their gowns, thinking it more alluring. Incidentally, helping the textile industry.

Today the ladies, or at least some of them, run to a maximum of "miss" and a minimum of mystery, causing a marked shrinkage of lure.

In the mid-Victorian days the proprieties were so rigidly enforced that the straight and narrow path became so monotonous that there were frequent detours.

For the last twenty years there has been a steady decline in proprieties, if not in morals, so that the picture and theater fan has lost the power to be shocked.

My Dear! Look at the Duchess in a Straw Hat!

BY MARCIA WINN.

Chicago's experts on foreign affairs learned a lesson from experience yesterday. The experience was with a duchess.

Duchess of Atholl.

The occasion was the first visit to Chicago of the duchess of Atholl, whose husband is the only man in Great Britain authorized to have a private army. As speaker before the Chicago council on foreign relations at the Palmer house, she drew an audience of 1,800—mostly women.

From the beginning, the luncheon was a series of surprises.

Laird Bell, president of the council, had announced a week ago that the duchess was the "whip of the Labor party in the house of lords." He apologized yesterday; she long has been a prominent conservative in the house of commons.

Intent on Munich; Land in Spain.

Her subject yesterday was listed as "Britain and the Crisis," which many members of the council assumed meant the Munich conference and the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia. Instead, the duchess explained, she meant the Spanish war.

Finally, having come to greet a real live duchess, the feminine majority of the audience was arrayed gorgeously in fall attire. Some topped their costumes with rakish doll hats, some with plumes of crimson and green, some with trailing veils, and some with fierce, high turkey feathers.

And so the eyes of many simply popped when the duchess, a simple, eloquent figure in a black and white printed silk dress, appeared with a shiny, black straw on her head.

The women couldn't believe it. "My dear!" said one to her companion, as her grace arose to speak. "Straw! In October?"

Others, fearing their eyesight was treacherous, resolved to "find out later." "It can't be," said one. "It's just the way the light hits her head." But it was a straw!

This was bad enough. The women, their curiosity aroused, craned their heads like hungry birds, but as the duchess talked they became even more restive. "Why," fumed one, "I wanted to hear some gossip about what England thinks of Chamberlain and we're getting—Spain!"

The "very real fear" at this moment, she charged in her rich, resounding voice, is that the four powers who met in Munich may be trying to settle matters over Spain's head. A Fascist victory there, she added, might jeopardize the precarious peace achieved at Munich.

And a woman in a furry toque sighed. "Isn't that typical my dear?" she asked in a sharp whisper. "That hat! Just like the duchess in Alice in Wonderland, you know."

One of Biggest Diamonds Known Is Found in Brazil

RIO DE JANIERO, Brazil, Oct. 15.—A diamond weighing 726.6 carats and claimed to be one of the world's largest is being examined by treasury experts. The stone was found by a placer miner in the state of Minas Geraes. It has been named "Vargas," in honor of President Getulio Vargas. An exporter has purchased the stone and will send it to Amsterdam, The Netherlands, to be cut.

Helen Keller "Sees, Hears" Zoo Wonders

Helen Keller, who can neither see nor hear, spent two hours yesterday at the Chicago Zoölogical park in Brookfield. Her tour of the animals completed she declared she had "seen and heard" so much she was exhausted.

For fifty-six years, since becoming deaf, blind and dumb at the age of 19 months, the life of gallant Helen Keller has been a constant progression from one impossible feat to another. Ordinarily, she "sees and hears" through the hand of a companion, pressed into hers. But yesterday she "saw" for herself.

Holds Snake in Hands.

This is how she did it. Into her sensitive hands, she fearlessly took a small nonpoisonous Indian snake. She took, too, a baby alligator, its actions as rough as its skin; a trumpeter bird, a salmon-crested cockatoo, a baby turtle and Sultan, the wild, sleek baby male gorilla.

Then, accompanied by Miss Mary Bean, nurse at the zoo, she entered the cage of Mei-Mei, the baby giant panda, now growing rough and tumblesome. She felt Mei-Mei's heavy, thick fur, long, sharp claws, and funny pug nose.

"See how she romps!" Miss Keller exclaimed, as Mei-Mei, more playful than ever, lunged forward upon her new found friend to claw at her coat. "This," said Miss Keller to her companion, Miss Polly Thompson, "is the best thing that ever happened to me."

Listens to Lions Roar.

From Mei-Mei, she went to the elephant yard, where Miss Thompson described for her Brookfield's massive herd, and finally, after a long hour in the bird house, to the great hall where the lions, tigers, and leopards are housed. Through vibrations of the wood, she listened to their roars, her face wreathed in smiles.

"And the next best thing?" Miss Keller asked. Reggie, the elephant seal, she was told. "I must pet him," she announced.

"But that," Miss Bean told her, "is impossible. Reggie weighs 3,000 pounds and one doesn't pet him.

MEXICO ELUDES IRE OF U. S. OVER LAND SEIZURES

Lax Policy Pursued by Administration.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—In contrast to its stern warnings to Dictators Adolf Hitler of Germany and Benito Mussolini of Italy not to molest American Jews in those countries, the Roosevelt administration is pursuing a seemingly lackadaisical policy respecting the rights of American citizens in Mexico.

President Roosevelt. [Top.]
President Cardenas. [Bottom.]

Since last March, Secretary of State Cordell Hull has been exchanging notes and memoranda with the communistic government of President Lazaro Cardenas in Mexico and conferring with the Mexican ambassador in Washington. However, there has been no apparent progress toward settlement of the land confiscation question. It is estimated that Mexico has expropriated, without compensation, 40 per cent of a billion dollar American investment in Mexican agrarian and oil properties.

Warning Given Il Duce.

Only last week the state department bluntly warned Premier Mussolini to keep hands off American Jews in Italy, reminding him that Italian citizens in this country had not been molested. There was a diplomatic inference that retaliatory steps might be taken if the Fascist plan to exile Jews to Ethiopia should be extended to American citizens. Previously a similar note to Chancellor Hitler had resulted in assurances that anti-Jewish measures would not affect American citizens.

The Cardenas régime, however, has not been deterred in its confiscation program by the American protests. Apparently unimpressed, either by the gravity of the tone or the force of the logic of Secretary Hull's remonstrances, the Mexican government has replied with a cavalier disdain that is rare in diplomatic correspondence.

There is a certain humor in the situation arising from Mexico's protestations and Secretary Hull's concessions that the lands are being confiscated to carry forward a program for the social betterment of the masses, like President Roosevelt's New Deal.

Encouragement Suspected.

Irrespective of any private assurances that may have been received from the government in Washington, the Mexicans must have been encouraged by unofficial reminders from persons of high standing with the administration that President Roosevelt and President Cardenas are collaborators in a common cause. When Vincente Lombardo Toledano, the John L. Lewis of Mexico and the power behind the proletarian revolution in that country, spoke in Washington last June, he did so at the invitation of a group including half a dozen officials of the Roosevelt administration.

When John L. Lewis, dictator of the C. I. O., addressed the international labor congress in Mexico City last month, in a bull ring surrounded by red flags and communist party members giving the clenched fist salute, he said:

"In North America, two great statesmen have appeared to extend a hand to labor—Roosevelt and Cardenas. . . . What has taken place in Mexico and the United States must take place in the rest of the countries of Latin America."

Labor Board Member Present.

And when President Cardenas expounded his confiscation program, attacking the doctrin that any nation may protect the foreign investments of its citizens, Edwin S. Smith, a member of President Roosevelt's national labor relations board, was sitting on the platform back of him.

Addressing the same international labor congress, Smith praised Mexico as the only other country besides his own which had been enlightened enough to recognize the rights of all workers. Historically speaking, he said, "employers as a class always resisted bitterly any efforts of their employés to unite in efforts to improve their industrial status." Then he proceeded to denounce "reactionary capitalism," including the press, in the United States, saying it had sought to arouse public sentiment against labor unions.

There are no official estimates concerning the value of the American properties seized by the Mexican government since the confiscation of the oil lands last March. Since then the Cardenas régime has confiscated many large and small agrarian tracts.

Negotiate on Small Farms.

The oil properties are unofficially valued at from $125,000,000 to $175,000,000, while the department of commerce in 1936 fixed the direct investment in such properties at $69,000,000. Agrarian expropriations, including 161 moderate sized tracts seized prior to Aug. 30, 1927, have a considerably higher value.

In the negotiations to date, however, Secretary Hull has concerned himself only with a group of properties seized since 1927, chiefly farms of a moderate size, with a value fixed by their owners at $10,132,388. The figure does not include the large agrarian properties expropriated this year, nor the oil properties.

In a note handed to the Mexican embassador last July 21, Secretary Hull acknowledged Mexico's explanation that it is endeavoring to carry forward a program of social betterment for the masses, but respectfully submitted that this purpose, however laudable, was not the issue.

"The taking of property without compensation is not expropriation, it is confiscation," Hull said. Then he proposed that the whole question be submitted to arbitration, under the treaty signed in Washington in 1929, to which Mexico was a party.

Mexico Refuses to Arbitrate.

Mexico flatly refused to submit the question to arbitration, denying that there was any principle of international law calling for such a procedure.

The Mexican government proposed continued negotiations between representatives of each country.

Secretary Hull wrote another note proposing that Mexico first put up some cash as evidence of its good faith and then give assurances that there would be no further expropriations pending the negotiations.

He agreed to the plan of direct negotiations between representatives of the two countries provided that a third, disinterested party be called in on such points as could not be mutually agreed upon.

Mexico offered to accept this proposal if the secretary would waive the requirement of a cash token payment and the matter of a promise not to confiscate any more lands during the negotiations.

Since then there have been many private conferences and the Mexican ambassador has gone home to report on the status of the negotiations.

SOUTH DAKOTANS QUIT SOCIALISTIC IDEAS FOR G. O. P.

Learn Lessons from State Business Losses.

BY LLOYD WENDT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mitchell, S. D., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Twenty years ago the people of South Dakota tried out what later became one of the chief policies of the New Deal, that of putting the government in business. The state's losses are still mounting and are expected to total nearly 100 million dollars.

It is this record of disaster that injects a fiery issue into South Dakota's congressional campaign. The people here know what they are talking about. There is convincing evidence that South Dakota next month will send Republicans to Washington to do their part in ending socialistic experiments on a national scale.

Debt Saddled Upon State.

It is difficult to realize the tremendous burden of debt government in business has set upon this state. The losses, when they are fully paid, will total more than $138 for every man, woman, and child in South Dakota—$552 for a family of four. Such a per capita loss in Illinois would total more than a billion dollars.

The South Dakota losses, if extended on a per capita basis to the nation, would total about 18½ billion dollars, just the amount the Roosevelt administration is estimated to have spent on relief and pump priming.

In 1932, after nearly two decades of semi-state socialism, South Dakota was near bankruptcy. Taxes were so high that millions of acres of farm land were foreclosed for nonpayment. Farming and business were stifled.

Never Again, They Swear.

It won't happen again in South Dakota. In 1936 the people wrote a provision into the state constitution limiting any further debt after present obligations are paid. This, they believe, is the most effective way to curb socialistic planners.

But South Dakota is expected to go further. Responsible people here feel certain that the state will elect a Republican ticket committed to ending wild New Deal spending in Washington. The state went a long way in that direction last spring, when, in the Democratic primaries, it whipped New Deal followers and nominated conservative Democrats. The Republicans in the present campaign are determined that this movement shall be carried to what they deem its proper conclusion with a straight G. O. P. victory.

Losses Near 100 Million.

There were six major socialistic experiments in South Dakota, most of them launched in 1917-'18. The projects, together with the expected losses, when they are finally liquidated, are:

Projects—	Losses.
Rural credits [farm loans]	$60,000,000
State guaranty of bank deposits	35,000,000
Hail insurance	263,000
Bonding department	25,000
*State cement plant	300,000
State coal mine	211,587
Total	$95,799,587

These experiments developed from the Nonpartisan league crusade which came down from North Dakota during and immediately after the world war. In the main, they were supposed to provide the more abundant life by making easy money available to the farmer and by protecting him from some of the natural losses that often accompany farming.

Debt Limit Raised.

At the time the experiments were launched, South Dakota had a constitutional provision against incurring debt beyond $100,000. This was thrown out to enable the state to enter business on a big scale. Now South Dakota has the heaviest per capita debt in the nation. At the same time Nebraska, a farm state next door, remains free of debt.

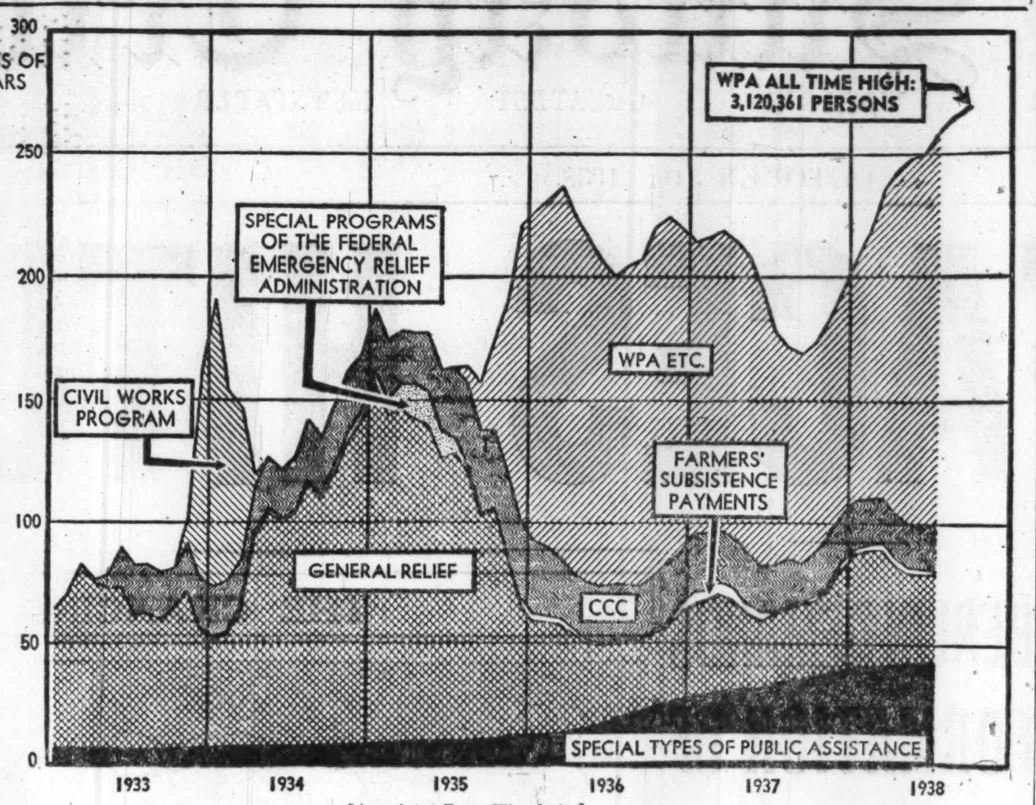
The South Dakota farmer wanted certain benefits from state socialism. What he actually got was a tax burden so great that in 1932 B. W. Baer, the tax director, announced that 1,036,000 acres of farm land were stricken from the tax rolls through tax deed and mortgage foreclosure proceedings. A short time later it was estimated that between 5,500,000 and 7,350,000 acres had been offered for sale for delinquent taxes; this out of a total 36,806,024 acres assessed for taxes.

Dip Into Fuel Taxes.

To keep the state in business, the legislators took half of the money from the motor fuel tax fund, tapped the soldier's compensation and various other sinking funds, and in 1928 added a levy of $1,000,000 annually to pay toward rural credits losses.

Before state socialism South Dakota was paying 4½ per cent on money borrowed. After, the rate rose to 6½ per cent.

Five Years' Mountainous Relief Expenditures



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

This graph, given out by the federal social security board, tells the story of all public relief in the continental United States from January, 1933, to July, 1938—transient care and administrative expense excluded. The amount of Civil Works administration expenditures represents earnings of persons previously receiving relief, estimated arbitrarily by the Works Progress administration as 50 per cent of the total obligations incurred from earnings from federal funds under the Civil Works program.

WPA at Record High

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Work relief enrollment reached an all-time high Oct. 1 when 3,120,361 persons were employed by the WPA. This is more than 100 per cent increase over October, 1937, when the WPA had an enrollment of 1,448,000. President Roosevelt has ordered a big reduction in work relief so present funds will last until the end of next February.

Recipients of public relief got $258,748,000 from federal, state, and local funds in July. This was an increase of 1.2 per cent over June payment and the fourth successive month in which the cost of relief exceeded the highest previous month—March, 1936, when the figure was $237,208,000.

WPA employés numbered 2,964,000 in July, the highest figure since February, 1936, when the enrollment was 2,899,000. WPA enrollment declined slowly from the 1936 peak to 1,407,000 workers in September, 1937, the smallest number employed since the winter of 1935.

SEES WOODRING'S JERSEY TALK O. K. HAGUE MACHINE

Newark, N. J., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Republican Representative Fred A. Hartley telegraphed Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring today that the latter's scheduled speech in Jersey City Monday night would be tantamount to giving White House approval to "the reactionary record of the New Jersey Democratic machine."

Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, state Democratic leader, announced yesterday that Woodring would speak at a Hudson county rally for William H. J. Ely, Democratic nominee for United States senator, who is opposing Republican W. Warren Barbour. The announcement said Woodring's address was expected to place the New Deal "squarely behind" Ely's candidacy.

"It must be clear to you that if you come into Jersey City on Monday night you place upon Mr. Ely and Mr. Hague the indorsement of the Democratic national administration," Hartley wired Woodring.

DEFLATE TIRES OF ROAD HOGS, HITLER ORDERS

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—(AP)—A new order today said trafic police may deflate the tires of "road hogs" and reckless drivers right at the spot where they are caught.

Authorities explained the need of severe measures by the fact that despite more stringent control the annual average of 8,000 persons killed and 175,000 injured on Germany's highways remains almost stationary.

The tire deflation order will operate in cases where drivers pass on the wrong side of the road, fail to slow down when approaching main roads, or turn corners at excessive speeds. Offenders also may be fined or have their licenses taken away for a period of one week to three months.

High Court Rejects Attack on Principals' Examination

School board officials were notified yesterday that the Illinois Supreme court on Friday refused to consider the appeal of Raymond M. Cook, a teacher at the Hyde Park High school. Cook sought to reverse a ruling of the Appellate court that he was not entitled to be certified as having passed the 1937 principals' examination.

Town's Last Surviving Civil War Vet Is Killed by Auto

Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—Pittsfield's only surviving civil war veteran, Edwin Hale Lincoln, 90 years old, was killed tonight when struck by an automobile. Lincoln was a former senior vice commander of the national encampment of the G. A. R. and was widely known as a photographer of wild flowers.

1,000 Members at Walther League Convention Banquet

More than a thousand members of the Walther league of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod attended the fourteenth annual convention banquet of the northern Illinois district of the league last night in the Stevens hotel. The principal speaker was the Rev. Paul E. Kretzmann of Concordia Theological seminary, St. Louis, Mo.

Boo Congressman; Then Fighting Starts.

and women shouted, screamed and ran. For five minutes the hall echoed to the sounds of a free for all. Police finally quelled the physical disturbers, but the shouting continued.

Finally William Fuetterer, chairman of the meeting, shouted that "at the risk of political suicide," he would request Congressman Hoffman not to try to continue his speech. The congressman nodded.

The demonstration ceased and the meeting continued with several local candidates speaking. No one was ejected and no one was arrested. There were reports that several of the C. I. O. men displayed guns, but Sherif McKee denied this.

As Hoffman walked out of the hall an unidentified man seized him, tearing his shirt and collar. No other violence was attempted. The congressman was driven to St. Louis, where he boarded a train for Chicago.

Demonstration Is Planned.

Hoffman was bitter over the riot. It was the first time, he said, he had been driven from a public platform. He said there was no doubt that the demonstration was planned, but that he had taken the attitude "this was a free country" and he surely would be able to speak. The view of officials here was that the demonstrators were outsiders, most of them probably from St. Louis.

In his unfinished address Congressman Hoffman charged Lewis and the C. I. O. with fostering communistic policies, and charged the President, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, and Govs. Frank Murphy of Michigan and George H. Earle of Pennsylvania with giving aid and comfort to that same C. I. O.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—President Roosevelt tonight temporarily shelved the duties of state and went to the theater for the third time in more than five years. He went to the National theater on Pennsylvania avenue, near the White House.

EX-NEW DEALER SEES DISASTER IN ROOSEVELT RULE

Warns U.S. Policies Must Not Continue.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—A Democratic leader in congress who was a New Deal enthusiast in the early years of the Roosevelt administration uttered his political valedictory today with a warning that another four years of Rooseveltian policies will destroy democracy.

Representative Samuel B. Pettengill.

Representative Samuel B. Pettengill of Indiana voiced his alarm at the leftward trend of President Roosevelt as he was winding up his affairs in the capital preparatory to a resumption of his law practice back home. Although certain of renomination and reëlection if he wanted it, Pettengill is surrendering his seat after eight years in the house, feeling that he no longer can make the financial sacrifice involved in public service. He reluctantly served the last two years at the insistence of his friends.

Original Roosevelt Supporter.

During his four terms Pettengill became known as one of the distinguished representatives on the Democratic side. Like Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, who also expressed alarm this week at administration trends, he hailed President Roosevelt's advent with joy and was a devoted follower of the President in his early moves.

Like Wheeler and many another Democratic liberal, however, Pettengill was appalled at Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to dominate the Supreme court by packing it with rubber stamp justices. The government dictatorship bill completed the alienation.

If the President seeks and wins a third term or is successful in installing in the White House an executive who will follow his policies, the Democratic form of government in the United States will not survive to the end of another term, Pettengill asserted.

Praises President's Early Works.

"I was as strong as horseradish for the New Deal during its earlier years," he said. "Reform was long overdue in 1933. President Roosevelt did a great job in urging necessary legislation with reference to banking, sale of securities, regulation of utilities, and stock exchange practices, collective bargaining, reciprocal trade agreements, guarantee of bank deposits, and so forth.

"What concerns me, however, is the continued drift to the left, in other words, toward state Socialism, which if continued will wind up with Fascism and the loss of all civil rights.

"The next thing that concerns me is that there seems to be no end in charging our prosperity 'on the cuff.' Can our children pay their debts and ours besides?

"Some day this bill must be paid or repudiated. Who will pay it? There are not enough wealthy men to pay it, and the very poor cannot. The middle class—the frugal, thrifty, hard working American—will be called upon."

Star's Husband Shot

RUTH ETTING.

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Ruth Etting's husband of two months, Myrl Alderman, was shot in the abdomen tonight at the blonde singer's Hollywood Hills home. Martin Snyder, Miss Etting's former husband, was held on charges of attempted murder and suspicion of kidnaping. Alderman's condition is not critical. Miss Etting married Alderman secretly at Tijuana, Mexico.

Miss Etting was quoted as saying Snyder forced Alderman, 30 years old, a radio music arranger, to drive him from a broadcasting station to her home.

Alderman said Snyder warned him, "This is going to be the end of you," and fired twice with a pistol. Snyder was held on suspicion of kidnaping and attempted murder.

Miss Etting said she ran to her bedroom for a pistol and that Snyder followed and grappled with her. Edith Snyder, Miss Etting's stepdaughter, came to her aid, and as Snyder fled through a back door, Miss Snyder fired once at her father, the singer was quoted as saying.

Snyder told officers he merely sought to discuss disposition of Beverly Hills property which had not been settled when Miss Etting obtained a divorce in Chicago.

Halloween Prankster Shot; Building Manager Held

Edward Everett, 9 years old, started his Halloween pranking too early last night. He rang the doorbells in the building at 1701 West 56th street. That brought out the manager, Carmello De Pasquella. De Pasquella fired a blank cartridge, inflicting a powder burn on the boy's left arm. Police arrested De Pasquella and took Edward, who lives at 5647 South Ashland avenue, to the Southtown hospital for first aid.

PAINTER FALLS; DIES OF INJURIES.

Arvid Taylor, 50 years old, of Woodstock, died yesterday of injuries suffered when he fell fifteen feet while painting a neighbor's home on Oct. 6.

ILL WIND BLOWS DEMOCRATS LUCK IN NEW ENGLAND

Thousands Are Added to WPA by Hurricane.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The Democratic machine in New England privately regards the recent hurricane as the answer to a political prayer. In the wake of the disaster about 100,000 persons were put on the WPA pay roll for rehabilitation work.

These new recruits went on the WPA without certification that they were on relief or in want. They are expected to stand and deliver for the Democrats in the Nov. 8 election.

Principal benefactor of the hurricane is James Michael Curley, Boston's political boss, who is running for governor on the Democratic ticket. Curley also is capitalizing on future disasters. He is going about the Bay state promising the voters he will get 120 million dollars from the federal government for flood control in the Connecticut, Merrimac, and Blackstone river valleys if elected.

Industry Against Roosevelt.

Disaffection with the Roosevelt administration is especially strong in textile and shoe centers of the state. Both industries are on the ropes. Employers and workers alike are grumbling over the policies emanating from Washington. The small shopkeepers along Boston's narrow winding streets are joining the anti-Roosevelt forces, they tell the visitor.

The attempt to pack the Supreme court, the government reorganization [dictatorship] bill, and the appointment of Justice Hugo [Ku Klux] Black, which was especially distasteful to the Boston Irish, are among the reasons for the swing toward Republicanism.

Then, too, the Yankee does not see eye to eye with the piling up of the mountainous national debt. It does not agree with his native sense of thrift as exemplified by Calvin Coolidge, revered as Massachusetts governor and later President.

Indorsed by President's Son.

Curley was an original Roosevelt supporter and has been publicly indorsed by the President's son, Jimmy, and by National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley.

Until the hurricane blew in, Curley was having tough sledding on two scores. One was his own sordid political record as mayor of Boston and governor. The other is a Republican upswing resulting from growing disgust with the Roosevelt administration.

These still are the major factors in the Republican attack. Supporters of Leverett Saltonstall, former speaker of the state house of representatives and the G. O. P. gubernatorial nominee, are confident they will outweigh the eleventh hour federal spending when the reckoning comes at the polls.

Race Is Clear Cut.

In past elections Curley won because his opposition was split. The current contest, however, is a clear cut race between Curley and Saltonstall.

In 1936, the year of the Roosevelt landslide, Curley was beaten by 136,000 votes for senator by young Henry Cabot Lodge. The margin might not have been as wide if Thomas C. O'Brien, a former district attorney, had not been running on the Father Coughlin ticket. O'Brien collected 100,000 votes.

Beauty Leader Weds

The former Prunella Stack, who became the bride of Lord David Douglas-Hamilton yesterday.

GLASGOW, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Police resorted to football match regulations today to control a crowd of 20,000 which milled about Glasgow's cathedral as Prunella Stack, blonde leader of the Women's League of Health and Beauty, and Lord David Douglas-Hamilton were married.

Several persons fainted in the throng outside.

The bride, who is 23, stages mass demonstrations of setting-up exercises throughout the country in the government's "national fitness" campaign, launched last year.

The bridegroom is 26 years old and is the fourth son of the thirteenth duke of Hamilton, premier peer of Scotland.

The bride, customarily seen in public in abbreviated shorts, wore a gown of parchment velvet with a five yard train.

Today it was the bridegroom whose bare knees were exposed. He wore full highland dress of the royal Stuart tartan.

SLAYING CALLED JUSTIFIABLE.

A coroner's jury held yesterday that the killing of Burdette Hancock, 752 Gordon terrace, was justifiable homicide. Hancock was shot by Edward A. Carey early Thursday while he was prowling in a basement at 1254 Bryn Mawr avenue.

ICKES IS UPSET BY MOUNTAINS OR SOMETHING

Affront to Dignity Seen in His Publicity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes popped into San Francisco today in a pique. He was five days ahead of schedule and had passed up a speaking engagement at Boulder dam.

When he ducked out of sight yesterday a report spread that he had been taken to a hospital and sponsors of his west coast speaking tour and members of his office staf in Washington became alarmed. Then he popped back in public view here today long enough to say he was not ill, at least not ill enough to see a physician. He said the high altitude of Reno, where he attended a reclamation meeting this week, made him dizzy.

Ickes' reason for not going to Boulder dam also was the high altitude. Boulder dam is 2,400 feet above sea level, while Reno is nearly 4,500 feet high, but there are high mountains all around.

Billed as $2.20 Attraction.

An employé in Ickes' Washington office was quoted as having said the cause of his pique was being billed as a $2.20 attraction in the Hollywood shrine next Wednesday night.

Posters displayed about Hollywood streets advertise:

The Hollywood anti-Nazi league, sponsors of the speech, "The Crisis of Democracy" advertised it as "the most important address Ickes ever has given."

Might Affront His Dignity.

So far as could be learned tonight Ickes has not canceled the Hollywood speech, but the unidentified Washington subordinate said he might because of what might be considered an affront to his dignity—"a cabinet officer at $2.20."

Ickes' arrival here today was a complete reversal of his schedule. He was supposed to speak in Riverside tomorrow; Brawley and El Centro Monday; San Diego Tuesday, then Hollywood Wednesday, and finally arrive here Thursday.

His Washington staf had not learned whether he would abandon the speaking trip and awaited a reply to their telegrams.

NAZIS FREE AMERICAN DOCTOR.

VIENNA, Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—Dr. Oscar Levine, an American citizen, who was arrested recently on charges of violating the foreign exchange law, was released today on bond furnished by two sisters who arrived from the United States.

NEW ZEALAND LABOR PARTY WINS AT POLLS; TO RULE 3 MORE YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct. 15.—The New Zealand Labor party, which won a landslide victory at the polls today, will rule the country for another 3 years. The Labor party took 55 seats in the house of representatives against 25 for the nationalists, capturing seven seats from the moderates.

The Laborites suffered heavy casualties in the country districts, losing practically all farming seats which carried them into power in 1935. They face opposition which represents virtually 100 per cent of all important export industries.

Prime Minister M. J. Savage said in a speech that the voters' verdict was recognition that the Socialists had laid the foundation of a prosperous social order.

The result means the government's next step will be the establishment of a national chain of daily newspapers, under a threat made by the premier yesterday. He complained against the way the campaign was covered by the New Zealand press.

Germany Asks Brazil to Recall Envoy to Berlin

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—The government has requested Brazil to recall its ambassador to Berlin, it was announced today. It was disclosed officially that the reason for the government's request was that it had received notification from the Brazilian government that the return to Rio de Janeiro of Dr. Karl Ritter, German ambassador to Brazil, was not desired.

LITHUANIA TO PUT DICTATOR POWER IN CIVILIAN HANDS

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Parliament today approved in principle two state security bills which would end twelve years of martial law. Under the bills the home affairs minister and the Lithuanian governor of Memel would possess almost the same powers which military commanders have had up to now.

These powers include the right to control or confiscate printed material, forbid meetings and demonstrations deemed to be against the security of the state, and send persons who menace state security from the district to another or to a labor camp. The only opposition was voted by three Memel German members of parliament.

Martial law has been in effect in Lithuania since 1926, when the Nationalist party came to power following a coup d'état. The law has been used since to bolster its semi-dictatorial régime.

IRON BARS KEEP GEORGE AND HIS 8 WALLETS SAFE

George Mannal, 70 years old, was weaving about last night at Chestnut and Clark streets. Policeman William Dyra and Raymond Snow took him to the Chicago avenue station—just for protection.

And Mannal, who lives at 117 West Erie street, needed it. He was carrying eight wallets, each stuffed with currency, totaling $1,041. He said he had saved the money from his salary as a watchman. He was charged with disorderly conduct and the police put the money in a safe place for him.

CONGRESS HOPES OF G. O. P. CENTER IN SIX DISTRICTS

Concentrate Upon Shaky Illinois Democrats.

Mathematics has turned the eyes of Republicans this year to six Illinois congressional districts. They are the districts that went Democratic by such small margins in the Roosevelt landslide of 1936 that the G. O. P. leaders believe there is a good chance to capture them in this off year.

Local Republicans also say there is a likelihood they will regain other districts lost in the last four biennial elections, including, perhaps, three in Cook county.

Disregarding the two seats held by congressmen at large, the Illinois delegation consists of nineteen Democrats and six Republicans. Changes in six districts would make it almost a tie—thirteen Democrats and twelve Republicans.

Galesburg District at Top.

The six districts most counted on follow:

Fifteenth or Galesburg district—Went Democratic in 1936 by 1.05 per cent, 1,172 out of 110,846 votes. Republican from 1901 until 1932, except for 1912 [Bull Moose split]. Congressman Lewis L. Boyer is opposed by R. B. Chiperfield.

Twenty-first or Springfield district—Went Democratic in 1936 by 3.45 per cent and in 1934 by 2.6 per cent. Democratic eleven times and Republican seven since 1101. Opposing Congressman Frank W. Fries is Frank M. Raney.

Twenty-fourth or Harrisburg district—Went Democratic by 3.35 per cent in 1936 and 3.3 per cent in 1934. In 1930 Democratic by 29 votes out of 88,504. Republican for twenty-six years prior to that. Congressman Claude V. Parsons' opponent is R. R. Randolph.

Rock Island a Battle Ground.

Fourteenth or Rock Island district—Democratic by 8.85 per cent in 1936, by 6.8 per cent in 1934, and by 7.7 per cent in 1932. Republican thirteen times and Democratic five since 1901. Congressman Chester Thompson is opposed by Anton J. Johnson.

Eighteenth or Danville district—Democratic by 7.5 per cent in 1936, by 4.5 in 1934. Represented by Joseph G. Cannon for sixteen years and, except for 1912, never went Democratic until 1932. Congressman James A. Meeks' opponent is Miss Jessie Sumner.

Twenty-fifth or Cairo district—Democratic by 7.75 per cent in 1136. Solidly Republican from 1901 until 1930, but Democratic last four elections. Opposing Congressman Kent E. Keller is R. S. Crisenberry.

Before the depression started in 1929 the party division of district seats in Illinois was exactly the reverse of what it is now.

One Cough and Three City Bureaus Have Work to Do

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Catherine Hopkins, 65 years old, coughed late yesterday and her teeth fell into a Brooklyn sewer. She notified the police, who notified the fire department, which sent back word to the police that there was no fire and turned the recovery back to the police. Five cops grappled in vain and then carried the search over to the bureau of highway and sewers, which put a squad of experts on the job. The experts found the teeth at the bottom of a manhole. They were returned to Mrs. Hopkins with the department's compliments.

PREDICTS NEXT U. S. SENATE WILL BE INDEPENDENT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] predicted today that the senate in the next session will be more independent than at any time in the last five or six years because of the results of President Roosevelt's primary drive against anti-New Deal Democrats.

Wheeler forecast trouble next session for Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.], saying "he will lead the 100 per cent New Dealers, but he won't lead the others."

"Many voted for New Deal propositions because they were afraid the President might come into their states and purge them," said Wheeler. "The purge failure demonstrated that he can't do this."

PROPOSE MOVING OF EL PASO AREA INTO NEW MEXICO

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—A movement has been started here to separate El Paso and a slice of its adjacent territory from Texas and annex them to New Mexico. Edgar D. Park, who heads the proposed secession movement, is seeking legal advice on how it could be done.

The territory involved has an east and west length of about 150 miles and an average depth of about fifty miles, with the Rio Grande as its southern boundary.

For many years the charge has been made by residents of El Paso that this city and its tributary territory in Texas have been ignored by the legislature and the people generally of the remainder of the state.

It is pointed out that Austin, the capital, is more than 600 miles from here; that in its resources, industries, and physical aspects the El Paso territory is different from that of the other parts of Texas.

AFTER 28 YEARS POLLY IS PAGE 1 NEWS—OR IS SHE?

Brielle, N. J., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The big news in Brielle today is that Polly laid an egg in her gilded cage in the Bissett home. Members of the family say it is the first egg Polly has laid during her twenty-eight years in the household.

The town's skeptics hastened to consult reference books; a few raised their eyebrows over the alleged isolated spinsterhood of Polly. Lacking a naturalist the town reserved decision tonight as to whether Polly should or should not have laid the egg.

"Isn't it wonderful!" exclaimed Miss Eva Bissett, who found the egg.

"Tut, tut," squawked Polly.

PERKINS APPEAL FOR LABOR PEACE BRINGS NO ACTION

Neither A. F. of L. Nor C. I. O. Accept Mediation.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration's first concrete proposal for ending labor's 3 year old civil war failed today to produce any immediate signs of acceptance by either the American Federation of Labor or John L. Lewis' C. I. O.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins advanced the proposal in an address before a seventieth anniversary celebration at Columbus, O., of the Order of Railway Conductors. She suggested that the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. each select five representatives, that these representatives in turn choose three disinterested persons, and that the committee of thirteen thus formed proceed to mediate the controversy.

Bind Their Organizations.

If representatives of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. could not agree on "three disinterested persons" to join them in a mediation effort, Mme. Perkins continued, some trusted "outside" person could be asked to select them. The labor representatives should be empowered, she said, to bind their organizations to any agreement reached.

These were suggestions from outside sources that President Roosevelt might, in case of deadlock, pick the three disinterested mediators.

Distrusts Madam Perkins.

New York, N. Y., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's association, said he would have had more faith in the A. F. of L.-C. I. O. peace plan if it had been voiced by somebody other than Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

DEMOCRATS GET WORRIED ABOUT BILL POSTING BAN

Committee Meets Today; May Act on Issue.

The Democratic city central committee will meet today and may consider the storm that has arisen as a result of the refusal of Otto Krueger, business agent of the bill posters' union, to post a Republican campaign sign which is worded in language that displeases him.

The ostensible reason for the meeting is to select a successor to Municipal Judge Michael G. Kasper, who died on Friday. He was a candidate for reëlection, and the Democrats must move fast in order to have his successor's name printed on the ballot for the Nov. 8 election.

Signs in Illegal Places.

Mounting protests against the discrimination of the bill posters' boss in their favor was said last night to have worried several of the Democratic leaders. It was regarded possible that the meeting today might produce a resolution calling upon Democratic candidates to refrain from posting their personal campaign signs in illegal places.

Candidates of both parties have violated the city ordinances against attaching their posters to utility poles, fences, and buildings. Many new instances of these violations were disclosed yesterday.

At the same time the Republicans still were suffering from Krueger's discrimination against them, although they were trying to overcome a portion of this by placing the prohibited poster in private homes and stores.

Doesn't Want to "Offend."

The placard reads "Smash Nash-Kelly Boss Rule—Vote Republican." Krueger refused to post this sign, telling George A. Curran, chairman of the Republican county candidates, that he did not want to offend the Democratic administration.

Violations of the posting ordinance were found in clusters yesterday. For example, a telephone pole at Western avenue and Logan boulevard supported cards advertising Judge Samuel Heller [R.] for reëlection to the Municipal bench, Philip Mitchell [R.] for the board of tax appeals, Victor A. Kula [D.] for the Municipal court, County Clerk Michael J. Flynn [D.] for reëlection, Louie E. Lewis [D.] for state treasurer, and Sherif John Toman [D.] for county treasurer.

Signs on Vacant Store.

On a vacant store front at 2430 N. Western avenue there were signs for Kula, Lewis, Mitchell, Judge Eugene G. Holland [D.] for reëlection to the Municipal court, Scott W. Lucas [D.] for United States senator, Peter Fosco [D.] for county commissioner, Heller, Toman, Flynn, and John J. Touhy [D.] for sanitary trustee.

Funeral services for Judge Kasper will be held at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday in St. Margaret church, 9837 Throop street.

SPENDS HIS WPA CASH TO BUY WINE FOR 2 BOYS; HELD

A WPA worker who brought two boys to his home and made them intoxicated on wine was arrested yesterday. He is Jack Doyle, 2827 Orchard street.

Doyle, according to Juvenile Officer George Bidderman of the Sheffield avenue police, who arrested him, spent part of his WPA check for five quarts of wine. Then he persuaded two boys, Claude Lind, 12 years old, 2829 Orchard street, and Robert Zeman, 14, of 808 Barry avenue, to drink it with him.

Lind was found ill in his home and Zeman was found lying in an alley near his home. At Doyle's apartment police discovered him drunk, laughing over his trick. He was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

PUT PEACE PROPOSAL UP TO N. Y. TUGBOAT STRIKERS FOR VOTE

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—An understanding which conferees said would release 75 per cent of the tonnage tied up by the tugboat workers' strike which threatened to halt all trafic in the nation's busiest harbor was reached tonight by union officials and a group of towboat operators.

The agreement, reached after the union reduced its wage demands to an increase of $5 a month, will be submitted tomorrow night to the members of the United Marine division, local 333, of the International Longshoremen's association [A. F. L.], which called out 2,000 men.

Pending the membership vote, the union continued the strike, which delayed docking of several transatlantic liners today and forced others to pull away at sailing time without the customary aid of tugs.

TWO 'BABY RACE' WINNERS REPAY CITY FOR RELIEF

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—R. J. R. Russell, counsel for Mrs. John Nagle and Mrs. Arthur Timleck, two of the four winners of $100,000 each in Toronto's $500,000 "baby race," said today "a satisfactory adjustment has been reached" in regard to repayment by his clients for relief and hospitalization received from the city during poorer days.

Russell refused to divulge the settlement figures. He said "some adjustment" of the claims made by the city had to be made prior to repayment by the winning mothers.

"These women never had any other thought than repayment to the city for aid received, but they were entitled to certain adjustments. That has now been done," Russell said.

Welfare department figures showed the Nagles received $5,964 from the city for direct relief and hospitalization. The Timlecks received $2,313.

L. V. L. INDORSES 75 CANDIDATES FOR ASSEMBLY

Report Denies Approval to 32 Incumbents.

Seventy-five candidates for the state legislature, including forty-eight incumbents, were recommended or indorsed yesterday in the report on candidates of the nonpartisan Legislative Voters' league. The report denied indorsement to thirty-two members of the legislature who are candidates for reëlection.

The report is issued by the league preceding each legislative election and is based on an examination of qualifications and references and the voting record of sitting members.

League recommendations on candidates in Cook county districts and in the 8th, 14th, and 41st nearby districts are published in the Metropolitan sections of today's SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Following are the reports for other northern Illinois districts where there are contests:

IOWA FARMERS LAY CORN WOES TO DEMOCRATS

Come Swinging Back Into Republican Ranks.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 15.—[Special.] —In Iowa, where the tall corn grows, are evidences of a trend among the farmers away from the agricultural panaceas of President Roosevelt and Secretary Henry A. Wallace, who hails from this town.

Guy M. Gillette [top]. L. J. Dickinson [bottom].

Expansion of the corn belt into the deep south as an obligato to cotton and tobacco control is a leading cause of a swing by farmers back to the Republican party. Low prices for farm products—corn is down to 28 cents on the farm—have a twin reason for the defection.

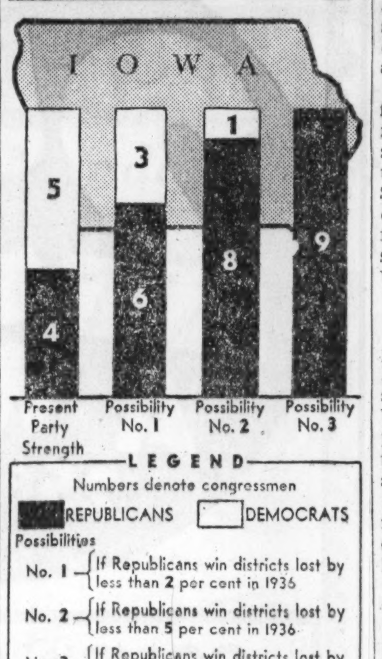
Indications are the Republicans have a good chance to elect their state ticket and to gain two or three congressmen or more. Iowa now has five Democratic and four Republican representatives in congress.

Contest Warming Up.

The senatorship battle is now hitting its stride. Senator Guy M. Gillette, who was marked for the first victim of the White House purge and in the June primaries won as the first survivor of the purge, has for his Republican opponent L. J. Dickinson, former senator, for years a leader of the farm bloc at Washington. Up to a week ago it was rather a languid campaign, folks were more interested in the news from Europe and in the world series than in politics. But, now the battle is going full blast.

The Iowa farmer is being depicted by the Republicans as having been sold down the river by the cotton and tobacco control schemes of the prophets of ordained scarcity. Growth of corn production in the south is being widely discussed and farmers are showing a growing worry that this means dislocation of Iowa's basic industry of corn and hogs.

Iowa Possibilities



Three possibilities in Iowa congressional races this fall. The Republicans can increase their representation in congress by winning districts lost in 1936 by small percentages.

A house to house canvass of Ringgold county in southwest Iowa, a typical rural county, made by the Republicans a few days ago shows a 5 per cent increase in Republican strength. It is a Republican county. On candidates for governor, George A. Wilson, Republican, had more votes in the poll than when he ran two years ago, while Gov. Nels G. Kraschel had fewer votes.

Win by Narrow Margins.

At Shenandoah, in a four day straw vote taken largely among farmers during a jubilee celebration of a radio station, the returns were a reversal of a similar poll two years ago. In the straw vote Wilson led Kraschel and Dickinson led Gillette. Republican headquarters, basing their estimates on these and similar polls, figure that at present there is a 5 per cent swing of farmers back toward the party, with indications that it is increasing.

To the slide rule experts, a 5 per cent growth for the Republicans on the farms means a lot. Two years ago, although President Roosevelt carried the state by 133,779, Gov. Kraschel won by only a margin of 2,431 over Wilson, again his opponent. And two Democratic congressmen squeaked by in that year by pluralities of less than 2 per cent of the vote, and a third one by about 4 per cent.

Signs of the disillusionment of the farmers in Iowa, where a decade and more ago the corn belt movement started for farm relief, particularly the McNary-Haugen bill, are such that Secretary Wallace is heading in the direction of his home state. Word from Washington is that he will speak in Des Moines Monday and in Waterloo the following day.

Corn Belt Moves South.

Published reports are that his appeal is to be not only to the regular Democrats but to Republicans who supported the New Deal. News of Wallace's impending visit was accompanied with a handout in Washington declaring Iowa farm income made substantial gains in August. For the first eight months of 1938, it said, farm income in Iowa was 23 million dollars above that of the same period last year.

The moving of the corn belt into the south, however, by growing corn on land taken out of cotton and tobacco has now become livest of the agricultural issues out here, where corn is king.

Last month a decorated automobile occupied by a group of Alabama Legionnaires started the trip to the Los Angeles convention carrying a banner proclaiming "Alabama, the state of corn and cotton." About the same time the Chicago Drovers Journal announced the arrival of three carloads of corn-fed hogs from the deep south, said to be the first to reach the Chicago market in its history.

Boastful newspapers of the south have been circulated in the state. An editorial in the Tuscaloosa [Alabama] News is being reprinted and placed before the farmers. Its heading was "A Bad Day for Iowa," and it has caused a political stir.

This editorial, which has the corn and hog and cattle raisers by the ears, said Alabama this year will have an enormous corn crop.

On top of this a report from the department of commerce showed that corn imports had increased from 347,627 bushels in 1932 to a total of 86,337,000 in 1937.

NEW NAZI DECREE BANS PRACTICE OF LAW BY JEWS

Deadline Nov. 30; Austrian War Vets Excepted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—The ax of Nazi Germany today fell on Jewish lawyers, with a decree forbidding them to practice after Nov. 30. Jewish barristers in Austria were told that their licenses would be withdrawn by Dec. 31.

Since the decree of Aug. 4, forbidding Jewish physicians to practice, Jewish lawyers have been waiting for the blow which would end their careers in Germany.

The decree published today is similar to the one which threw thousands of physicians out of work, except that Jewish war veterans in Austria may be granted extensions. Their German colleagues will be banned from the profession without exception.

Some May Advise Jewish Firms.

A number of Jewish lawyers will be permitted to act as advisers for Jews and Jewish firms in Austria. Their fees will be collected by the department of justice, which will give them a portion of the fees for their support.

The remainder, the decree stated, will be used to support needy Jewish lawyers in Austria who are war veterans and who "have otherwise shown themselves worthy of support."

Jewish landowners no longer can claim tax rebates, even if the profits of their land go to Aryans, according to a decree of the minister of finance.

Vienna Synagogue Damaged.

VIENNA, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Schiffschul synagogue, attended by Orthodox Jews, was damaged tonight by a mob of rioters who smashed its windows. The rioters then marched on to other synagogues for further demonstrations.

Jews reported a rabbi was mishandled by the mob.

Gangs of youths have paraded through the extensive Jewish quarter for several nights smashing synagogue windows and the fronts of Jewish owned stores.

'A Benes to Speak

Vojta Benes, brother of former president of Czechoslovakia, and Vera Hilgert, 6023 Cermak road, Cicero.

Deserted by France and Great Brittain and dismembered by Germany, Czechoslovakia must now strive for a peaceful and democratic life in coöperation with the Nazis. This opinion was expressed yesterday by Vojta Benes, general inspector of Czech public schools and brother of Eduard Benes, former president of Czechoslovakia, as he arrived in Chicago.

Votja Benes came to the United States on Sept. 14 to participate in the Czech-American celebration of the founding of the Czech republic twenty years ago this month.

He will speak next Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the International amphitheater. William E. Dodd, former United States ambassador to Germany and outspoken foe of Naziism, also will speak.

LADY ASTOR SAYS SHE IS NEITHER A FASCIST NOR NAZI

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—Viscountess Astor said in a speech last night:

"I have been very much maligned by sections of the press as leader of the Cliveden set which believes in Fascism, Naziism and every other ism. There is not a word of truth in that communistic fable. I am a complete and whole hearted democrat."

The so-called "Cliveden set" was named after the Astor country estate near London. There, it has been alleged, pro-German policies have been discussed by guests of Viscount and Lady Astor.

Czechs Study Future Policy.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Determination of the future foreign policy of dismembered Czechoslovakia today awaited full study of a report by Foreign Minister Frantisek Chvalkovsky on his conference at Munich yesterday with Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

As soon as Chvalkovsky returned Premier Jan Syrovy called a night session of the cabinet to hear his report of Hitler's attitude regarding the Hungarian negotiations and Czechoslovak-German economic coöperation.

A delegation of four ministers will go to Berlin early next week to resume discussions with Germany. Members of the delegation will be Vladislav Feierabend, minister of agriculture; Joseph Kalfus, finance; Imrich Karvas, commerce and industry; and Dr. Hugo Vavrecka, minister without portfolio.

The resignations of Dr. Vladimir Fajnor, minister of justice, and Dr. M. Parkane, minister without portfolio, were accepted. They were said to have left the cabinet "for reasons of health."

Push Revision of Constitution.

An official commission pushed work on revision of the constitution to meet new governmental conditions and on plans for election of a successor to Dr. Eduard Benes, who resigned the presidency to "facilitate" the country's rehabilitation.

The work of constitutional reform proceeded with indications that the new government set-up would be similar to that of the Swiss federation.

Bohemia was to take what was left of Moravia and Silesia after the German and Polish settlements to form an autonomous unit on equal footing with Slovakia and Ruthenia.

Each autonomous state would have legislatures which would send representatives to a national assembly. It was expected the Prague, or central, government would be made up only of the ministers of finance, foreign affairs, defense and a president whose duties would include those of prime minister.

Bluebirds are heading south, and the turkeys are coming into the barnyard on the Tribune's DuPage county farm—sure signs of approaching cold weather, according to Bob Becker's article in the want ad section of today's Chicago Sunday Tribune. BARUCH FAVORS SPECIAL TAX TO BUILD DEFENSES

Urges Billions as Price to Be Paid for Peace.

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Bernard M. Baruch, in an interview today in which he amplified his views on building America's defensive forces, advocated a special tax to meet the cost of increased armaments.

The tall, white haired financier who, as chairman of the war industries board, was in charge of mobilizing the nation's industry in the world war, said the levy "should be heavy enough to meet the cost of preparedness, whatever the cost may be."

"We should not pile the burden of paying for these armaments onto the shoulders of coming generations," Baruch contended. "We should pay the bill ourselves. Congress, I believe, should enact whatever form of levy it thinks best to pay for the new expenditures.

Would Use Relief Labor.

"I am not prepared, nor is it my business, to say how all of this money shall be raised. All of it may not have to be raised by taxation, but certainly we must provide for interest and amortization of the cost.

"Some of the expense possibly can be met by transferring expenditures from PWA and WPA to the defense program. This would give great numbers of people employment instead of relief.

"The cost of building up our national defenses will be high—undoubtedly several billions of dollars before it is through—but it is a price we must pay if we are going to make the voice of America a voice of authority in world affairs. The aggressive nations of the world pay heed to only one thing—force and might."

Restrained on Nazi Tirades.

Referring to the statements in the German press that he was mixed up in a "Jewish plot" to influence President Roosevelt, Baruch said:

"I am not going to engage in name calling or personalities. I have only one interest—that of America. As for what the Nazis may say about me, I can only point to the record.

"At the Versailles peace conference, where I was economic adviser to the American delegation and chairman of its economic section, I fought consistently for better terms for defeated Germany. England and France showed a complete lack of wisdom in trampling Germany underfoot then, and in failing, later, to ameliorate the uneconomic terms of the peace imposed at Versailles."

Double Air Strength Sought.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Military circles heard tonight that the war department is considering asking congress to authorize a future strength of 4,000 or more planes for the army air corps—nearly double the present goal of 2,320 first line warcraft.

This development came shortly after President Roosevelt had announced that the country's defense needs were being resurveyed in the light of world conditions.

Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the air corps, disclosed that it intended to concentrate more on speed and factors other than size, in future construction.

Press Attacks Continue.

BERLIN, Oct. 15. — (AP) — German press attacks continued today against Bernard Baruch because of his assertion in Washington Thursday that Germany's threat to the United States was through South America.

A. D. N. B. [official German news agency] dispatch from New York, quoting Baruch as warning that the United States would have to take immediate steps "to prevent Hitler from occupying part of South America," was headed:

"American Jew Baruch Climbs Peak of Ridiculousness with Grotesque Armament Agitation — Loud Laughter Assured Him in All Germany."

The Nachtausgabe headed its three column article: "Inflammatory Lies as Basis for Tremendous Rearmament in the U. S. A.—Jew Baruch's Mental Cobwebs."

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

WHEAT OF PHARAOH

By CALEB

"MANY OF OUR failures of performance," said a Chicago psychiatrist, recently, "are not due to lack of purpose or to inability. We have the intent for greater things than we accomplish—and we have the capacity. What we do not have (and therein is our downfall) is commitment. We do not boldly announce our intent, both to ourselves and to the world.

"We keep a purpose secret, and secret it remains. By proclaiming it, we set up the necessity to act on it. We must then perform, if only to 'save face.' Indolence is sidetracked; the bridges of timidity are burned behind us. Half the secret of success is first to expose your aim.

"You say you want to write a book. I believe you can. But now you must will it—not merely want. Emphasize your intent; talk it to your friends; publish it as your goal. Throw away the secrecy of wishing. Building the road to that goal—your book is written!"

The doctor reached into an upper drawer; scattered on the desktop a handful of wheat. "Grains like these were uncovered in Egyptian tombs, where they had lain dormant for centuries. The moment they were put into twentieth-century soil—they grew. That is what you and I must do with our purposes—take them out of hiding; tell our affirmations to those around us. Instantly, a hundred influences are set in motion that will speed their fulfillment.

"Napoleon was a past-master in thus bringing things to pass by proclaiming them. 'I will take Italy!' he cries to his generals. And he takes it, Alps and all. 'I will beat the Austrians!'—and Austerlitz is the answer. The fact that Fate defeated him in the end was simply because his designs were not worthy of attainment." . . .

"Make no little plans," once wrote the organizer of that world-famed achievement in city expansion—the Burnham Plan. But suppose he, himself, had kept the project of "Chicago Beautiful" hidden in his own mind, a glorious desire unpublished to the world—entombed like Pharaoh's wheat?

Look into your own mind—today—now. Is there secreted there a purpose, an ambition, a goal, worthy of your ability and not impossible to your capacity? Then commit yourself! Publish it to your friends, announce it, and you will have gone two-thirds of the way to its realization. For, as David Seabury has well stated the whole conclusion: "Nothing happens to the best of imagery until it is exposed to life."

ADVANCING JAPS CUT OFF CANTON FROM HANGKONG

Bombs Blow Out Highway and Rail Bridges.

HONGKONG, Oct. 15.—(AP)—All communications between this British crown colony and Canton were interrupted tonight, as Japanese forces broadened their onslaught on the South China coast.

Railway and highway bridges have been destroyed at several points by aerial bombardments. The air raids shielded Japanese expeditionary forces surging toward Canton and across its links with the coast.

Booms have been placed in the Pearl [Canton] river to guard the city of Canton from direct naval assault. A Japanese landing on the west shore of the river delta cut a highway connection between Canton and Portuguese Macao, opposite Hongkong at the river mouth.

Drive Toward Railway.

The Japanese were reported to have struck on the west delta shore—apparently the second major landing operation of the week—under cover of an intense aerial bombardment. The highway was cut before provincial defenses in that sector could be organized.

A Japanese column, part of the model army of 40,000 which landed Wednesday at Bias bay, was thrusting westward from the captured and ruined village of Tamshui. One report placed this spearhead twelve miles from the Canton-Kowloon railway.

Battle 25 Miles from Hongkong.

This railway was vital to Canton, being its land link with Hongkong. The Japanese column was reported shoving its way through numerically greater, but still largely disorganized Kwangtung and Kwangsi provincial troops. This part of the invasion was taking place within twenty-five miles of the Hongkong frontier.

The Japanese consul general in Hongkong was notified by the Tokio foreign office that severe combat was expected within a radius of 125 miles of Canton. Fighting was predicted also within a 60 mile radius of Swatow, Kwangtung province port about 225 miles east of Canton.

Representatives of foreign powers were requested to notify their nationals that to travel in these war zones was unsafe, and that Japan could not guarantee their protection.

Japs Seize Waichow.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 15.—The Japanese today reported capture of Waichow, a town north of Bias bay in the zone of hostilities in South China. Waichow was in the path of a separate offensive either directly on Canton, 80 air miles westward, or against the Canton-Hankow railway and other connections with the interior to the north of Canton.

Chinese would not admit that Waichow had fallen.

There were reports of a mysterious air raid on the Japanese fleet in Bias bay, leading to speculation on whether Russian made planes were operating from some interior base.

In Hongkong harbor, base of the British China squadron, there was a United States submarine flotilla with two destroyers which had come from Manila, P. I. A French cruiser also was present. There were four British cruisers, six destroyers, and two mine laying submarines just arrived from Singapore.

Hollywood, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—A blue eyed veteran character actor has been chosen by film studio executives to play Charlie Chan in the detective films. He is Sidney Toler and he will succeed in the rôle played by Warner Oland, who died recently.

10,400 ITALIANS QUIT INSURGENT SPAIN FOR HOME

Warships Escort Troops Recalled by Duce.

CADIZ, Spain, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Four ship loads of Italian troops—10,400 legionnaires who fought with the Spanish insurgents—departed tonight for Italy convoyed by three Italian cruisers and eight destroyers.

They formed the major part of troop withdrawals ordered by Premier Mussolini. Unofficial estimates have indicated 12,000 men who have fought in Spain for eighteen months will be withdrawn.

Fight on Three Fronts.

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier] — Oct. 15.—(AP)—Dispatches from Spain reported fighting today on three major fronts in what may be a preliminary to another large scale campaign.

The Ebro river front in North Eastern Spain was the only one on which anything approaching intense battle was under way. Neither side registered appreciable gains.

On the Tagus river front in Central Spain, and on the Estremadura front in the southwest, the opposing armies were searching for enemy weak spots.

"Bomb" Madrid with Bread.

MADRID, Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—Eighteen rebel airplanes, weaving through a barrage of anti-aircraft fire, dropped 14,500 loaves of bread on Madrid today. The bread was attached to miniature parachutes which filled the skies over the city during the "siege."

SEEKS A DIVORCE; LEFT ALONE ON HER HONEYMOON

It was their wedding night. Even so, Arthur Edelson, 31 years old, conducted himself in a scandalous manner with a certain Mme. X. When his bride, Rae, objected to such goings on, he made insulting comparisons between the two women.

And that wasn't all, she said yesterday in her suit for divorce. Arthur was absent from his bride during most of their honeymoon, appearing only at meal times, she charged. Since their marriage, June 12, he has knocked her down several times, Mrs. Edelson adds.

Her attorney, Morris Goldstein, requested an injunction to keep the husband from disposing of his one-third ownership in an automobile supply company at 707 East 63d street. Mrs. Edelson wants separate maintenance.

Robber Tricked Out of $15 of His Loot by Hotel Clerk

The elevator bandit visited two north side hotels early yesterday. At the De Witt hotel, 244 East Pearson street, he was outsmarted by B. F. McCullough, the clerk, who saved $15 in the cash drawer by telling him it was empty.

"Well, get into the elevator for a long ride," the bandit ordered, and then fled.

At the Stoneleigh Court apartments, 1250 North Stone street, he took $12 from the cash box and ordered Frank Hughes, the clerk, into the elevator.

INQUIRY OPENED IN CRASH FATAL TO THREE GIRLS

Five Are Injured in Lake County Collision.

An investigation was begun yesterday into an automobile-truck collision Friday night in which three young women were killed and five other persons were injured. The accident occurred at Sheridan road and 13th street in Winthrop Harbor, Lake county.

Those killed were Miss Rose Mary Hotavis, 18 years old; Miss Ilene Huetton, 17, and Miss Inex Vanniccla, 18. The injured are Miss Gloria Greenwald, 16 years old; Miss Harriet Wutzen, 18; Mrs. Alice Whitbeck, 18; Edward Kuczyc, 22, and Clarence Jensen. truck. The other seven, all of whom were riding in one car, were returning to their homes in Kenosha, Wis., after a skating party in Waukegan when the crash occurred on a curve in Sheridan road.

Wants Curve Eliminated.

In a telegram to Gov. Horner, State Representative Nick Keller [R., 8th] renewed his demand that the curve be eliminated by straightening the road. An inquest into the accident was continued indefinitly by Coroner John L. Taylor to await recovery of the injured.

R. C. Tucker, 45 years old, of the Central Plaza hotel, 321 North Central avenue, was killed last evening when his automobile crashed into a tree at Elkhorn, Wis. Mrs. Edith Rushing of Beloit, Wis., who was in the car with him was injured slightly.

George Rossette, 46 years old, 1205 North Spaulding avenue, died yesterday in the Hines Memorial hospital. He was injured Wednesday when he was struck by an automobile at 2650 Division street. Albert Perlman, 2644 Le Moyne avenue, was the driver.

Hit and Run Victim.

An unidentified man, about 40 years old, dressed in working clothes, was killed early today by a hit and run automobile in Jackson boulevard at Campbell avenue. The car was east bound. Witnesses said it was being driven in the west bound lane when it struck the man. A card in his pocket bore the name Michael Mulroe, 2524 Jackson boulevard.

George Loderer, 69 years old, died in the Evangelical hospital of injuries suffered Monday when he was struck by an automobile at Ashland avenue and 66th street. He lived at 6545 South Hermitage avenue.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 639 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 496 were killed within Chicago. In the same period 15,583 were injured in trafic accidents in the city.

Lost 12 Hours

DONNIE MURPHY.

Shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday a dark haired little boy walked into the Austin police station, 5327 Chicago avenue, causing Desk Sergeant George Fitzgibbons to lean over his high desk to get a good look at him.

"What can we do for you, my little man?" asked the sergeant, thinking the youngster was accompanied. The little man just grinned and said his name was Donnie. But that's all he would or could say. It soon became apparent the boy was lost. He appeared to be 3 years old.

Police held him until about 9 p. m. without hearing word of any lost child, so took him to St. Vincent's orphanage. Shortly before 3 o'clock this morning William Murphy, 4743 Lake street, a WPA worker, appeared at the orphanage and claimed the child as his son. His name is Donald and he's 3, he said. He disappeared while playing in the back yard yesterday.

SHUT JERUSALEM GATES AS BRITISH FIGHT TERRORISM

Murder, Arson, Bombings Ravish Holy Land.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 15.—(AP)—All gates of the old city of Jerusalem except that leading to Jaffa were closed today as British troops, armed with machine guns, patroled the streets in military trucks to prevent further terrorism. Murder, arson, and sabotage were reported from various parts of the country as communication lines, wrecked by Arab rebel bands, were restored.

Many persons were arrested in Jerusalem as police combed the city for suspects after a bomb was thrown at the Damascus gate. The bomb failed to explode.

Jews worshiping at the Wailing Wall were forced to leave. The old city fell prey to wild rumors as Arab, Jewish, and Christian stores closed following intermittent shooting.

Isolated 19 Hours.

Palestine was cut off from the outside world for 19 hours. Telephone and telegraph facilities were restored after an interruption lasting from 7 p. m. last night [11 a. m. Chicago time] until 2 p. m. [6 a. m. Chicago time] today. Virtually every wire in the country had been torn down.

Repair squads worked throughout the day to replace poles, slashed wires, and broken insulators.

Reënforcements Arrive.

The 3d battalion of the Coldstream guards and the 1st battalion of Northumberland fusiliers arrived in Haifa from Egypt and reënforcements were dispatched immediately to centers of disorders. The reënforcements brought the total security forces in the Holy Land to approximately 20,000 men.

Among the deaths reported during the day was that of Mustafa Darwish, an Arab police inspector, who was shot by an unidentified assailant outside Jaffa central police station.

ITALY ANSWERS U. S. PROTEST ON ANTI-JEWISH LAW

ROME, Oct. 15.—(AP)—United States Ambassador William Phillips today saw Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister. Ciano was believed to have replied to a note asking whether American Jews were to be exempted from anti-Semitic regulations laid down by the Fascist grand council. The American note pointed out that Italians in the United States were not discriminated against for race or religion and inquired whether American Jews would receive the same consideration in Italy.

HAMMER CRACKS ON SKULLS, AND 2 BANDITS FOLD UP

James DiGiovanni got into his vegetable truck at dawn yesterday. As he was backing into the alley behind his home at 1608 South 60th court, Cicero, three masked robbers met him. Two carried pistols and he obeyed a command to get out.

But as James approached the trio his father, John, who is 47 years old, joined the group. "Help, pop," yelled James, "it's a stickup!" John went into action. He seized a crating hammer and swung it. The swing connected with a robber's head and the robber went down. Another swing and a second was felled. No. 3 kept his discretion and pistol and fled.

The unconscious bandits were taken by the Cicero police to the Bridewell hospital. One, Chester Tadeo, 34 years old, 3544 Monroe street, seemed to have a skull fracture. The second, Carl Scardiono, 37, of 1535 51st avenue, Cicero, had severe scalp wounds. After the excitement subsided the DiGiovannis went down and bought their truckload of vegetables.

AIRPORT TRACKS CALLED PERIL TO WINTER FLYING

Tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad which separate the south and north halves of Chicago's airport are a hazard for winter flying. This was the warning yesterday of David L. Behncke, president of the Air Line Pilots' association, at a meeting of the group in the Congress hotel.

The tracks which are on the line of 59th street cut off the runways, Behncke said, and make it difficult for large planes to land or take off under hazardous conditions.

A proposed ordinance for airport expansion by relocating the tracks north of 55th street has been delayed several months by a dispute between the city and the railroad. Mayor Kelly has ordered work on the measure speeded.

TORTURE CHARGE IN ARSON CASE AT SPRINGFIELD

Coultas' Methods Will Be Issue in Trial.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The methods used by State Fire Marshal Sherman V. Coultas to obtain confessions in arson cases will be aired in Circuit court here in the trial of William Rath which begins Monday. Rath already has been tried twice on charges of setting fire to buildings he owned here. The first time the case was thrown out of court by the trial judge. The second trial ended in a jury disagreement.

Sherman V. Coultas.

Rath charges Coultas with brutality and this charge will be strengthened, according to Rath's attorney, A. M. Fitzgerald, by the recent fiasco in Chicago in which the fire marshal and a group of amateur sleuths extracted confessions from two innocent men. The firemen in the Chicago case, which involved the fatal fire in the Center hotel on West Madison street, said that fire was not incendiary. Still the marshal and his assistants arrested and forced the two men to confess.

Former Window Washer.

Rath, a former window washer, was the owner of buildings at 821 and 823 North 7th street, Springfield. They were destroyed March 16, 1937, after an explosion and fire. Coultas said that Rath made a voluntary confession to him on March 20, 1937. According to the fire marshal, Rath bought the two buildings in a bankruptcy auction with $4,000 which he had saved. He then obtained insurance on them and when all was ready sprinkled gasoline around both buildings, then applied a match.

Others were indicted with Rath on the theory they suggested the plot to him and helped him to arrange for the insurance and fire. Jack Feliccia, one of those persons, already has been found not guilty. Mrs. Anna Rath, wife of the defendant and four men also indicted in the case have not been tried.

Makes Charge of Torture.

Rath first was tried Sept. 24, 1937. Circuit Judge L. E. Stone directed a verdict of not guilty because of a variance of the proof and accusations. The judge, however, in that trial admitted Rath's confession. Rath asserted it was obtained by torture by Coultas. After that trial, Rath filed suit for $50,000 against Coultas and State's Attorney W. P. Roberts of Sangamon county. They retaliated by charging Rath with perjury.

2 CONFESS 25 HOLDUPS.

Two young men confessed more than 25 holdups in the last few weeks to Hudson avenue police yesterday. They are Roger Palmquist, 21 years old, 2154 Lincoln avenue, and Thomas Marrow, 21, of 1515 Sunnyside avenue.

Tolstoy Takes Bride

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Count Ilya Tolstoy, grandson of the Russian novelist, and his bride, the former wife of Donald Ogden Stewart, author, were honeymooning today after a quiet marriage in a hotel here late yesterday.

The couple flew here in a chartered plane from New York, the count explaining Baltimore was chosen because "it was the closest place to get married quickly."

Hurried by their pilot because weather conditions were growing bad, they left immediately after the ceremony. Forced down at Trenton, the couple departed for an unannounced destination.

PAROLEES SEIZED AFTER 4 MONTH HOLDUP SPLURGE

Wily Outlaws Trapped by Radiator Ornament.

Two paroled convicts started life anew as robbers last June. In four months they robbed more than a hundred chain food stores. They became known as the wiliest pair of outlaws in Chicago. But yesterday, because the ornament on the radiator of their car was unusual, they were under arrest.

Policemen Peter Harlib and Patrick Meagher saw the car parked at Leland and Magnolia avenues. They remembered there had been police radio calls about a car with that sort of ornament. Indeed, for a week the description had been broadcast once every hour.

Tries to Use Gun.

Cautiously they approached. In the car were two men. The occupants saw the policemen. One tried to get a sawed off shotgun into shooting position. He was too slow. The policemen took the gun and twenty-five shells for it. They also took a pistol and seventy-five cartridges.

Fred Booth. John Walker.
[TRIBUNE Photos.]

"We didn't intend to be taken alive," said one of the men. He is Fred Booth, 45 years old. His companion is John Walker, 42. Both live at 4617 North Racine avenue.

At the Town Hall station two employés of the Jewel Tea company identified the pair. They had held up stores at 5116 Irving Park road and 6121 Addison street only a few hours earlier. There was no doubt, on the part of the police, that they would be charged with at least fifteen other Jewel store holdups. All the victims knew Booth as a man who wore glasses.

Both Sentenced in 1932.

Booth and Walker were sent to Joliet penitentiary in 1932 after conviction as robbers. They were released on parole, Walker in May, 1937, and Booth in June, 1937. For a year they kept out of crime. Since they opened up again as bandits, Commissioner Allman has issued several messages urging the capture of the chain store bandits. He has had dozens of policemen assigned to watch stores because of their campaign.

The car used in the stickups was stolen on June 1. The robbers had repainted it and would, now and then, change the license plates. But they overlooked the fact that the radiator ornament was unusual.

AXMEN PERFORM ON FAST TRACK; WRECK 14 BOOKS

Betting on the horse races was interrupted yesterday at fourteen of the city's present makeshift gambling joints by the arrival of State's Attorney Courtney's axmen.

They thereby brought to 419 the total of places visited and wrecked since the anti-gambling campaign started. The handbooks raided yesterday were at 1310 North Pulaski road, 1154 North Wells street, 1150 Diversey parkway, 5495 Lake Park avenue, 3940 Roosevelt road, 64 West Randolph street [room 1025], 1937 East 71st street, 2039 Orleans street, 2720 North Clark street, 3921 Sheridan road, 220 Madison street, 704 West 63d street, 540 East 63d street, and 5626 Calumet avenue.

HOW TO GET RID OF SUBWAY CLAY IS A BIG PROBLEM

Bidding Contractors Must Find Methods.

City engineers said yesterday that it will cost between $1,380,000 and $1,840,000 to get rid of 1,840,000 cubic yards of clay dug out in building Chicago's new subways. Contractors will have to figure on this expense when they make their estimates.

Their next job is to figure out how to dispose of the waste material. They can dump the clay twelve miles out in the lake or in privately owned excavations where fees are charged; they probably could sell some of it to individuals for landscaping; and it is possible the park district or the city department of public works could buy some to fill in lake shore or city property.

Dumping all the clay in the lake or on private property would cost approximately $736,000, engineers said, plus the cost of transporting it to the barges or excavations.

Parks and City Could Profit.

Sale of the material would reduce the disposal cost. The city and the parks would profit if they got the clay at a price lower than that now paid for sand fill, it was pointed out.

"We might take some of the material," said George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the parks. "But we never could find a place for almost 2 million cubic yards."

The department of public works needs fill to construct a thirty-five acre artificial peninsula in the lake between 77th and 79th streets, which will be the site of the new water filtration plant. The city could use it to fill in the north end of Lake Calumet for an airport or park.

There will be two ways to remove the clay from the tubes. It can be hoisted to the surface and loaded in trucks to be hauled away. Or it can be hauled underground by the Chicago Tunnel company to one of the company's exits and loaded on barges or trucks there.

Connect with Freight Tubes.

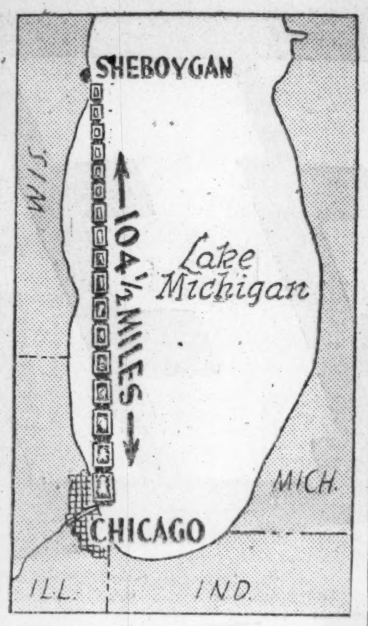
The new subways will cut through Chicago Tunnel company tubes under State and Dearborn streets. It would be possible for the contractors to have the dirt removed on the company's underground railroad to the docks on the river bank, or to the Illinois Central railroad. The tunnel company's franchise sets the rate for such removal.

This would do away with unsightly piles of clay on the surface and dump trucks tying up downtown trafic. However, use of the tunnel system might not fit in with the contractor's plans and the methods are up to him.

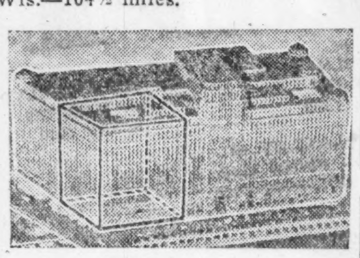
The normal progress of the work is expected to be at the rate of 4,600 cubic yards a day, Harrington said, enough to fill 560 motor trucks of 10 ton capacity or nine barges with a capacity of 500 cubic yards each.

Clay from Subway

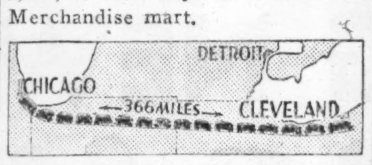
Boring the subway tunnels will give the city the problem of disposing of 1,840,000 cubic yards of clay. Tribune artists have devised three graphic representations of that huge volume.



It would fill a string of 150 foot barges stretching from the mouth of the Chicago river to Sheboygan, Wis.—104½ miles.



It would fill four-fifths of the 2,185,185 cubic yards within the Merchandise mart.



It would fill railroad gondola cars, each 43 feet long, reaching from Chicago to a point nine miles east of Cleveland, O.—366 miles.

SHOOTING OF 2 LAID TO TUNNEL UNION TROUBLE

Question Business Agent, Target of Gunfire.

The affairs of the Sewer and Tunnel Miners' union, local 2, which expects to double its membership of 2,000 when Chicago starts building subways, were being investigated by police yesterday. The police were looking for a motive of the mysterious shooting late Friday in front of 324 South Halsted street, in which two men were wounded. A third target of the gunfire was Jerry Sasso, business agent of the union, who escaped injury.

The two wounded were Sasso's half brother, Frank Delondi, 5573 Van Buren street, and Gabriel Garry, 2620 Huron street. Neither is a member of the union. Garry, who formerly operated a tavern at the Huron street address, was arrested for a slaying in 1936, but was exonerated.

Peter Fosco, president of the Tunnel Miners' union for the last fifteen years and Democratic candidate for county commissioner, denied that a motive for the shooting could be found in the union's affairs. Business Agent Sasso was held by police when he became evasive about answering questions.

TWO BOYS DROWN WHEN BOAT SINKS ON FISHING TRIP

Two Chicago boys were drowned yesterday while fishing in the Pecatonica river, near Pecatonica, fifteen miles west of Rockford. The victims were Raymond Wolff, 14 years old, 5511 Roscoe street, and Le Roy Finstad, 15, of 5742 Cornelia avenue. They and George Last, 50 years old, who lives at the Roscoe street address, were setting their fishing lines in the river when their small boat sank. Last tried to save the boys, but was unable to reach them. He was found unconscious on the shore later and was taken to a hospital. His condition was reported as critical.

Champion Steer Thrower Gored by Animal at Rodeo

Joseph McMacken, 32 years old, a cowboy at the rodeo in the Chicago stadium, was critically injured yesterday when he was gored by a steer while trying to down it in the arena. He was taken to the Norwegian American hospital. Other cowboy performers volunteered to donate blood needed for transfusions. McMacken, co-holder of a world's record for throwing steers, lives at Mowbridge, S. D.

Early Diagnosis and Proper Care would Prevent Thousands from Dying

HEART disease has increased steadily during the past twenty-five years until today it is the leading cause of death. According to medical authority 300,000 persons in this country die of heart trouble every year.

Heart disease is not confined to any particular age—in fact it very frequently begins in childhood—but more fatalities occur in persons past forty years of age. Heart disease usually begins many months—even years, before it reaches a serious stage. It's more often the result of some other ailment in the body than direct impairment of the heart itself. Early diagnosis and proper treatment of these existing conditions would save many lives.

Ailments which may cause heart trouble are:

Diptheria, scarlet fever, measles, rheumatic fever, tonsilitis and other diseases of childhood. Syphilis, toxic poisoning, or focal infection in teeth, tonsils or sinuses, WORRY, OVERWORK, or hardening of the arteries.

Associated physicians of a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE possess adequate knowledge and the scientific facilities to prevent a large number of ultimate cardiac fatalities through early diagnoses and medical supervision and care. Even in advanced cases serious trouble can be avoided and lives prolonged many years.

Complete protection against heart disease requires, in addition to examinations by trained and experienced physicians, an X-ray examination of the chest, showing the size and shape of the heart and larger blood vessels, an electrocardiogram, which is a delicate tracing of the heart's action on a sensitized film, blood pressure estimation, blood examination, urinalysis, and serological Kahn test. All of these important services are available at this modern and completely equipped medical organization at low fixed costs. Why not take advantage of these examinations now and find out whether anything is wrong with your heart. It's very important to know!

LINCOLN ZEPHYR

STYLE LEADER FOR 1939

THIS "TWELVE"... THE ONLY CAR OF ITS KIND

Three years ago the Lincoln Motor Company announced a car new in idea, appearance and performance—the 12-cylinder Lincoln-Zephyr. The public had not seen an automobile like it before. . . . The Lincoln-Zephyr for 1939 is still a new car. It is improved and refined. But the fundamental design which ushered in a new era of styling remains unchanged!

This year's Lincoln-Zephyr is more beautiful than ever before. Radiator grilles, set low in the manner so much admired in last year's car, now sweep back vertically. Louvers are concealed. Streamlines flow gracefully from end to end, side to side. The long, sloping rear deck, keynote of Lincoln-Zephyr design, seems handsomer than ever. Simplicity and grace rule. Here is the truly modern car—pattern for the future!

But style alone does not make a motor car. What underlies the Lincoln-Zephyr's streamlined beauty? Many other distinctive features establish this decisively as a car apart . . . the brilliant performance, the trussed construction, the economy of operation, the flowing ride.

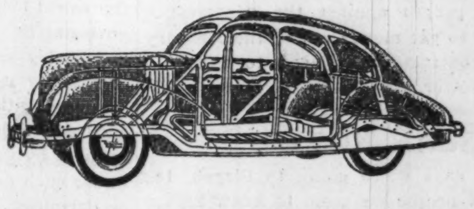
For beneath this outward beauty, in all closed types, is a framework of steel trusses—the famous "arch-bridge" construction. You have stood on such a bridge, spanning some wide valley, and marveled that so light a structure could support great weight. Here is the same principle—body and frame a rigid unit combining lightness and strength.

A 12-cylinder engine in any medium-price car is unusual. The Lincoln-Zephyr V-type 12-cylinder engine has established its own standards of power, smoothness, flexibility. Its amazing record of 14 to 18 miles per gallon will still be causing comment when 1939 is over!

This year, the Lincoln-Zephyr has hydraulic brakes. They offer smooth, gentle stops under all conditions. . . . New this year, too, is the complete rubber-insulation of springs, axle assemblies and engine from the body-frame. Even greater quietness results in a car already quiet. . . . Interiors have been completely redesigned. Many refinements of appointments are in evidence. Seats, again, have chair-height comfort.

On the roads, today, are more than 60,000 Lincoln-Zephyrs. But numbers alone cannot do justice to the influence of this car. It has changed habits of thought about land transportation. It has created perhaps the most enthusiastic owners in motor-car history. It has opened a new world of travel! The Lincoln-Zephyr V-12 for 1939 will continue to set new standards in all ways—to give value beyond its medium price. . . . Your new ride is waiting! Choose from six handsome body types, including two convertibles, the Sedan and the Coupe.

BENEATH ITS OUTWARD BEAUTY



A combination of features that makes it the only car of its kind.

1. Unit-body-and-frame — steel panels welded to steel trusses.
2. V-type 12-cylinder engine — smooth, quiet power.
3. 14 to 18 miles to the gallon.
4. High power-to-weight ratio — low center of gravity.
5. Modern comfort for six — passengers "amidships" in chair-height seats — the gliding ride — direct entrance — high visibility.
6. Hydraulic brakes.

THE POWER ISSUE.

The power issue, as we have repeatedly pointed out, needs debunking. The facts are at hand to do it. Here they are:

1. The average family in the United States pays only $2.80 per month to light the home and operate the many household appliances the family possesses. Thus the monthly electric light bill is one of the smallest items in the family budget.

2. The family charge for electricity per kilowatt hour has been steadily reduced and is less than half of what it was at the outbreak of the world war. The average cost of other things purchased by the family has in the same period gone up by nearly 50 per cent.

3. Taking manufactures alone the power cost is only 2 per cent of the total value of products. Power costs are so small a part of the costs of production that if power was available for nothing it would not make possible any material reduction in selling prices.

Then why all the shouting? Why the hue and cry about utilities? Why the talk about the power issue? There are two reasons:

1. No one loves a fat man or a big corporation. If the electric light business could be carried on as a small business we would not have a power issue, just as we don't have a meat shop issue or a candy store issue. But there are great economies in the production and distribution of power on a large scale. And thus the very fact that the electric power industry, by the very nature of the business, is carried on by big corporations makes it meat for politicians. In most communities the power company is the biggest operation the people have any contact with. And so the fellow who wants to put himself out as the friend of the peepul goes after the big company, which is right at hand for the attack. The national politician likewise goes after the utilities because he knows he is talking about something concrete to the common man.

2. The other reason for the "power issue" is to get patronage and graft. In a hundred million dollar hydro-electric power development there are thousands of political plums to be handed out to favorites. There are juicy contracts for construction and for indemnification. Patronage and graft are the fuel of political machines.

What has been done by the present administration under the head of fighting the power interests is credible only because there is a record of it. When the sensible people of the state of Maine became alarmed at the billions of dollars that were being spent in Tennessee, in Nebraska, and in the far west on account of the power issue the President said, "All right, we'll give you a hydro-electric project, and as you haven't any convenient river or creek we'll give you hydro-electric power by harnessing the tides of the ocean." And when the people of Texas wondered about the power issue one of their politicians got money for a hydro-electric project which produced a disastrous flood.

The "power issue" is a gag. It is employed by unscrupulous politicians who use it as a vehicle for putting themselves out as the protectors of the peepul against the "interests," and as a means to get money out of the treasury for jobs and contracts they need to maintain themselves in power.

PISGAH NOTES.

One of these days we're going to Pisgah, Ia., to meet a lot of people we seem to know rather intimately though we have never seen them. The Clarks and Kresses, the Millers including Jennabelle, Miss Dunham, the Hamers, and Roy Vredenburgh are on the list. And there are a good many more.

We owe our acquaintance with these pleasant people to the New Deal. Mr. McCabe, editor of the Logan [Ia.] Observer, has a low opinion of the administration in Washington and a sharp pen. Every Thursday he jabs it into them. Almost every week somebody in Logan sends us the editorial page of the Observer, hoping, no doubt, to stimulate us to comparable effort, and we are grateful. We enjoy Mr. McCabe's trenchant and informed writing, but we enjoy even more the Pisgah notes which generally appear on the other side of the sheet. Often we read the Pisgah notes first.

R. L. Hester came home from the Veterans' hospital, Des Moines, Wednesday. He will return after corn husking for an operation for adhesions.

The second grade has been busily engaged making things in clay. Miss Dunham and the class have been talking about good health habits and have been checking such habits as brushing hair, cleaning teeth, fingers, face, and hands.

Mrs. Lennie Clark's cellar caved in after the severe rain Tuesday, but fortunately most of her canned fruit and vegetables were not broken.

No church or league as the pastor is attending conference at Fairfield.

Mrs. Earl Fouts and children of Onawa spent the week-end at the parental Mrs. Thomas Babe home. Earl has been in Lincoln, Neb., at the state fair with his race horse. From there he plans to go to St. Louis, Mo.

At a two course luncheon Sunday noon at the parental F. W. Beekman home, Alma Grover announced her marriage to Lester Bartels of Mapleton, in Missouri, on May 14, 1938. The luncheon table was beautifully decorated in blue and white. The nut cups were in the form of mail boxes with a letter sticking out of each box informing the guest of the event. Twenty-four relatives were present.

We share Editor McCabe's sentiments about the New Deal and probably at bottom our reasons are much alike. Pisgah and its people haven't everything they need, but we suspect that they can take care of that themselves at least as well as it can be done for them by a lot of jobholders 1,500 miles away. We'll trust Miss Dunham to teach good health habits to the second grade without assistance from Washington.

AN INVITATION TO THE DICTATOR.

Conferences on what is called the selective service plan are being held at various points in the country, one having just finished its work at Fort Sheridan. The regional officers of the armed services and the National Guard are brought in and the plan is explained by the specialists from the war department and general staf. The selective service plan has various other names. It is called the mobilization of men and resources and is also known as universal conscription. Bills setting up this system of conscription have been up to the last mile in congress at various times in recent years, but have not as yet reached a passing vote.

The persistence with which the idea is advocated and the diligence of its advocates in arousing misguided enthusiasms and mistaken opinions preclude the supposition that the thing is not to be taken too seriously. There are too many pushful persons who want it and too many thoughtless persons who are fascinated by it to permit the dismissal of the scheme on the ground that it is fantastic.

People find both justice and efficiency in it. They think that if the nation goes to war these days all the people in the country physically fit to do anything should immediately be placed under a governmental administrator to tell each and every one precisely what he is to do. Then the man who has to go into the combat forces will know that the stay-at-homes are not luxuriating around, either making more money than they should or than they had been making, or indulging their emotions cheaply at the expense of the fellows who are out in the mud and the danger.

There are people who think, in the first place, that this will make everybody reluctant to have the country jump into a war, and then if a war comes of necessity every fit person in the United States will be at the job he is best qualified to perform and all will be making a sacrifice to the common cause.

Everybody, according to a brief description of the plan, is to work in the place best suited to his age and skill—in factory, office, on the farm, or in bearing arms for the navy, army, or marine corps. The attractiveness of this scheme has won many admirers and the really designing people behind it have been able to conceal their purposes in the needlework of some of the worst reasoning that has ever been presented to the people.

No dictator in present day Europe would ask for anything better for his purposes than such a law as this. The only persons in the country who would not immediately pass under government control would be the aged, the crippled, the sick, the penitentiary population, and the people in asylums. Governmental authority would take over everybody else, regulating every activity of life, all prices, all wages, all employments, and all production and consumption of goods. Men would have to work where they were told to work, for pay fixed by the government. They would eat what was put on the quotas, go where they were sent, and obey the martinet from the time they got up to the time they went to bed. The autocrat would be in every neighborhood and in every activity. If the bosses undertook the thing upon the scale provided the initial result would unquestionably be the greatest paralysis the country has ever known. Thereafter the loss of liberty would be as complete here as it is in Russia, Italy, or Germany.

American citizens, for the first time in their lives, would be in squads and they would feel that they were also in stripes and leg chains. All their natural abilities which come to the front in an emergency would be strangled and smothered by a vast, clumsy burocracy which would step on its feet and grow more boneheaded as it was confronted with its failures. No justice would be done the men under arms because the disrupted country behind them would be incapable of giving them support. The prevailing spirit of the world being what it is, not even an American government, once having been created in an emergency as an absolute autocrat, would ever completely let go of the powers it had wielded. The temptation of a government, especially one such as we now have, to seek an escape from its failures by getting hold of the authority granted under such an act need not be regarded as slight or harmless. Any war would serve the purpose.

Most of the people supporting the plan have given no thought whatever to what it would do to them. They are carried away by the idea that it represents the just and efficient way of meeting a national emergency. The chances are that the consequences of a victory under such a law, if it could be had, would be worse than a defeat. It is a piece off the same bolt of goods which made the crazy pension schemes now distracting a large part of the country. Instead of being the common sense procedure its guileless advocates think it is, it is an exhibition of something like hysteria.

NOTES FROM AUSTRALIA

BY W. A. O'CARROLL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia.—The recent British commonwealth relations conference, to which delegates came from Britain and the "outposts of empire," shut itself away in a hotel on the outskirts of Sydney and held its discussions in private. It bound everybody to secrecy and provided the press with censored reports of its proceedings. Of chief interest to Australians, because it brought America into the picture, was a public declaration by the marquess of Lothian, representing Britain. In Australia it was believed the statement was inspired by the British government.

"I think," Lothian said, "there is a growing agreement that the destiny and the security of the British commonwealth lies in close association with the United States, whose democratic ideals and methods of dealing with the social problems caused by the advent of the industrial age are very like our own. If an association, but certainly not an alliance, were to become possible between the British commonwealth and the United States for the defense of the vast area which their navies and air forces together can certainly protect from external aggression, we should be able to establish not only security for our individual national freedom, for free institutions, but a formidable agency for peace." In Europe and the far east, he said, there is no short road to peace.

"Unfortunately," he added, "because we bemused ourselves too long with the convenient belief that the league of nations would prevent war, our rearmament has been and still is in arrears. Because it takes two years for plans on the drawing board to mature in organization and munitions, we have until recently been practically defenseless in the air.

"We shall not be out of the woods for another year, and even then nothing can save the nations of Europe, including Great Britain, from experiencing terrible destruction at home if world war once begins. Every day we are becoming more formidable in the air both for defense and offense, and in proportion our diplomacy in this age of power politics may be expected to become effective both in Europe and the far east."

Maj. Van Der Byl, chairman of the Union of South Africa delegation, said some South African citizens sincerely and honestly believed that being a member of the British empire was a danger. They believe, he said, that Britain, having such huge and far flung interests, must sooner or later be involved in a world war in which South Africa might have no interest. The fact that it is part of the empire would mean that South Africa would become involved immediately in a quarrel in which it had no direct interest, these persons contend. They say that if the war went against the empire, South Africa would be involved in the same disaster. This group wants no foreign commitments, but that does not mean that it is anti-British, or that it favors the empire's enemies, Van Der Byl said.

Upon the question of Canada's attitude in the event of war, it was stated at the conference [by whom not disclosed] that it would be difficult to persuade French Canadians to take part in any conflict against a Catholic enemy country or to indorse any alliance with Russia. Canada stood to gain the least and suffer the most by its connection with the British commonwealth, it was held, but there was no suggestion that because of this fact there was any desire or tendency to break away from the commonwealth.

The loan council, composed of Australia's treasurer and the premiers of the various Australian states, was established as a peaceful means of farming out finance by way of loans. In recent times, however, it has developed into a battleground with the states on one side ranged against the commonwealth, backed by the commonwealth bank board on the other.

Hostilities opened once the states discovered that they were unable to have their beggings and their borrowings gratified in full measure. However they may be divided politically, they are united on the gospel of "Gimme." The commonwealth, taking its cue from the bank board, is urging the raising of more revenue as a means of promoting prosperity, as well as for checking what is termed a fictitious prosperity heading for the old instabilities that wound up previously in depression.

Premier William Forgan Smith of Queensland, a Laborite, is charged with attempting to reorganize the loan council to make it more susceptible to pressure. Preparedness in economic planning, he says, is as important as military preparedness. He favors the establishment of a permanent secretariat, the duty of which would be to study the financial position and keep all members advised. A conference of economists should be called to make recommendations to members of the loan council, he asserts. His and other proposals, it is charged, have the common purpose of attempting to circumvent the loan council.

The New South Wales state government has decided to widen the scope of its housing program by providing finance for people who cannot find the 10 per cent deposit necessary to obtain a coöperative building loan. It proposes to expand the Homes for Unemployed trust which is already finding more than 500 houses a year for unemployed and intermittent workers. The proposed new legislation will provide also for financial coöperation in slum clearance between the government and the local governing authorities. Premier B. S. B. Stevens indicated that the program might include cheap, fast transport for people of small means.

The state housing council of New South Wales is seeking the coöperation of municipal councils and business organizations to work out schemes combining town planning and coöperative housing. The council holds that the present coöperative housing plan wastes what should be the chief asset of the societies—mass purchasing power.

The shorter work week was described as "a fetish" and "a matter of blind faith" with wage earners by Chief Judge Dethridge in the federal arbitration court. He said the forty-four hour week was being demanded by employés in some industries even in circumstances that would jeopardize their own interests. He said that the court might investigate how the forty-four hour week was working in the industry where it had been introduced by an agreement between the employers and employés.

"If after hearing evidence the court decided that the risk should be taken, the men may suffer horribly and they had better realize it," he added. "I do not think that this court or the employers can appeal to the reasoning faculties on this question of the forty-four hour week. It is like other 'isms.' Horrible dope it may be, but it is being swallowed." Counsel for the employers in the case being heard interjected: "That is all the more reason why this court should protect the men." The judge replied: "You cannot protect people from their religion."

The danger of Australians being Americanized through motion pictures was discussed in a public speech by Norman Bede Rydge. He is chairman of the directors of Greater Union theaters, which controls Cinesound, biggest Australian producing company.

"We consider that it is essential in Australia that the habits of the people should be molded on lines of national loyalty," he said. "Probably 95 per cent of the films exhibited here are of American origin. I think it can be said safely that the sentiment being displayed is American in character and that the minds of young people, which are very plastic, are being developed according to American ideals. I do not desire to make any attack on America, because the United States of America and Australia are working in harmony. Nevertheless, we can say that we, as Australians, owe a duty to Australia to try to mold the mode of living of our people—and particularly the habits of the young people—on lines which are Australian in character and British in sentiment."

THE NOSE—MORE THAN AN ORNAMENT.

THE only part of the body unprovided with a damper is the nose. We can close the mouth, cover the skin with clothing, and drop the eyelids, thus effectually shutting out infection. Even though dust and microbes invade the ear canals, the drums provide a barrier against their reaching the hearing machinery. We must admit, therefore, that we should be kind to the long suffering "beak" which has so many duties, powers, and functions. Not only does it convey, strain, filter, warm, and humidify air before it enters the lungs, but it takes care of the sense of smell and has a good deal to do with taste.

A substantial nasal adornment may be sneezed with—but not at—and fortunate is he who has a well formed proboscis with ample air channels and turbinate bones of normal contour—all provided with mucous lining rich in capillaries. If the conduits are adequate, it is the exception rather than the rule for the owner to have much sinus trouble, as the suction force of in-and-out breathing will keep these regions well drained.

While life probably is not dependent upon the facial appendage, nevertheless comfort is. We can breathe through the mouth, but what incessant drinkers we would become! The mucous membrane of the oral cavity would dry out so rapidly that unless supplied with moisture constantly cracks would appear and infection follow speedily.

Now nature has provided a remarkable set of airplane blades within the air spaces. Although they are stationary, the moving currents of air are so directed as to be distributed evenly for the purpose of taking up water and depositing loads of dirt and bacteria. A middle partition, called the septum, divides the region into two halves which are never exactly equal. In the first place, the septum itself is rarely straight. It may bend a little to one side or the other and it is only when it actually constricts a chamber that surgical correction is needed.

But more important than the mechanical plan of the organ is its behavior—how it performs. First we have the mucus, which protects the cells provided with whips and, at the same time, is of such chemical composition that bacteria are discouraged in their attempts to grow. After a time this material is swept outward, carrying with it corralled germs and irritating débris.

Not the least of the characteristics of the nose is its adaptability under great stress such as abrupt changes in temperature, humidity, and all the factors that make up climate. No matter where the individual may find himself, this versatile structure will adjust itself—or try to do so, settle down to its tasks, and carry on efficiently.

But it is extremely sensitive—reflecting, in many respects, what goes on in other portions of the system. For example, one can be exposed to a cold draft or return home with wet feet, chilled to the bone, whereupon the mucosa will put on a show, become congested, and notify its possessor that he has neglected some fundamental law of good hygiene. As we well know, it is the outdoor chap who has the fewest colds—the one whose mucous lining is more healthful, with an improved blood supply, as contrasted with the office worker who demands that it accommodate itself to drier, warmer air. Indoor employment affords less opportunity for the so-called toughening process which, in most instances, means a better circulation.

Were I arbiter of all human conduct, no one would ever blow the nose—at least with force. Animals do not and they apparently get along very well indeed. I am sure also that much of the trumpeting which we hear every day is one of the best means of forcing infection into the Eustachian tubes [leading into the middle ear] or into some one of the sinuses.

Let's respect the apparatus—Grecian, Roman, or pug—and call upon it but rarely to do impossible things.

FLU AND NEPHRITIS.

N. O. writes: Could a person contract a case of chronic nephritis from influenza?

REPLY.

Yes, nephritis may occur during the course of or as a sequel to influenza. The condition is at first acute, but if unrecognized and untreated may become chronic.

A. K. W. writes: Just what does drinking buttermilk do for us?

REPLY.

Buttermilk has considerable food value. It lacks the fat contained in ordinary milk but it is a rich source of protein and calcium. It also has the advantage of being very easily digested.

SOME UNVEILED SARCASM.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Oct. 14.—The people of Wisconsin owe you a debt of gratitude for your editorials on the sad state of affairs in our state. It is interesting to note the influence you have in molding the attitude of our citizens in state and national politics as evinced in the outcome of past elections. It appears that we, being free, white and in full possession of our faculties, are quite able to select the officials of our state, even though our selection doesn't seem to coincide with that of the world's greatest newspaper [?].

Undoubtedly we could become as great as Illinois if we would only heed your warnings, but your pearls of wisdom seem only to fall among the swine. Perhaps some day after we reach the high state of civilization possessed only by Chicagoans we will be in a position to be annexed and truly become a part of Chicagoland [God forbid—also, we do not have a 3 per cent sales tax up here, either].

You berate us for seeking federal funds for power projects and—14 million for a two block subway; well, well, but on second thought, if there is not enough to go around, Wisconsinites will surely give you first grab, for traveling in the bowels of the earth, if only for two blocks, would be preferable to riding in the soot, dirt, and paper laden air of your loop.

However, old thing, we will try hard to meet your standards and thus be worthy of your title "Chicagoland"!

If you have a business, mind it!

MAKING A CRAZY QUILT.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—I wonder if there is any one among your millions of readers that has any wool pieces suitable for a quilt. I have started a crazy quilt and have it about half finished and am unable to get any wool pieces. I would be most grateful for any size or color just so they are all wool.

My husband is a laborer on WPA and only gets $55 a month. There are three of us so there isn't much money for extras. We need bedclothes so badly. I haven't much to offer, but will be glad to repay the sender the best I can.

WHY, INDEED?

Mount Prospect, Ill., Oct. 12.—Today, in a world of acute international, industrial, and commercial competition, it behooves us to straighten out our national home economy and put our affairs on a 100 per cent efficient basis. Whether we have to depart from our democratic principles to accomplish this remains to be seen. Fascism, we are told, is brutal, but its efficiency in getting things done is unexcelled. The U. S. A. is the richest country in the world. Why are we where we are today?

WE'VE OVERLOOKED SUN BATHING.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—As a visitor from a sister state in the deep south, I get some definite impressions of Chicago people. Your children show lack of sunshine and outdoor ruggedness. I can see that any attempt to educate the people on the health-giving qualities of direct sun rays on naked bodies has not been very successful.

I once was very puny, but I began sunbaths on sky roofs and anywhere. I found that living most anywhere I could expose my body each sunny day to direct sunshine. It eased my nerves, my weight increased, and I got well of insomnia.

Why does not some one with ability to conduct campaigns get this subject over every radio, into all the papers, and in the hands of all lodges and churches? Make Chicagoans a billion dollars better off in a year.

PICKETS AT A HOTEL.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Citizens and occupants of the Clarendon hotel are menaced daily by persons walking two abreast in front of the hotel threatening persons entering premises and compelling pedestrians to get into the street to pass the building.

They are supposed to be janitors picketing for their union. Next, no doubt, the people living in the hotel will be slugged by these racketeers. Is there no legal way to rid the city of this danger to public safety? Or is this perhaps some of the "we planned it that way" program?

FAITH IN OUR AMERICA.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Our America will raise all our people's living conditions above any possibility of ridicule or criticism from abroad, by insuring good homes, food, and clothes for every citizen. Our America will stamp out of existence all foreign propagandists and spies. And our America will make itself even stronger in effective armor for our defense than any nation or dictator. America will live forever in liberty.

CLIMAX OF A GOOD LUCK WEEK.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Speaking of good luck omens, I have been pondering over a question since summer. In one week the following was observed in succession: Sunday evening, a falling star and I made a wish; Monday, found a penny; Tuesday, found a four leaf clover; Wednesday evening, saw another falling star and made a wish; Thursday, a horseshoe, and on Friday found another four leaf clover; Saturday evening I proposed to my girl friend and she said NO.

The question is was I lucky or wasn't I?

A PHRASE FROM JEFFERSON.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—I have been looking through books of quotations to get the source of the following phrase:

" . . . equal rights for all, special privileges for none. . . ."

Hoyt's "Encyclopedia of Practical Quotations" and Stevens' "Home Book of Quotations" both quote this phrase and attribute it to Jefferson but, unfortunately, fail to give the source. I wonder if some reader could tell in what speech or paper Jefferson used it?

CHILLED.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS—The Paris fire brigade is about to be increased by a third battalion of 747 men, bringing the total to 2,613.

One of the reasons for the increase in the Paris brigade is recent fires in some of its venerable old buildings which are priceless and could not be replaced. The most recent such fire was in the Louvre and threatened not only that fine old building but the invaluable art collection inside. The Opera, too, caught fire a couple of years ago. Incidentally, the fire protection for the foreign office in the Quai d'Orsay was tripled during the recent visit of King George VI, and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain. New measures to protect such buildings have been taken. If the Opera catches fire twenty pieces of apparatus and 180 firemen would be on the spot within 10 minutes. An alarm turned in at midnight would bring the Blanche street engine and hook and ladder to the Opera by 12:03; the Boursault engine at 12:06; the Montmartre engine and ladder at 12:07; the Château-d'Eau engine at 12:09; and the Château-Landon's highpowered engine and two other pieces at 12:10.

These speeds seem to the French to be very high, but they cannot, of course, compare with American performance. The Paris fire apparatus hurries to a fire with scarcely more than the speed of an average taxi. Its siren is a quiet and unmenacing ooom-pah, and has some effect on trafic, but not much.

As for the apparatus itself, it is perfectly adequate for Paris needs. There are comparatively few fires, due perhaps to the preponderance of stone in building construction, the complete absence of wooden structures, and no buildings over eight stories. But it always strikes an American seeing it for the first time as of not much more than toy proportions. Any Frenchman would be astonished at the sight of an American hook and ladder.

The organization of the Paris department, too, is quite different than that of American cities. Instead of consisting of professional fire fighters who start young and become gray and expert in the service, the Paris firemen are soldiers assigned to this special duty. In the case of the Paris department it can truly be referred to as a fire "brigade." It is part of the army.

INSURANCE POLICY.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My uncle by marriage made my own aunt his beneficiary of an insurance policy. My aunt raised me and my mother is dead. I loaned my uncle $1,500 sixteen years ago and have never received any interest.

My aunt is in poor health and [1] wants me to be made beneficiary of his $1,500 policy in case of her death first. My uncle has brothers and sisters and is somewhat feeble-minded.

2. How can we get this policy made or changed so that in the event of my aunt's death my uncle's relatives won't receive this $1,500?

I have received no payment of interest or principal and [3] my aunt wishes to know whether my uncle's will can be altered [he made one five or six years ago], and whether, if he made a new will making me the heir to the insurance policy in case of my aunt's death before his, whether it would be legal? R. E.

1. In general, rights in an insurance policy depend on the wording of the policy. In order to change the beneficiary you should correspond with the home office of the company.

2. It seems questionable whether any arrangement that he makes now would stand against attack. We advise you to go over your facts in a personal interview with an attorney.

3. We incline to the opinion that he lacks mental capacity to alter his will, but a lawyer by talking with him can form a better impression than we can from your letter. It is not clear that the insurance could be controled by his will.

GENERALS PRAISE ARMY AIR RAID DEFENSE TESTS

Civilians' Part in Big Maneuvers Successful.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Bragg, N. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The assemblage of generals at tonight's critique marked the finish of the largest aircraft exercise ever held in America.

Aside from tactical experience gained in the exercise, it was the opinion of the generals that the high point of the maneuvers was the successful coöperation of civilians with the army.

Great credit was given to North Carolinians for success of the venture. Brig. Gen. William Bryden, the chief umpire, said achievements gained were the result of three months' planning of civilians and military leaders along common sense lines. He said the maneuvers proved that voluntary coöperation between civilians and the army is a practical and logical procedure for our people to follow during a national emergency.

Brig. Gen. Fulton Gardner elucidated on purposes and accomplishments of the maneuvers. "They afforded an opportunity," he said, "for testing out our tactical doctrins, both for the attack from the air and for the defense against each attack, and for determining what changes, if any, are necessary in our tactical doctrins, organization, and material under present day conditions."

From the standpoint of anti-aircraft artillery material, according to the officers the exercise has shown that the present guns, if installed in a complete all round defense, will serve to force all types of enemy aircraft to stay at altitudes at which it will be difficult for them to bomb targets of limited area, particularly at night, but that in the case of a large area target anti-aircraft artillery alone cannot be expected to provide a complete defense.

Efficiently manned anti-aircraft artillery may be expected to force enemy bombardment aviation to attack at increasingly higher altitudes, it was stated, and this will, in turn, impose upon the anti-aircraft artillery greater difficulties in the detection of attack.

Fifty persons volunteered. The one chosen was a dentist. The transfusion and the amputation were performed yesterday at the Jackson Park hospital. Theodore's condition was described as fair.

'BATTLE' SHOWS HORSE CAVALRY STILL EFFECTIVE

Fort Riley, Kas., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—The United States cavalry—both the new and the old—moved side by side into sham battle today over the broken terrain of the Fort Riley Military reservation.

Today's problem was to demonstrate coöperation between horse cavalry and the mechanized 7th cavalry brigade, engaged in extensive maneuvers here. Today's demonstrations showed that horse and mechanized cavalry units supplement each other and that mechanical units will not replace horses.

Shortly after dawn a horse cavalry regiment attacked a hostile force, but was unable to defeat it. The attacking force then was augmented by a squadron of combat cars from the mechanized brigade. The combat cars, roaring across the level ground at a speed of twenty-five to thirty-five miles an hour, closed in on the enemy, seeking cover in a canyon, and, with the aid of the horse troops, put the enemy to rout.

ARREST FORMER POLICEMAN IN GAMBLING QUIZ

Joseph Dunakin of Antioch, a former Lake Forest policeman, was arrested yesterday in connection with the special gambling investigation in Lake county.

He was served with a warant, issued on Aug. 23, by Claude Warner, chief investigator for Special State's Attorney Charles E. Jack, in charge of the gambling inquiry. The warant alleges that on June 24 Dunakin was involved in the sale or leasing of slot machines. Dunakin was freed on $2,000 bond. His case will be heard Oct. 25 by Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt of Waukegan.

Special State's Attorney Jack said he expected other arrests would be made soon. He said he plans to start presenting evidence to the grand jury in two or three weeks. He predicted many indictments.

ROSE BAMPTON, NOW A SOPRANO, WINS PLAUDITS

Voice Has Extraordinary Range and Coloring.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

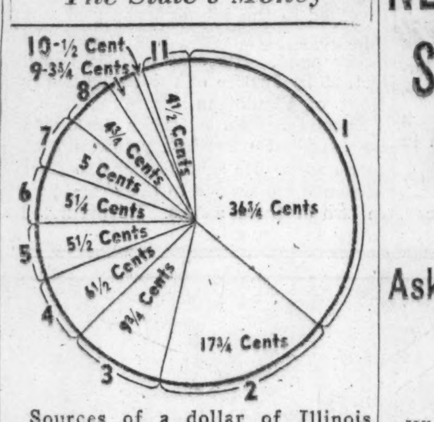
The first major recital of the season took place in Orchestra hall last night when Rose Bampton, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera association, sang under Adult Education council auspices before a large and cordial audience. The program consisted mostly of lyric songs in German, French, and English, and of operatic excerpts from the Italian and German repertoires. Italian music—and Handelian music in the Italian style—filled the first group.

Miss Bampton is the one time singer of contralto and mezzo rôles who has lately lifted herself into the soprano range. Partly because of this rather unusual history she now boasts an exceptionally large number of voice colorings. These range all the way from a dark, chesty contralto to an intoxicatingly light and flaky soprano. Her dynamic range is just as remarkable—from a resounding, roof raising forte to a birdlike pianissimo. But Miss Bampton's tone quality is always infinitely better than that of the very best bird.

These endowments Miss Bampton uses scrupulously and for high musical ends. Tonal and dynamic effects are never lugged in for sheer effect. Her singing is passionate and communicative in high degree.

Miss Bampton's accompanist and assisting artist was Nils Nelson, whose Debussy playing [except for the lack of a genuine pianissimo] was an excellent realization of the dim, aqueous tone which the composer of "Reflections in the Water" presumably had in mind.

The State's Money



Sources of a dollar of Illinois income: 1, sales tax; 2, motor fuel tax; 3, vehicle tax; 4, federal aid for old age assistance; 5, corporation and insurance fees and taxes; 6, federal aid for highways; 7, liquor tax and fees; 8, utilities taxes; 9, inheritance tax; 10, Illinois Central railroad franchise tax, and 11, other sources.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 15.—Finance Director S. L. Nudelman gave his answer today to the question: "What does the state do with the taxpayers' money?"

Nudelman reported an analysis of state spending for the fiscal year ended June 30, showing 41¾ cents out of every dollar went for emergency relief, old age assistance, and for maintenance of penal and welfare institutions. The rest of the dollar went as follows: State highway construction and maintenance, 18¼ cents; state's share of education costs, 13; interest and retirement of state debt, 9¼; counties' and cities' share of motor fuel tax, 8, and general governmental purposes, 9¾.

Sources of state income per dollar were: Retailers' occupational [sales] tax, 36¾ cents; motor fuel tax, 17¾; motor vehicle taxes, 9¾; federal aid for old age assistance, 6½; corporation and insurance fees and taxes, 5½; federal aid for highways, 5¼; liquor license taxes and fees, 5; utility taxes, 4¾; inheritance taxes, 3¾; Illinois Central railroad franchise tax, ½, and all other sources, 4½.

FIND BLONDE, 18, MYSTERIOUSLY INJURED IN PARK

A pretty girl, 18 to 20 years old, was found unconscious under mysterious circumstances in Jackson park late last night. A passing motorist saw her lying near Convent drive, just north of 67th street and a short distance west of the lake.

Park Policeman Richard Bingham, who was notified, took her to the Woodlawn hospital for first aid, and then removed her to the County hospital. She had not been attacked, but her head, arms and legs were cut and bruised.

Physicians reported she apparently had suffered great shock under emotional stress. Police theorized she was either struck by an automobile or perhaps thrown from one. She may possibly have leaped from a car, they said. The girl was described as blonde, five feet four inches tall and weighing 135 pounds. She wore a purple sweater, a black dress, brown stockings and black shoes.

TWO ORCHESTRA LEADERS' WIVES START LAWSUITS

Los Angeles, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The marital troubles of two orchestra leaders were in the courts today—one in a $100,000 loss of love suit filed by Mrs. Eula Martene Rich, wife of Freddie Rich, and the other in a divorce action instituted by Mrs. Maxine Heindorf against Raymond Heindorf.

Mrs. Rich sued Miss Elizabeth Gordon of Beverly Hills, Cal., asserting that in December, 1936, Miss Gordon began a campaign to win Rich's affections, with the result that he left home a month later.

Mrs. Heindorf charged her husband was so lacking in affection that in 1937 she attempted suicide.

After several weeks she relinquished him to the Horsts, and consented to his adoption. He died May 5 from appendicitis.

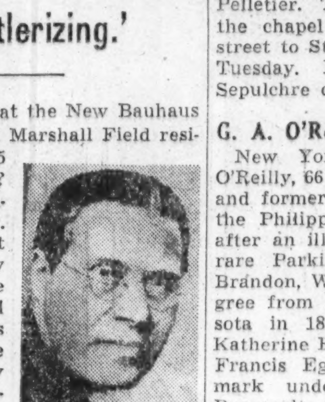
NEW BAUHAUS SCHOOL CLOSES; DIRECTOR SUES

Asks Back Pay; Accused of 'Hitlerizing.'

What goes on at the New Bauhaus school in the old Marshall Field residence at 1905 Prairie avenue? Industrial designing, ordinarily. But right now it is haunted by secrets, to judge by the guarded comments of its leaders. The school, backed by prominent industrialists and civic leaders, opened a year ago.



Lasslo Maholy-Nagy.

Lasslo Maholy-Nagy, the Hungarian who came here from London to become the school's director, filed suit yesterday for $2,570 in back salary. The suit said he had a five year contract calling for $700 a month from July, 1937, until July, 1938, and $800 a month thereafter. It charged that he hasn't been paid since June.

Admits It's at Standstill.

Mr. Maholy-Nagy was not anxious to discuss the suit.

"Is the school operating?" he was asked.

"Unfortunately, not," he replied in clipped accent.

"Will it reopen?"

"Unfortunately, nothing has been decided," he said. "We are negotiating. I cannot say more. It is a delicate matter."

Applications are on hand from more than forty prospective students, who would pay $300 tuition. Would this pay expenses? Unfortunately not, the internationally known designer said again. Last year there were thirty students. Mr. Maholy-Nagy lives at 1210 Astor street.

Frank Milhening, treasurer of the Association of Arts and Industries, which operates the school, didn't want to talk about the suit, either.

"O, yes, there is some money," said Milhening, a jewelry manufacturer and designer. "Plans call for reopening the school next week."

He referred questions as to the nature of the trouble, if any, to Attorney Emil C. Wetten. The lawyer said the school will reopen soon.

Hurls "Hitlerizing" Charge.

"Don't worry, we've got a good defense in this suit," said Wetten, "and we'll file our answer. We will file a suit for damages of $50,000. The only trouble is that we're not going to stand for any one trying to Hitlerize the school."

He wouldn't explain what he meant by "Hitlerize."

Maholy-Nagy was a member of the faculty at the Bauhaus, famed school of design at Dessau, Germany, after which the New Bauhaus is patterned. Such things as tubular furniture originated there. The German school was directed by Dr. Walter Gropius, now of the graduate school of architecture at Harvard university. Dr. Gropius described the Hungarian designer as "my nearest collaborator" when the school was dedicated a year ago.

AUTUMNAL GLORY LURES VISITOR TO WISCONSIN DELLS

Time Ideal Now to See Nature's Wonderland.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Wisconsin Dells, Wis., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Half a million years ago torrents of glacial water cut through ten miles of potsdam limestone in central Wisconsin and created a tableau of weird and beautiful images and a water panorama that make the 200 mile automobile ride from Chicago well worth a Chicagoan's while.

Arrow indicates location of the Wisconsin Dells.

"Have you ever seen the Dells?"

"No, but I'm going up there some day."

That is a stock question and answer—carrying with it the traditional postponement which often means never.

But the lovely allurements of the Dells should be an urgency in every Chicagolander's calendar of trips, and with these golden autumn days has come the ideal time to view one of the most bewitching little wonderlands in America.

The Ballyhoo Is Gone.

The summer rush to the Dells is over. You will have the wonderland pretty much to yourself now. The ballyhoo of the vendors of postcards and Indian gewgaws and boat rides has subsided. You get the serene poetry of the place without the tedious holiday clamor and crowding.

This last summer the Dells had 150,000 visitors, but it will be the few thousand autumn visitors who will view the scene in its most entrancing and its subtlest aspects.

For a Chicagoan the trip is easy and inexpensive. There is no fuss or bother about it, and there are friendly, informing people all the way from the Illinois-Wisconsin line to the center of the state. Some of their politics in the Badger state may be fantastic, but they do have manners, and exercise them.

All the Way on Route 12.

From the north side in Chicago take U. S. highway 12 and stay on it all the way, traveling through the pleasant towns of Lake Geneva, Whitewater, Fort Atkinson, Madison, and Baraboo. The distance is 204 miles and you can make it in four and a half hours.

Starting from Chicago at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, you will reach the Dells at 1:30, or if you stop for luncheon in the excellent coffee room of the Hotel Loraine in Madison you will be at the Dells at 2 o'clock. Put in two hours of placid sightseeing there, which is ample for all except painters and geologists, and you can start back at 4 o'clock, comfortably reaching home at 9.

The only expenses are luncheon and supper at the Loraine, a dollar for the fourteen mile boat ride through the upper Dells, and half a dollar if you like, to the polite guide, Orville Stowers, who gives you a comprehensive booklet containing a map and twenty-six full page color pictures.

A Delicate Fairyland.

The Dells are not a sensational wonderland. There are no grim, breath taking glimpses as in the national parks of the far west. The Dells are more a delicate fairyland than a wonderland, and they are certainly the most poetic area of sylvan loveliness and serene waters within a day's motoring of Chicago. Their note is a placid beauty which takes an unforgetable hold on your imagination and your memory.

Those glacial waters that desecnded upon Wisconsin hundreds of thousands of years ago did their work with the delicacy of etchers. They carved out tiny gothic chapels which nature ages later hung with swaying altar cloths in which today botanists count thirty varieties of ferns and slender silver birches which the Germans call "the ladies of the forest" and cedars and red and white pine trees and lordly oaks.

Canyon Walls Bleached.

Age upon age the etching went on in these ten miles of narrow canyons that carry the waters of the Wisconsin river. Age after age the sun bleached canyon walls to white, and now they gleam for you like fairy battlements.

Then nature, with her etching tools of water and frost, waxed fantastic and decked the white battlements and the dark palisades with sandstone images of wall-eyed pike and hawks and stranded ships and eerie formations that men now call "devil's anvils" and such like fanciful names.

Then nature did a kindly thing. Near the waters edge of the fairy battlements she drilled deep holes which make to this day ideal homes for the cliff swallows. They come to the Dells about the first of May and depart for Brazil on or within a few hours of the 28th of August. The day that they line up, thousands of them, on the power line wires in the lower Dells, you can make up your mind that they are ready to go. The next day they are gone.

Other Wild Life Present.

Other wild life came to haunt, and still furtively haunts, these friendly Dells. They are deer, foxes, eagles, and walleyed pike that love the swift waters of a river which the Indians, with their genius for bestowing musical place names, called Wisconsin, which means "dark rushing water." The Winnebagoes called the Dells Neeh-ah-ke-coonah-er-ah, which means "place where the rocks strike together. And they do "strike together."

A side gorge called Coldwater canyon is only 6 feet wide and the water in it so deep and cold that there you can see your breath in July.

At another point called the Narrows, which is sentineled by red and white pines and lacy hemlocks and cedars, the water is from 100 to 150 feet deep, for here the channel is only 52 feet wide and has to carry the enormous volume of a river that, 4 miles above, is 1 mile wide.

The Dells are not a state park and hence there is no governmental control of the region. It is to the late George H. Crandall, an early lover and protector of the Dells, that we largely owe the boon that they are not a hideous litter of shacks, billbords, ferris wheels, and hurdy gurdies. He, and subsequently the Crandall estate, bought much land to protect the fairyland from blemish.

Charity Fund Poster

Chicago's charitable spirit, with outstretched hands, pleads for the aged, the crippled, the orphaned, the helpless in the posters adopted for the $3,550,000 campaign opening tomorrow night.

MRS. CUNEO DIES OF INJURIES IN HOSPITAL FALL

Mrs. Evelyn C. Cuneo, former Follies girl and wife of Lawrence A. Cuneo, 3800 Lake Shore drive, died yesterday of injuries suffered Friday evening when she fell or leaped from a third floor window of the North Chicago Community hospital, 2551 North Clark street.

Mrs. Cuneo was brought to the hospital Friday afternoon when she was rescued from the lake off Waveland avenue. She was suffering from shock. She told her rescuers that she accidentally fell into the water.

Mrs. Cuneo was 43 years old. She was known in the Follies as Evelyn Conway. Her husband, a broker, is a brother-in-law of Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney, and was his secretary when Crowe was in office. Mrs. Cuneo also is survived by a son, Lawrence A. Jr.

8TH COMMUNITY FUND CAMPAIGN OPENS TOMORROW

Two thousand volunteer workers are to meet in the Stevens hotel tomorrow night to start the eighth annual Community fund campaign. The goal is $3,550,000, with which the work of 175 private social agencies will be financed.

John Holmes, chairman of the industrial division, which will appeal to wage and salary earners, emphasized yesterday that these agencies do not duplicate work done by government relief administrations. Instead they concentrate on rehabilitation and the solving of family problems.

Among the speakers tomorrow night will be Ralph A. Bard, chairman of the campaign; Mayor Kelly, John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Edward L. Ryerson, president of the fund corporation, and Rawleigh Warner, chairman of the sponsors' division. The money raised will be shared by Jewish, Protestant, Catholic, and nondenominational organizations.

FREED WOMAN HELD SANE; GETS ESTATE OF $30,000

Mrs. Florence Hayes, 47 years old, 5648½ Harper avenue, was released from the Kankakee State hospital on a writ of habeas corpus on Thursday. Yesterday she was granted letters of administration giving her control of the $30,000 estate of her sister, Mrs. Cordelia Snyder of the Diversey Arms hotel. Mrs. Snyder died intestate on Sept. 19.

Judge Harry M. Fisher, who heard the evidence on the writ filed by Attorney Allan S. Jackson, held that Mrs. Hayes was sane and there was no legal reason for keeping her confined. Mrs. Hayes, a divorcée, had been in the hospital eighteen months. Judge John F. O'Connell of the Probate court granted the letters of administration.

New Building in 68 Chicago Suburbs During September Shows Gain Over Year Ago

Amount Last Month Falls Below August Figure.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Suburban building in September increased $617,643 over the corresponding month last year. This was shown in a survey of sixty-eight suburbs in the Chicago metropolitan area completed yesterday by the Greenebaum Investment company. Last month permits for buildings costing $3,081,477 were issued in these towns. In September, 1937, the total was $2,463,834.

Comparison of last month's total with that of the preceding month of August showed a decline of $1,138,959. This is not as bad as it seems, as during August there was unusual industrial, municipal, and church construction. Last month's total shows few items in those classifications.

Summer Building Gains.

At the mid-year suburban building was nearly $6,000,000 behind last year. The total from January to June this year, inclusive, was $12,580,096 and last year it was $18,455,686.

This difference has been reduced, however, by the increased building activity during July, August, and September, which this year produced $10,103,644 of new building. Last year for those months the total was $9,052,942. This is a gain this summer of more than a million dollars.

January	$ 2,039,871	$ 1,526,770
February	1,185,498	1,889,062
March	2,028,093	3,666,255
April	2,235,828	4,424,193
May	2,037,876	3,592,954
June	3,052,930	3,356,452
July	2,801,731	2,486,729
August	4,220,436	4,102,379
September	3,081,477	2,463,834
Total	$22,683,740	$27,508,628

Home Building Increases.

Home building in September increased over last year, but dropped from the total in August. The permits issued in September included 229 homes, with an estimated total cost of $1,676,892. In the corresponding month of last year the figures were 211 homes, which cost $1,424,392. The August, 1938, total was 303 homes to cost $1,779,329.

Lake Forest, where William O. Paape is building commissioner, led all communities last month in home construction by reporting two residences to cost $165,800. E. M. Goodman, building commissioner of Evanston, reported twelve homes to cost $152,300; Joe P. Guy of Hammond, twenty to cost $120,900, and Thomas G. Nason of Gary, twenty-one for $96,088.

Activity in Other Towns.

Other towns with good showings in home building were: Aurora, with five to cost $20,854; Berwyn, five, $33,500; Blue Island, four, $17,200; Brookfield, six, $30,800; Crete, four, $29,750; East Chicago, five, $19,500; Elgin, four, $26,075; Elmhurst, seven, $55,825; Elmwood Park, six, $38,250; Evergreen Park, ten, $50,000 Glencoe, four, $28,020; Hinsdale, three, $21,056; Homewood, four, $18,450, and La Grange Park, three, $23,500.

In Lansing five permits were issued for homes to cost $17,200; in Lombard, three, $15,615; Markham, nine, $39,800; Niles Center, three, $23,300; Palos Heights, five, $34,000; Park Ridge, five, $35,460; Prospect Heights, five, $27,500; River Forest, four, $52,000; Riverside, six, $42,750; Villa Park, four, $18,329; Western Springs, six, $46,065; Wheaton, three, $22,850; Wilmette, three, $53,600, and Winnetka, two, $36,550.

Calls Upturn Phenomenal.

Commenting on the September survey, Edgar N. Greenebaum, president of the Greenebaum Investment company, said:

"The demand for new homes and especially the upturn during the summer after months of slipping, is phenomenal. And yet this home demand grows in spite of general inaction by real estate and building industries which fail to tell the public through advertising that now is the time to build a home."

Home Building

Following is a comparison of home construction in 68 Chicago suburbs so far this year with the same months last year:

	1938. Homes.	1938. Value.	1937. Homes.	1937. Value.
Jan.	57	$ 486,965	102	$ 924,662
Feb.	84	690,010	100	1,256,452
April	203	1,349,926	311	2,415,706
August	303	1,779,329	239	1,674,217
	1,750	$12,208,315	1,981	$15,004,276

Although the year has had a decline in home building as compared with 1937, the above table shows that the downward trend was checked in July, August, and September, each of those summer months being better than last year. If the fall months of 1936 and 1937 indicate what will happen this year, home building should continue through the rest of year as actively as in the summer.

The extent of the improvement in home building is shown by that fact that in July, August, and September 785 homes were started which will cost $5,216,760. Last year in those months there were only 681 homes costing $4,523,663. The gain in both number and cost is 15 per cent.

MASS. MUTUAL MAKES $710,000 MIDWEST LOANS

Arthur J. Hayslett, regional manager for the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company of Springfield, Mass., reported yesterday loans aggregating $410,000 recently made. In addition, a $300,000 loan recently was negotiated through his office by Baird & Warner as a final step in the reorganization of the Allerton hotel.

Yesterday's loans included one for $35,000 at 4½ per cent to the Diversey Lincoln company, on the six story building at the southeast corner of Lincoln and Diversey, containing stores and apartments. This was a reorganization loan. Another for the same amount was made to Ernest G. Lambesis on the remodeled building at the northwest corner of 75th and Exchange. This was at 5 per cent.

A $140,000 loan at 4½ per cent was made to the Isaac Grossman department store, Muskegon, Mich., and a $150,000 loan to the Varsity Building company, Milwaukee, at the same rate. A loan of $50,000 was made at 4½ per cent to Lizzie B. Russell of Champaign, to remodel a theater.

Carpet Firm Renews Lease for 60,000 Square Feet

The Strauss-Rose Carpet corporation, manufacturer, agent, and distributor of Karagheusian carpets, occupying 60,000 square feet in the building at the northeast corner of Franklin and Monroe streets, has renewed its lease for five years. This property was owned by the trustees of the estate of Marshall Field until Oct. 1. On that date it was transferred to Marshall Field III.

South Side's Occupancy Is Less: Lorish

Occupancy in south side apartments is off about 1 per cent from May 1 records, according to Fred M. Lorish of Swan, Lorish & Caspers, Inc. A study of rental conditions following the Oct. 1 tenant shuffle discloses a spotty occupancy situation, he said.

In Hyde Park and Woodlawn occupancy improved. In the Kenwood, South Shore districts, and outlying territory, a drop in occupancy is recorded as compared with conditions on May 1.

Vacancies of 2.2 per cent, as compared with 3 per cent on May 1, and a low of 1.3 per cent in November, 1937, were reported this month for Hyde Park. In Woodlawn vacancies decreased from 5.3 per cent on May 1 to 4.7 per cent this month.

"In the South Shore district, however, a vacancy ratio of 7.2 per cent has developed," said Lorish. "This is 1.5 points higher than last June, when the ratio was 5.7 per cent."

Continued inquiry for apartments through this month, Lorish said, is resulting in a slight betterment of the situation. Rentals have held firm generally, with few changes.

EASTERN FIRM WILL MOVE ITS FACTORY HERE

Mason & Co., makers of gaming equipment, of Newark, N. J., are moving their entire manufacturing division to Chicago. Yesterday they leased the entire three story fireproof building, containing 46,000 square feet of floor space, at 320 South Honore street for ten years. The lease, which is for ten years at a reported term rental of $110,000, has an option to purchase. August E. Bredemeier and Pauline Bredemeier Cook are the lessors. Hart & Whetston represented all parties.

Report Loans Negotiated on Two Flat Buildings

Bisno & Bisno report having negotiated a $24,000 loan to the Schiff bondholders' committee on a master's certificate for five years at 5 per cent. The property is a twenty-two flat building at the southeast corner of Paulina and 82d. The same firm made a $25,000 loan for five years at 5½ per cent to the National Builders bank as trustee. The security is a thirty flat building at 851 Cornelia avenue.

All of Morton Building First Floor Space Rented

The Certified Silk Hosiery company has leased for a term of years the store at 114-116 North Wells street, in the Morton building. With the leasing of space for a lobby shop all of the ground floor is now rented, according to Edward J. Williamson of Ross, Browne & Fleming, manager of the building. Several new leases are reported on upper floors.

Father and Son Purchase Nineteen Flat Building

The nineteen apartment building at 8056-58 South Marshfield avenue was sold by the Trust Company of Chicago to Henry M. Witt and Henry M. Witt Jr., for an undisclosed price through Baird and Warner, and Edward O. Tudor.

At the Realty Boards

State Senator Thomas E. Keane, an attorney, will speak before the Oak Park real estate board tomorrow noon at the Oak Park Arms hotel. His subject will be "Review and Forecast of New Real Estate Laws." President Walter James will preside. S. O. Houser will be in charge of the program for the day.

SLUM PROPOSAL IS COMMENDED BY CHIEF OF FHA

McDonald Says It Is Big Step Toward Solution.

Stewart McDonald, national administrator of the Federal Housing administration, yesterday commended Chicagoans for proposing the "public service building corporation," first outlined in the Graphic section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on Aug. 14. McDonald, who came to Chicago to deliver an address on the FHA at the national mortgage bankers convention, said that his organization will be intensely interested in the proposal and will follow it closely.

"The proposal to attack the problems represented by slums and depreciated areas by the establishment of public service building corporations is a very interesting one," McDonald said. "From a preliminary examination it would appear to make a direct and considerable contribution toward the solution of these problems.

Slums Damage Cities.

"No one who has given any serious thought to the problems of housing and home financing as they are affected by city growth and the changes in the structure of our cities can escape the conclusion that our slums and run-down areas either will be rehabilitated or they will continue seriously to damage our cities, if they do not destroy them.

"The proposal is a novel one and involves a number of questions of public policy, as well as intricate matters of law. I should not want to express any opinion on its details until after I have had a chance to study it further. I don't hesitate to say, however, that the objective is a desirable one, and that the method of approach appears to me to have much merit.

Indicates Solution of Problem.

"The proposal signifies the increasing concern of intelligent leaders in this country over these problems. It is a symbol of the fact that they are going to be solved. The issues at stake are broad and important to the public and to local governments, as well as to the nation as a whole.

"The proposal to clothe corporations who attack these problems with the power of eminent domain [the right to condemn property] and the characteristics of recognized public utility corporations, represents a realistic approach to the assembly of large tracts of land, the ownership of which has been widely distributed.

"No plan for rehabilitation of slum areas can succeed unless it operates over a large area. In striking at this basic problem, therefore, the proposal is commendable."

Requires New Legislation.

The plan for the formation of public service building corporations, as first outlined in THE TRIBUNE, is a move to interest private enterprise in the clearance of slums. The program requires enactment of a law by the state legislature authorizing the chartering of privately financed "public service building corporations" that would have the power to condemn land needed for sites for big construction projects in designated slum areas only.

The program was originated by J. Soule Warterfield, vice president of Starrett Brothers and former head of the Chicago Real Estate board, Paul D. Angell, vice president of the realty board, and Arthur Kruggel, president of the board.

The Tungston Spark Plug Manufacturing company leased an entire floor at 1418 South Wabash avenue, containing 9,000 square feet. The building, which contains 110,000 square feet, is now completely rented, according to Hogan & Farwell, agents.

A DRAMATIC CAVALCADE OF VALUES!

A sale held in honor of our founder, Charles Netcher, the far-sighted Chicago merchant whose sole aim was to give Chicagoans a store where GOOD merchandise was always LOWER priced. How well he succeeded is evidenced by the millions of customers whose purchases have built an INSTITUTION out of a small, two-story dry goods store. His creed has lived long after him. It is still the ideal of our buyers, who have been in the markets for months seeking and searching for the most EXTRAORDINARY VALUES. The European war situation and a backward season combined to make possible many unusual purchases. We pass these exceptional savings on to you!

Northwestern, braked down by forward pass interceptions and its opponent's sturdy defense when its goal was threatened, was held to a scoreless tie in Dyche stadium yesterday by Ohio State, one of the major muscular teams of the year.

The outcome was decided on the first play of the second quarter when Jack Ryan, Northwestern's brilliant half back, was held for downs on the Buckeyes' 5 yard line. It was almost a duplicate of the situation at Columbus a year ago when Ohio stopped Don Heap inches short of a first down on the 4 yard line.

Northwestern's first Big Ten contest attracted a crowd of 35,000, among whom were Bing Crosby and George Raft of movie fame.

Wildcats Are Superior.

Save for the score, the only thing that counts, the Wildcats were the superior team. Star after star blazed in the back field. Star after star shone in the line. It had a fine starting lineup and reserves equally brilliant.

Ohio State's offense was limited to one scintillating play that sprang Jim Strausbaugh, sophomore back from Chillicothe, O., loose for a fifty-eight yard run in the third quarter. It was a reverse that struck outside Northwestern's left tackle.

Strausbaugh was picking his way through the Wildcats' secondary before some of the defensive players knew where the lightning had struck. It appeared for a moment that the flying Buckeye would outdistance his pursuers, but Ryan grabbed him by the sweater on Northwestern's 35 yard line and George McGurn forced him out of bounds on the 31 yard line.

Northwestern, which had dominated the play up to that time, never recovered from that fifty-eight yard sprint. The Wildcats were on the defensive the rest of the way.

Fumble Away Chance.

Ohio State's drive on the Purple's goal collapsed shortly after Strausbaugh's run when Frank Zadworney's fumble was recovered by John Haman of Northwestern on the latter's 13 yard line.

The Wildcats made sixteen first downs to the Buckeyes' six. They outstatisticked Ohio in every depart-

BUCKEYES HEAD OFF A WILDCAT BALL CARRIER

With the goal line just a few steps away Bernie Jefferson, Northwestern half back, attempts to get around the Ohio State end. The Buckeyes closed in on him, however, and brought him down on the five yard line. This occurred just before the end of the first quarter. A few plays later the Wildcats lost the ball on downs and were never able to threaten so seriously again. The game ended 0 to 0.

Wisconsin Is Routed, 26-6, by Panthers

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 15.—The Pitt Panther is a ferocious fellow. Wisconsin's Badgers, rated the best cardinal clad aggregation of many seasons, discovered that much this afternoon. The Panthers riddled their foes with a power house attack for a 26 to 6 victory before 26,197 spectators who came prepared for rain but not for a shower of enemy touchdowns.

The Badgers made their big flash early in the struggle, then subsided gradually before a superior foe. For a few thrilling minutes in the first period the cardinal jerseys were filled with mad men. They swept from their own territory deep into the Pitt zone only to have the bubble burst when the Panthers refused to concede even an inch in four downs, thus ending the surge on the 16 yard line. That was the closest the Badgers ever came to the Panther goal except in the last ten seconds, when they connected with a touchdown pass.

Badgers Pile Up 1st Downs.

The Panthers, having fought off the early Badger drive, began to get under way in the second period. From their 35 yard line they hiked their way to the Wisconsin goal, two reverse plays which apparently staggered their foes featuring the march. They scored again in the third quarter by intercepting a pass which the desperate Badgers had turned loose from their own end zone. Then in the fourth quarter the Badgers fell apart and the Panthers scored twice, once when John Chickerneo sprinted 72 yards from a punt formation and again when Bob Thurbon, after catching a pass, dashed seventy yards.

Although their line was pretty well riddled while defending, the Badgers at least had the consolation of knowing they rendered a few lessons to their opponents while on attack. Proof of this is that Wisconsin piled up sixteen first downs to ten by the Panthers. But the Badgers didn't have the extra punch when they neared the enemy goal. In an attempt to offset this deficiency the Cardinals threw twenty-three passes. Only seven were completed and three were intercepted with damaging effect. Pitt passed only three times and the one they completed blossomed into a touchdown.

Badgers Launch Attack.

The Badgers opened the struggle with an attack that for a few minutes had the Panthers bewildered. On an exchange of punts after the initial kickoff the Badgers went into action on their own 41 yard line. Bellin swung to his left for four yards. Weiss crashed through the line for a first down on Pitt's 49 yard mark. Schmitz hammered right tackle. In two assaults Weiss backed

IOWA DEFEATS CHICAGO, 27 TO 14; FIRST BIG 10 VICTORY SINCE 1935

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Iowa's hungry Hawkeyes, grown gaunt and lean on a starvation diet of Big Ten victories for three years, yesterday afternoon gorged themselves with a 27 to 14 triumph over Chicago's Maroons on Stagg field. It was the first conference decision for the Iowans since they defeated Illinois in Champaign in 1935.

The contest, which presumably was for the cellar championship of the league, a title held jointly by both last season, was conducted in extreme privacy. A crowd of 4,000, about one-fourth of it Hawkeye enthusiasts, was present.

The happy victors made no gluttons of themselves in their touchdown feast. They savored it in orderly portions of one touchdown to the quarter. Ed McLain went over for the first score after five minutes of play. Ray Murphy added another early in the second period, and Jerry Niles, leader of the Iowa attack, contributed another at the outset of the third. Murphy then served the fourth helping in the final quarter.

Speedy Davenport Scores.

The Maroon touchdowns were scored by John Davenport, native Iowan and Big Ten sprint champion, and Remy Meyer, late of Hinsdale High school. Both took passes from Capt. Lew Hamity, who is hereby recommended as one of the best pitchers in the conference. His second quarter pass to Davenport was a forty-nine yard fling, duplicating the same combination's touchdown coup against Michigan.

The dormant power of which the Hawkeyes had been suspected revealed itself, not only in its own right, but also through the obvious weakness of Chicago's sophomore forward wall. On the other hand, Iowa showed itself inept on pass defense.

Iowa made fifteen first downs, thirteen of them from scrimmage, while eight of the Maroons' ten first downs were reaped from passes. The passing of Hamity and Solly Sherman accounted for 190 of the 253 yards Chicago gained. The Hawkeyes harvested a total of 275 yards, 265 of them on running plays. Of this total, Niles, carrying the ball thirty-one times, contributed 143. Chicago attempted thirty-two passes and completed thirteen, while Iowa, trying four, connected on one and had the other three intercepted.

Hawkeyes Score Early.

The Hawkeyes scored their first touchdown after five minutes of play. It was the result of a weak Chicago punt and a thirty-nine yard drive in which McLain and Niles contributed most of the yardage. The Maroons received the kickoff, and a third down punt by Meyer wandered out of bounds on his 39 yard stripe. The Hawkeyes drove to the Maroon 9 yard line, but here they drew an offside penalty and McLain was halted. Eicherly then romped around his left end to the 4 yard mark, after which McLain went over for the touchdown. Niles made good the extra point by placement.

Shortly before the end of the first period Busk returned a Maroon punt ten yards to his 38 yard line. Here Murphy replaced Eicherly and joined with Niles and Kinnick in hammering the Chicago line, until Murphy, back of good blocking, came around his left end and finally fell over the goal line for a touchdown, with two Maroons aboard him. It was an eleven yard run. Niles again place kicked the point.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The most dangerous running attack exhibited by Fordham in six years piled up a total gain of 419 yards against Purdue today, but the Rams were prodigal in wasting opportunities and the Boilermakers held them to a 6 to 6 tie at the Polo grounds.

It was a strangely fluctuating game that the 32,000 spectators witnessed in baseball weather of almost midsummer heat. Led by the brilliant sophomore half back, Len Eshmont, the New Yorkers gained 251 yards by rushing in the first half without scoring, falling short of a score by an inch and again by a yard in the second quarter.

The second half was hardly more than a minute under way when Eshmont broke through left tackle, cut to the other side and sprinted fifty yards for a touchdown. Pete Holovak failed to kick the extra point.

But the Tide Turns.

The complexion of the game took a startling change following Eshmont's run and from then on Purdue was in command, putting across the tying touchdown in the fourth period against a stubborn Fordham defense.

Lou Brock was the man who caused the Rams the most trouble. Outstanding throughout the game, with his work on both the offense and defense and his kicking, the 185 pound half back carried the ball almost single handedly to the Rams' 27 yard line late in the third quarter, and he took the ball on a lateral from Jack Brown for a six yard dash around right end to score at the end of a thirty-seven yard advance in the fourth quarter.

The crowd, which earlier had had visions of a Fordham victory, sat in fear as Brock set himself for the kick after touchdown. His effort failed, and so Fordham got out of it with a tie. In the closing minutes of play Eshmont broke loose on a twenty-six yard run which ended when Mike Byelene pulled him down from behind on Purdue's 40 yard line.

Purdue Defense Strong in Crisis.

Despite Fordham's offensive superiority, the Boilermakers deserved the compensation of a draw for the superb goal line stands they made in the second quarter and for the fire and courage with which they came back in the second half. Neither team had much success overhead, Fordham completing only one pass out of seven for a gain of three yards and Purdue two out of eight for twenty-two yards.

After being held in their own territory for most of the opening quarter, the New Yorkers took the ball on their 11 yard line and went to Purdue's 26, where Brock intercepted Kazlo's pass.

Fordham then came back to Purdue's 23 yard line, where it lost the ball on downs.

Fordham Starts Again.

After Brock had kicked out Fordham started again from its 43 yard line, was set back ten yards by two penalties and then marched to within an inch of a score. With the ball on the 5 yard line Purdue put on its first great stand. Principe made three

TWO GOPHER PASSES DEFEAT MICHIGAN IN LAST PERIOD, 7-6

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 15.—Michigan and Minnesota tore up the form charts this afternoon. For today, after Michigan power had ripped through the burly Gopher line in a magnificent touchdown drive, Minnesota's passes and prayers whipped the Wolverines, 7 to 6, in the closing minutes of the final quarter.

By the margin of George Faust's place kick for the point, Minnesota won its fifth consecutive victory over the Wolverines and its ninth in the series of twenty-nine games. That point was complement to the ten yard touchdown pass from Harold Van Every to Wilbur Moore.

As the ball arched over the cross bar carrying its promise of victory, the throng of 55,000 homecomers burst forth in a Niagara of sound. The thousands paid tribute to their gridiron heroes.

Many today remembered other brilliant battles in this series, in which the Gophers had battered the Wolverines but had been beaten by sudden rally. Today Minnesota was outrushed and outpassed. But today Minnesota won a victory doubly satisfying because it was by one point.

Wolverines March 89 Yards.

The Wolverines completely dominated the contest after a scoreless first half. They marched eighty-nine yards for a touchdown and in that offense proved superiority with a hard charging line and with brilliant running backs.

So when Dan Smick, place kicking for the point after Paul Kromer had thrust through Minnesota's left tackle for two yards and a touchdown, drove the ball low and into the line, no one could know that within five minutes this failure would provide the margin of the Wolverine defeat.

In this Michigan march, composed of twenty-one plays, the Wolverines compiled six first downs. Their varied attack, power drives inside the tackles, delayed plunges, and fast reverses had the mark of expert workmanship. And after this drive, Michigan again moved steadily toward the Gophers' goal.

Then unexpectedly Minnesota was reprieved. Tom Harmon, greatest of the Michigan backs, fumbled in midfield. Perhaps Harmon should not be charged, with a fumble, for as he finished a slashing run of ten yards at tackle he was dropped unconscious by a vicious tackle by Moore.

Then Gophers Attack.

Harmon went limp and the ball rolled a yard forward. It was recovered by Van Every on Minnesota's 49 yard line. Michigan took time out and Harmon was revived and left the game.

Moore's tackle signaled the attack. Moore, who later was carried from the field with a badly sprained ankle after he had scored the Minnesota touchdown; Van Every, who threw the two passes which brought victory, and the mighty Larry Buhler led the charge.

Van Every was most important. He was given permission by his physician to enter the game if there was opportunity for him to pass. He had received a side injury in the Washington game, didn't leave the sidelines until the last minute of the first half, and had been substituted only a minute before Harmon fumbled. He passed and those two passes answered Minnesota's prayers.

Buhler broke through the line on Minnesota's first play and was dropped on Michigan's 37 yard line. Moore followed with a yard on a sweep. On the next play Bill Johnson, Minnesota sophomore end, was convicted of holding and the ball went back to the Minnesota 49 yard line. The next play erased the penalty and it was Johnson who caught Van Every's long pass.

That Long Pass.

The pass was perfectly executed. Van Every swept wide to his right across the field. His long run decoyed the Michigan secondary and under cover of that sweep Johnson, from left end, raced down field. Then Van Every stopped, whirled, and threw across the gridiron. The pass was long, but Johnson, who had gone deep, was forced to wait for it.

Fred Trosko, Michigan's defensive right half, might have reached Johnson, but as he sprinted he slipped and fell. Johnson received the ball and ran down the sideline for fifteen yards more until he was caught on Michigan's 13 yard line.

Buhler made two yards. Moore tried Michigan's right end and Trosko hit him on the 10 yard line, hit him so hard that he himself was stretched unconscious and then carried from the field.

It was third down, ten yards from the goal. Again Van Every took the ball, ran wide and outside Michigan's left tackle. As Moore raced ahead, seemingly for interference, Van Every faded back a step and at full speed tossed the ball over the heads of two tacklers to Moore.

Faust Kicks Winning Point.

Moore took the pass in stride, beat one defender in a run to the corner of the end zone, and went down

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 15.—Illinois made that all time first visit to Notre Dame today, came out with the short end of a 14 to 6 score, went home with the satisfaction of a battle well fought, and the first points an Illinois football team ever scored on Notre Dame any time, any place.

The game was a dashing affair, though it did not produce the fancy razzle dazzles, dipsey doodles, and other trick stuff some of the 42,000 expected to see. It was an open contest, but not screwy. Notre Dame scored in the fifth minute on a thirty-five yard pass, Harry Stevenson to Earl Brown, and again in the seventh minute of the third period on Ben Sheridan's sixty-eight yard return of a punt.

Fumbles Stymie Irish.

Ralph Ehni scored for Illinois in the ninth minute of the third period after John Kirschke had blocked and recovered Stevenson's punt on Notre Dame's 1 yard line.

Both sides had anticipated a higher score. And the score might have been much bigger, too, had there not been a veritable epidemic of fumbles. It was perhaps fortunate for the Illini that fumbles played a big part in things, for seven of the eight fumbles were made by Notre Dame, mostly at times when the Irish seemed about ready to hang numbers on the scoreboard.

Illini's Best Friend Is Whistle.

Statistics of the game bear out the visual impression that Notre Dame deserved the victory by a somewhat more extensive margin than the highly adequate eight points difference in the final score. For instance, Notre Dame, with all the fumble curse, made fifteen first downs to nine for the Illini, gained 335 yards from scrimmage to 152 by the Illini. The Irish made 264 yards from rushing to 70 by the boys from Champaign.

For what had been advertised as a probable aerial circus, the tabulations on forward passing were indeed skimp. Notre Dame made forty-six yards from passes, Illinois thirty-seven. Illinois gained more yards on penalties than on passes, they being nudged along forty-five yards in their offensive by the tooting of official whistles.

Illini Get Two Thrills.

Illinois' big thrill, though it had only a consolation quality, was scoring on Notre Dame for the first time in history. The score didn't come until Notre Dame had made its first two touchdowns in history off Illinois and there was a groan when the

YALE WAITS TILL SECOND HALF TO BEAT NAVY, 9-7

Gil Humphrey Is Hero of Belated Attack.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Sparked by Gil Humphrey, Yale's twice beaten football team today put on a second half rally that beat heavily favored Navy, 9 to 7, before 55,000 in Yale bowl.

All of Yale's scoring was packed into that second half. The first half was a two sided exhibition of inconclusive attacks and feeble defenses. Its lone bright spot was a forward pass from Lem Cooke to Ulmont Whitehead that covered forty-one yards and, with Emmett Wood's successful conversion, gave Navy a 7 to 0 lead.

Humphrey had been considerably less than sensational for those thirty minutes. But he came back in the last half to figure in twenty of Yale's thirty plays. He set up the touchdown with passes and line bucks, tossing a short pass to full back Bill Snavely for the score. Then he kicked the winning field goal from Navy's 17 yard line.

In the final minutes Cooke's passes brought Navy down to Yale's 9 yard line, and Wood tried a field goal from the 15 but he fell short of the mark. Lineups:

ARMY BEATS HARVARD.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The Army made a desperate bid through the air in the dying moments of its game with Harvard today to enable the Cadets to outscore a revived Crimson eleven, 20 to 17. A crowd of 45,000 saw the game.

Harvard's hopes of victory seemed about to be realized late in the fourth quarter when Clarence Boston kicked a placement to break a 14 to 14 tie and put the Crimson into the lead. But only a few moments later the Cadets clicked on a long pass. The ball, hurled by Half Back Charley Long from behind his 21 yard line, found the arms of Woodie Wilson at midfield. Wilson ran to Harvard's 2 inch line before he was overtaken. Long sneaked through left guard on the next play for the touchdown.

Harvard scored first in the second quarter on a pass from Frank Foley to Don Daughters. When play was resumed in the second half the Army struck back with a twenty-five yard march which tied the score, Frontczak going over.

This was followed quickly by another Harvard score, by Torbert MacDonald on a pass from Bob James. West Point elected to receive, and Frontczak took the ball on his 19 yard line, from where he ran eighty-one yards to a touchdown. After Boston's placement, a forward pass by Harvard deep in Army's zone was intercepted by Long on his 2 yard line and carried to the Cadets' 20. A rush was good for only one yard, whereupon Long heaved the tremendous pass to Wilson. The lineups:

NORTH CAROLINA WINS.

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Jim Lalanne, North Carolina back field star, didn't do his well known stuff today, but a former Fordham prep school star named George Stirnweiss did and the southerners made it three in a row over New York university, 7 to 0, before 15,000 in Yankee stadium.

North Carolina took a kick on New York's 37 yard line and pushed the ball across in three plays. Full Back Jack Kraynick ran to the 20 yard line. Here Stirnweiss passed twenty yards to George Radman, who was behind the goal posts. Steve Maronic came through with the extra point.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Columbia, which had inspired hopes of another Rose Bowl assignment with victories over Yale and Army, was beaten today by Colgate's Red Raiders, 12 to 0, before 30,000.

The game had been in progress only a few moments before it was apparent that the Raiders had not only superior man power but were set and ready for the Lions. Colgate scored its first touchdown in the second period and its second in the first five minutes of the fourth. The first was on a drive that carried eighty-five yards and the second was on a brilliant run by Howard Herman after an interception of a Sid Luckman pass.

Luckman Is Stopped.

Against Army the great passing of Luckman had pulled the Lions through, but today Luckman was not only rushed by Colgate's fast charging linemen, but his receivers for the most part were completely bottled up by alert Colgate secondaries. He completed six out of seventeen, however.

Colgate backs were continually battering Columbia's line and sweeping the ends. The passes of Hal Lube, were far more effective than Luckman's. It was Lube's brilliance that paved the way for the initial Colgate score which came when Joe Hoague, the Raiders' fast 190 pound full back, went over left guard.

HEADING FOR A BREAK IN THE IRISH LINE

Cliff Peterson, Illinois half back, starts a charge into the Notre Dame line. He gained five yards on this play, which occurred in the second quarter of yesterday's game at Notre Dame. A crowd of 45,000 gathered to watch this engagement, which was won by Notre Dame, 14 to 6. The Irish scored on a 35 yard pass, Harry Stevenson to Earl Brown, and on a 68 yard punt return by Ben Sheridan.

St. John's Runs Over Steinmetz High, 25 to 0

Delafield, Wis., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—An imporved St. John's Military academy football team defeated Steinmetz High school of Chicago this afternoon, 25 to 0. St. John's scored first in the second quarter when Anderson took the ball for a touchdown from the 1 yard line. Potter scored in the same period on an end run. Just before the half ended Potter threw a forward pass to Keller, the end, and ran around him in time to catch a lateral for another touchdown. Anderson scored the last touchdown in the fourth quarter and place kicked the extra point.

SYRACUSE'S LATE RALLY CONQUERS CORNELL, 19-17

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Syracuse came from behind with a story book finish today to conquer Cornell, 19 to 17, before a crowd of 25,000.

Its attack smothered by the huge Cornell line, Syracuse's every advance was checked for three periods. With nine minutes of play remaining it was shut out, 10 to 0. The Orange finally broke through with seven minutes left, only to have Ken Brown of Cornell return the next kickoff ninety-two yards for a touchdown, which seemed to wipe out the the final Syracuse hope.

Syracuse Goes to Work.

And then the storm broke—through the air. Wilmeth Sidath-Singh, who had given the Orange its first touchdown on three successful passes of 14, 11, and 19 yards, tossed two aerials good for 69 yards and another touchdown.

Lining up in a single wing to the right, Ruth took the pass from center, handed it to Sidat-Singh and went out in the flat to the left, where he took a pass for a first down on the 27. Syracuse repeated the play and Ruth scored. Bruett's placement failed.

Sidat-Singh Again.

The winning play again found Sidat-Singh the hero, but it was alertness on the part of Phil Allen that set the stage for the deciding touchdown.

Vince Eichler, plunging off tackle for Cornell, attempted a lateral as he was being tackled. Allen intercepted and Syracuse took possession on the 30. One play was all that the Orange required. Allen sneaked to the left flat and Sidat-Singh hurled a pass over Peck's head. Allen juggled the ball on the 5, but managed to retain it and raced over.

COE DEFEATS CORNELL, 13-12, ON LEINS' KICK

Mount Vernon, Ia., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The Coe college eleven defeated Cornell this afternoon, 13 to 12, before a Cornell homecoming throng. A successful place kick by Leins of Coe after the first touchdown proved to be the deciding margin in this Midwest conference game between old rivals.

Accepting a punt early in the game on its 25 yard line, Coe marched to a touchdown. Only a minute elapsed before Torquist passed to Wilson in the end zone for Cornell's first touchdown, but the attempted kick for point failed.

Coe scored in the second period on a pass from Cisler to Elslager in the end zone, but failed to make the point and led, 13 to 6, at the half.

After driving into scoring position frequently during the last half, Cornell finally blocked a Coe punt deep in Coe's territory and Wilson fell on the ball behind the goal line for a touchdown. The place kick for the extra point was wide.

Notre Dame Defeats Illinois, 14-6, on Pass and 68 Yard Run

point wasn't added. Next to the scoring, thrill was afforded by the fact that a lame Illini made the longest run of the game. Phil Pezzoli, late in the third quarter, intercepted a Notre Dame pass on his own 10 yard line and ran along his left side line to Notre Dame's 8 yard line.

Though this heroic eighty-two yard trip had no bearing on the score, it supplied plenty of excitement for both sides. Pezzoli got through the worst of his trip aided by spectacular blocking and apparently had easy sailing in the last thirty yards to the goal line, only to be overtaken and pulled down on a lightning dash by Steve Sitko.

The Nifties Don't Produce.

Notre Dame's slickest work did not harvest any acorns. The first touchdown, the one which was enough to win, was a routine toss which carried no deception. Brown made a nice stab to get the ball, but otherwise the score was mostly an item in Illinois' already established weakness on pass defense.

Notre Dame's second touchdown was an individual sparkle that reflected no Notre Dame artistry except on the wiliness of the little man who made it, Master Sheridan of Havana, Ill., which is 85 miles from the Champaign campus. He got some blocking, but wiggling and acceleration were his main weapons.

The Illini were quick enough to take advantage of the situation which was set up when Kirschke blocked Stevenson's punt. Ehni went over center for the touchdown on the first play. His effort to kick the point was blocked.

Sheridan Has Big Day.

All Notre Dame's principal ball toters were about equal on yardage from scrimmage, but stellar honors on ground coverage should be handed to Sheridan, especially on his punt returns. Here are Ben's individual statistics:

Punt returns—123 yards; average, 31 yards.
Lateral passes—One attempt netted 3 yards.
Rushing—29 yards in six attempts; average, 5 yards.
Total [rushing, lateral, punt returns]—155 yards in 11 trips; average, 14 yards.

That early Irish touchdown, which seemed to stun the Illini for a spell, really budded because Illinois wasn't willing to take hold of a high punt. The ball bounced toward the goal and rolled to Illinois' 2 yard line where it was downed by Brown. George Rettinger lost no time getting the ball out of there. He kicked a low hard one to Sitko, who fumbled after returning seven yards. Lou Zontini recovered for Notre Dame on Illinois' 35 yard line.

Brown Eludes Peterson.

After Zontini gained two yards, Stevenson lost them on the second play. Stevenson then faded back on an elemental pass maneuver and threw straight ahead of him to Brown, who snatched the ball as it was about to pass him and Cliff Peterson, who vainly sought to cover Brown. Stevenson kicked the extra point from placement.

Illini partisans got their first real chance to holler quite a few minutes after the Notre Dame touchdown. Zontini had swept his left end for a twenty-one yard sprint to Notre Dame's 49 yard line and things weren't so cheerful in the Illini cheering section. After the Zontini gallop, however, Stevenson fumbled. Sitko recovered, but, after two plays good for four yards, Stevenson's pass bounced out of Brown's hands into the arms of Jay Wardley. Wardley returned twenty yards to Notre Dame's 34 yard line.

This Illinois rally paused but revived shortly afterward when Capt. Jim McDonald recovered Stevenson's fumble on Notre Dame's 27 yard line. Illinois drove hard for a first down, but, though aided by an offside penalty on Notre Dame, couldn't quite make the yardage. When Bob Wehrli failed to make a yard on fourth down, Notre Dame took the ball on its 18 yard line.

This stand by the Irish and subsequent gains which included a thirteen yard run by Stevenson and a ten yard dash by Zontini got the ball to the center of the field. There were no scoring threats in the remainder of the quarter.

The first thrill of the scoreless second quarter was a twenty-four yard return of a punt by Sheridan. This was something of a warm up for the second touchdown of the game. Sheridan got some more sprinting practice later for his third period touchdown, when, after an Illinois fumble had been recovered by Notre Dame on the Illini's 29 yard line, the Havana lad raced fifteen yards around his right end.

Heat Tires Boys.

Fumbling again switched progress when Ed Simonich fumbled and Jim Phillips recovered for Illinois on his 13 yard line. Illinois was forced to punt and presently Notre Dame was back on Illinois' 12 yard line. But there was another fumble and Tom Riggs recovered on his 21 yard line. The half ended shortly after this fumble, with Notre Dame leading, 7 to 0.

Each side scored in the third period and Pezzoli made that eighty-two yard run in the span, as previously related.

With all their replacements, the players seemed pretty well tuckered by the hot weather, the running and hard blocking and charging by the time the fourth quarter rolled around. There wasn't even the usual panic passing in the final period.

GEO. WASHINGTON BEATS COLORADO ELEVEN, 13 TO 0

Boulder, Colo., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Scoring in the first and fourth periods, George Washington university's Colonials defeated Colorado university, 13 to 0, before 8,000 fans today to keep their goal line uncrossed and their undefeated record intact. It was Colorado's third straight loss.

WABASH AND EARLHAM PLAY TO 0-0 DEADLOCK

Crawfordsville, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Wabash and Earlham played to a scoreless tie this afternoon on Ingalls field. Neither team appeared to have an advantage in line play. Crocket of Wabash and Ortwein of Earlham put on an even punting duel.

PRINCETON WINS OVER PENN, 13-0, ON PASS AND RUN

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Two spectacular plays—each good for half the length of the field—carried Princeton to a 13 to 0 victory over Pennsylvania today while a crowd of 35,000 waited in vain for the Quakers to show their heralded might.

Then, after bottling up Penn's power and passes with an efficiency that seemed too good to last, Princeton scored again on Capt. Tom Mountain's fifty-six yard run in the last 35 seconds of play.

Penn, in a last desperate march, came on fast with John Dutcher making sizeable gains. The drive stopped abruptly when Ashby Harper intercepted a pass on Princeton's 44 yard line. Only seconds were left to play when Mountain spun through the heavy Penn line, feinted the secondaries, and raced fifty-six yards. Lineup:

PENN STATE, 59; LEHIGH, 6.

Bethlehem, Pa., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Lehigh's football team suffered its most crushing defeat in the history of the long series with Penn State, losing, 59 to 6, today, before 10,000. The Nittany Lion started the touchdown parade in the first period and scored in every quarter thereafter.

State, in possession of the ball most of the time, punted only three times in the entire game. The Lions relied almost exclusively on a running attack, going to the air on only three occasions to complete one pass.

DARTMOUTH, 34; BROWN, 13.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Dartmouth's eleven overcame an unbeaten Brown team, 34 to 13, and stretched its undefeated string to 19 games today.

Brown, by far the strongest opponent Dartmouth has met this season, held its own in the first period and completely surprised the Green when it scored in four plays after the kickoff. Dartmouth tied the score at 7 to 7 early in the second quarter as Howie Nopper, who started his first game at quarter back today, took a pass from Bill Hutchinson in the end zone.

Dartmouth was back at the Brown goal line a few minutes later, and Capt. Bob MacLeod threw a pass to Bill Hutchinson for Dartmouth's second touchdown. Hutchinson added the point. Tom Nash, Brown left end, came back in the same period to make his second touchdown of the afternoon and Brown's last. Failure to add the point left Brown trailing, 14 to 13, at the half.

Two more touchdowns by Hutchinson on a sweep around end and on a pass from MacLeod, and a sixty-three yard sprint by Colby Howe with points after touchdowns by Hutchinson and Gibson accounted for the rest of the Dartmouth total.

MANHATTAN WINS, 20-7.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Manhattan college defeated Providence 20 to 7, today, scoring twice in the second period and once in the final quarter.

Creighton tied it up in the third period on Engelbretson's catch of a pass from Knolla.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Nebraska and Indiana played a scoreless tie today before 31,000 victory starved Cornhusker partisans. The Nebraska eleven, showing vast improvement over its play against Iowa State last week, drove deep into Indiana territory several times, but was never able to produce the necessary scoring punch.

Indiana played a defensive game most of the afternoon, never penetrating deeper than Nebraska's 32 yard line. After the Cornhusker offense had bogged on four occasions, Herman Rohrig attempted three field goals. The temperature ranging close to 90 made it necessary to substitute frequently.

Callihan Nearly Gets Away.

Bill Callihan, Nebraska full back, provided the chief offensive gesture, at the start of the second half when he took Frank Mikan's short kickoff and returned fifty-one yards before Vincent Oliver pulled him down from behind. Oliver was the last Hoosier with a chance at the 200 pound back.

Rohrig, sophomore back, was the most consistent ground gainer on either team.

Penalties were a factor in stopping the Husker offense. One forward pass from Harry Hopp to Rohrig was good for forty-one yards, but the play was called back for an offside penalty.

Both teams were punishing opposing tackles with cut back throughout the game. Robert Haak and Russell Sloss were the defensive standouts for the Hoosiers, while Nebraska's Charley Brock and Callihan stopped many of Indiana's best offensive thrusts.

Huskers Have Edge.

Nebraska had an advantage in statistics with five first downs to four, and in net yards gained, 121 to 59.

Fumbles proved costly to Indiana. On two of the four occasions when the Hoosiers let the ball get away, Nebraska recovered it. But the scoring punch was lacking. Nebraska had a first down on Indiana's 10 yard line in the third period, but could get no closer than the 5 yard line.

JANNAZZO AND EDER FIGHT TO 15 ROUND DRAW

HAMBURG, Germany, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Izzy Jannazzo of New York and Gustave Eder, German welterweight champion, battled to a fifteen round draw tonight in a fight in Hanseaten hall. Eder was seeking revenge for a 1936 defeat by Jannazzo.

Jannazzo piled up a considerable advantage over Eder through the first seven rounds, using a fast left to keep Eder away. The German began connecting with powerful rights to the head and body after the seventh, however.

The decision was unpopular with the crowd which, attracted by Jannazzo's flashy boxing style, felt the American should have been awarded the victory. Eder left the ring with a badly swollen face. Jannazzo's nose was bleeding as the fight ended.

Among the 10,000 spectators was Max Schmeling, making his first public appearance since his one round knockout by Joe Louis in New York last summer. He received an ovation.

The Hawkeyes won, 27 to 14, thereby earning their first Western conference victory since 1935. After Iowa had taken a 14 to 0 lead the Maroons scored to make the count 14 to 7 at the half, but in the third quarter the Hawkeyes drew away and were never threatened thereafter.

cago discovered the Hawkeyes' weakness against passes, and completed a march of sixty-three yards to Iowa's 17 yard mark, where they yielded the ball on downs. Kinnick then quick kicked, Sherman returning to Chicago's 46 yard line. Hamity passed to Littleford, who was downed on the Iowa 49 yard mark. On the next play, Hamity rifled the ball to Davenport, who caught it on Iowa's 5 yard line and traveled on to a touchdown. Littleford's dropkick for the extra point was partly blocked, but it was good.

A Maroon pass on the second play of the third quarter was intercepted by Busk, who returned 21 yards to the Maroon 24 yard mark. From there only six plays, featuring McLain and Niles, were required for the third Iowa touchdown, Niles going over from the 1 yard line. Chicago responded by going to the Hawkeye 10 yard stripe, where it lost the ball on downs. High point of this march was a twenty-four yard run by Davenport to the Iowa 28 yard line.

Iowa Scores Again.

Early in the fourth period a forty-eight yard punt return by Busk planted the ball on the Maroon 22 yard line. Niles then took the ball to the Chicago 5 yard mark in three plays, but the Hawkeyes were given a holding penalty, and on the next play Hamity intercepted a pass by Niles. Murphy then delivered Iowa's fourth touchdown after a fifty-three yard parade. An offside set the Hawkeyes back to their 47 yard line, but Eicherly, Busk, and Niles teamed to bring the ball down to the Chicago 12 yard mark, from where Murphy smashed over his left guard and then cut back for the touchdown.

After the kickoff the Maroons scored their second touchdown with another fancy passing demonstration which ended when Hamity tossed a pass to Meyer, standing in the end zone. Littleford fielded passes from Sherman and Hamity for a first down on his 37 yard line. A lateral, Hamity to Sherman, and a forward from Sherman to Meyer was ruled complete on the Iowa 34 yard mark. After another passed failed Hamity tossed his touchdown effort. Valorz place kicked the extra point.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Jean Borotra, veteran French star, won the British covered courts tennis title for the ninth time today when he defeated D. W. Butler, member of the British Davis cup squad, 6-0, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, in the final at Queen's club.

Normal Beats Macomb, 19-0, in Last Half

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Illinois State Normal turned on its power in the last two periods, scoring three touchdowns to defeat Macomb Teachers, 19 to 0, today.

Midway in the third period Normal started its scoring attack from its 36 yard line. Luke Gleason passed to Joe Vucich for nineteen yards and then ran twenty yards to the Macomb 25 yard line. Boice Bess, reserve back, plunged to the 15 yard line, repeated to the 7 and followed with a drive over left guard for the first touchdown. A pass, Gleason to Vucich, accounted for the extra point.

A few minutes later Bess intercepted a pass and ran thirty-five yards to the Macomb 15 yard line. An end around play with Myron Heintzman carrying the ball was stopped one yard shy of the goal. Bess went over on the next play for his second touchdown.

In the final quarter Bess intercepted another aerial, passed to Co-Capt. Dick Kavanaugh, end, for twenty-six yards on the Macomb 22 yard line and then alternated with Floyd Coville in carrying the ball to the 3 yard line from where Coville scored the final touchdown.

NORTH CENTRAL WINS, 20-7.

Hayden of North Central crossed the goal line three times to defeat Elmhurst college in Elmhurst yesterday, 20 to 7. North Central gained thirteen first downs against Elmhurst's four.

MILLIKIN, 0; KNOX, 0.

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Millikin and Knox battled to a scoreless tie before 2,500 homecoming fans this afternoon.

Millikin made only one scoring threat, a twenty-seven yard run by Fischer in the opening period that took the ball to the Knox 30 yard line, but the play was recalled and the Blue and White penalized for being offside. Knox, aided by the superior punting of Christiansen, got deeper into Millikin territory, holding the ball on the 15 yard line as the first half ended.

BRADLEY WINS, 26-6.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Jumping Jim Molnar, Bradley Tech full back, scored three touchdowns, one on an eighty-five yard run, in leading the Braves to a 26 to 6 homecoming victory over Carleton college of Northfield, Minn., today.

Ted Panish, Bradley half back, returned a punt fifty-five yards for Bradley's second touchdown in the first quarter. Molnar and Panish were the mainstays in a fifty yard drive in the first three minutes that gave Bradley a 7 to 0 lead with Molnar plunging over.

When Riegel, Carleton full back, fumbled the third quarter kickoff with Bob Theus recovering, Bradley scored from the Carleton 37 yard line on four plays, Molnar carrying each time. Carleton then opened up an aerial attack and Raiter passed to Kieling from the 30 yard line for a touchdown. Molnar ended the afternoon's scoring by dashing eighty-five yards through left tackle.

LAWRENCE WINS, 19 TO 8.

Appleton, Wis., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Lawrence college remained undefeated today and continued to lead the Midwest conference by beating Monmouth of Illinois, 19 to 8, on Whiting field.

Scoring in the first quarter on a thirty yard pass, Novakofski to Crawford, and again on a plunge by Kaemmer in the third period, Lawrence kept command of the game for three quarters.

Monmouth dominated play most of the last quarter, scoring early and forcing Lawrence to give up 2 points on an automatic safety by Novakofski from punt formation.

CHARLESTON WINS, 22-0.

Charleston, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The Charleston Teachers' eleven romped to a 22 to 0 victory over McKendree today. Sam Taylor, Charleston tackle, blocked Harry Ward's punt late in the second quarter and the ball rolled out of bounds in the end zone to give Charleston a safety and the only score of the first half. Wayne Austin broke through tackle to race thirty-four yards for the first touchdown early in the third quarter.

William Horan blocked a McKendree punt in the last quarter, picked it out of the air, and sprinted eighteen yards for a touchdown. Raymond Sudarth climaxed a sixty yard march with a four yard plunge to make the final touchdown and then drop kicked the extra point.

NORTHWESTERN AND OHIO STATE BATTLE TO TIE

ment except punting, where Ohio had a slight advantage.

Northwestern opened with a rush that threatened to produce a touchdown a few minutes after play began. The drive started after Ryan returned Mike Kabealo's punt to Northwestern's 34 yard line. Operating behind a line that was outplaying the Buckeyes' decisively, Ryan and McGurn took turns in moving the ball to Ohio's 44 yard line. The Buckeyes braced at their 40 yard line and Bernard Jefferson kicked over the goal line.

Jefferson Breaks Away.

The Buckeyes couldn't gain through the line, so Kabealo punted to the Purple's 34 yard line and Ryan raced back to his 41 yard line. Jefferson, running to the right from punt formation, the first time he ever had been used in that play, got away to Ohio's 46 yard line.

Jefferson passed to Diehl, who was crowded out of bounds on Ohio's 34 yard line. Eby, Northwestern end, was downed on the 15 yard line after taking a forward pass from Ryan. Ryan hammered through tackle to the 8 yard strip and on a reverse Jefferson went around right end to the 5 yard line, missing a first down by inches. McGurn was stopped for no gain and Northwestern was penalized five yards for off side. Ryan picked up three on a lateral as the first quarter ended.

Ohio Takes Ball.

On fourth down Ryan was brought down with only three or four inches to go for the necessary yardage. It was Ohio State's ball on its own five yard line.

After an exchange of punts the Wildcats headed for the goal again but this march ended on Ohio's 12 yard line, where Scott intercepted a pass from Jefferson. Northwestern was in Ohio's territory continuously the rest of the second quarter, but never had the punch to score.

Ohio State was having trouble keeping out of the shadow of its own goal posts in the third quarter until Strausbaugh moved them up to the brighter precincts of Northwestern's 30 yard zone with his brilliant fifty-eight yard dash that changed the complexion of the ball game.

Langhurst put the Wildcats in a hole in the fourth period with a beautiful punt that rolled dead on the 11 yard line. Paul Soper, one of the sophomore backs the Purple employed in the final period in an effort to get more speed into its attack, punted to Strausbaugh, who sped back eighteen yards to Ohio's 48 yard line.

Bullock Completes Pass.

Bullock, Buckeye back, fumbled as he was attempting to get away a pass, but retrieved the ball in time to make a weak toss to Fordham in the flat zone and the latter scooted to Northwestern's 36 yard line for a first down. An incompleted pass and two running plays lost four yards for the Buckeyes and Langhurst kicked out of bounds on the 13 yard line.

Jay Laskay, the Wildcats' reserve full back, found a big hole at left guard and got away for a first down on the Purple's 29 yard line. A few moments later Ryan, falling back to pass, was tackled and his low toss was picked off by Bliss of Ohio, who advanced to the 11 yard line before he was caught.

Sexton of Ohio State faked a pass and went through center for five yards. Langhurst added a yard at tackle. Sexton, rushed by the Purple ends, was unable to connect with a forward pass. At this point Charles Maag rushed in from the Buckeye bench to clinch victory by a field goal. With Sexton holding the ball, Maag kicked from placement on the 22 yard line, but the ball sailed slightly to the left of the upright and the Buckeyes' only scoring opportunity went glimmering.

across the line as he was tackled. He was injured and was carried to the dressing quarters. With Van Every holding the ball, Faust then won the battle with his placement.

Six minutes remained to play and, with Dave Strong leading, the Wolverines tried vainly to break loose for another touchdown. But the offensive, while marking up two first downs and comprised of four successful passes in five attempts, failed when time played for the Gophers. Strong's final pass to Ed Phillips placed the ball on Minnesota's 37 yard line as the game ended.

Michigan gained 156 yards by rushing to Minnesota's 98 yards. And Michigan completed 7 passes in 16 attempts for 96 yards for a total gain from scrimmage of 252 yards. Van Every's two passes gained 48 yards, giving Minnesota a net gain of 146 yards.

Two Place Kicks Fail.

Michigan led in first downs, 13 to 6. Each team averaged 38 yards in kicking. Michigan was penalized 7 times for 55 yards. Minnesota was penalized 3 times for a total of 35 yards.

The peak of Michigan's attack was the touchdown drive which started midway in the third period. Harmon and Norm Purucker joined Wally Hook and Jack Meyer after the first two plays of the march to form the Wolverine back field. Steadily they drove down field until Meyer was thrown on Minnesota's 21 yard line as the third period ended.

Smick replaced Vincent Valek at left end and on the next play, a fourth down pass, Smick grabbed Harmon's toss over center for a first down on the Gopher 7 yard line.

Paul Kromer, now substituted for Purucker, got three yards in two attempts. Harmon hit right tackle for two yards and then Kromer smashed through the opposite tackle for the touchdown.

Minnesota's only threat in the first half, after an out of bounds kick had furnished an opening, was a move of sixteen yards which ended with an attempted place kick by Horace Bell with the ball on Michigan's 20 yard line.

On the next to last play of the first half Smick also tried a placement with the ball on Minnesota's 32 yard line, but he barely kicked to the end zone.

REVOLTA AND MURRA LEAD IN WICHITA GOLF

Wichita, Kas., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—Johnny Revolta of Chicago and Mike Murra of Wichita were tied for the lead tonight at the halfway mark in the $1,600 Wichita open golf tournament. Both had 138.

Scores soared in the second round today when a strong wind blew across the Westlink course and handicapped the games of pros and amateurs alike. The original field of 122 entrants from 11 states was cut to 64 for the final 36 holes tomorrow.

Revolta had a 65 for the first round and a 73 for the second, compared to Murra's 70 and 68. Dutch Harrison of Chicago was in third place with 67-73—140.

Tied for fourth were Leonard Dodson of Springfield, Mo., and George Matson of Wichita with 143. One stroke behind them were Zell Eaton of Oklahoma City and Dave Truffelli of Wichita.

Still in the running with totals ranging from 145 to 147 were Levi Lynch of Dallas, Herman Kaiser of Springfield, Bennie Boggess of Kansas City, Howard Estep of Fort Smith, Ark., Glenn Oatman of Lawrence, Kas., Dick Metz of Chicago, and Leonard Ott of Denver.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—An aggressive Clarkson Tech eleven made its first meeting with New York City college a brilliant success today, beating the Lavender, 19 to 6. Tech struck through the air in the first five minutes to gain a 7 to 0 lead, yielded six points when C. C. N. Y. scored by the aerial route, and added touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters.

36,000 WATCH SO. CALIFORNIA TRIUMPH, 19 TO 6

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—A versatile passing and running attack enabled Southern California to defeat Washington State, 19 to 6, before 36,000 today and remain undefeated in the Pacific Coast conference.

Al Krueger, the end who starred against Ohio State last week, took a twenty-six yard pass from Oliver Day to start the scoring in the second period.

Washington State rallied in the third quarter and tied the score when End Joe McClellan blocked Day's punt on the 35 yard line and his teammate, George Hubert, a tackle, recovered the ball in the air to race over the goal line.

Thereafter Southern California, through the passing and running of Doyle Nave, was deep in Washington State territory.

Nave climaxed his passing drive late in the fourth quarter by plunging over from the 1 foot line. Score:

STANFORD UPSETS OREGON.

Palo Alto, Cal., Oct. 15.—(AP)—A much maligned Stanford eleven came from behind to beat University of Oregon, 27 to 16, today in an upset.

In a brilliant but spotty performance, Stanford scored touchdowns on two passes, a blocked punt and a drive through the Oregon line. Meanwhile, Oregon piled up a 238 yard net gain on running plays to Stanford's 75.

Oregon, by virtue of a field goal in the first period and a touchdown early in the second, held a 10 to 0 advantage until Quarter Back Bill Paulman went into action.

He tossed a pass to Right End Stojkovich, who ran thirty yards to a touchdown. A few minutes later he flipped another to Substitute End Graff, who ran fifteen yards to a score and Stanford led, 13 to 10, at the half.

Oregon came back to score in the third quarter, but a touchdown run by End Willard after a blocked punt put Stanford in the lead again, 20 to 16.

CALIFORNIA BEATS U. C. L. A.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 15.—(AP)—University of California's football team whipped the University of California at Los Angeles today, 20 to 7, before 40,000.

Left Half Back Vic Bottari, individual ball carrying star of the game, went around U. C. L. A.'s right end for a yard and the touchdown in the second quarter, finishing the thirty-six yard advance by drop kicking the extra point. A few minutes later California marched sixty-three yards in nine plays, Bottari cracking right tackle for two yards and the score.

Near the close of the third period California took the ball on a pass interception on U. C. L. A.'s 47 yard line. From there a team of substitutes smashed to the third touchdown, Left Half Back Tony Firpo hitting center for the last two yards.

WASHINGTON LOSES AGAIN.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Taking advantage of Washington misplays, Oregon State college defeated the Huskies, 13 to 6, in a Pacific Coast conference game today.

Twenty thousand fans were stunned as Washington suffered its third loss in four starts, after being hailed as potential conference champs.

Five fumbles, one leading to Oregon State's first touchdown, kept Washington from making any headway except when they maneuvered their only score in five plays at the outset of the second half.

Cafego Leads Brilliant Volunteer Back Field.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Volunteers of Tennessee shattered the championship hopes of Alabama today with a stunning 13 to 0 victory.

Close to 26,000 saw George Cafego, Len Coffman, and other backs battle to a comparatively easy triumph behind a line that opened big gaps in the husky Alabama forward wall. Only four times did the Crimson tide penetrate Tennessee territory, the chief threat being checked at the Volunteers' 22 yard line in the closing minutes after Alabama had resorted to a passing attack.

Tennessee drove sixty-eight yards to score after 12 minutes in the opening period and counted again in the third on a drive of fifty-one yards, featured by a spectacular thirty-three yard dash by Cafego. Coffman vaulted across from the one foot line for the first touchdown. Capt. Bowden Wyatt missed the extra point.

Cafego, after his run of thirty-three yards, was pulled down at the Alabama 1 yard line by Tackle Fred Davis. Coffman went through the line to score on the first play. Wyatt added the extra point. Lineups:

T. C. U. WINS, 34-6.

Seven minutes after the kickoff, before 25,000, the Christians started scoring.

T. C. U. first started from the Aggie 48 and scored when O'Brien hurled a pass to Half Back Johnny Hall who took it across from the 6.

Shoving off on the Christians' 20, O'Brien and Sparks smashed to the 46, then O'Brien passed to Hall again, down on the Aggie 27. Trapped, he lateraled to Fred Shook, guard, who went on for the touchdown.

VANDERBILT RALLIES.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—Vanderbilt staged a thrilling two minute finish today to come from behind and defeat Mississippi, 13 to 7. Mississippi held a one point lead until just just before the game ended. Then Lunsford Hollins dropped back to Mississippi's 31, shot a pass to Hardy Housman and the Vandy back fell across the goal with the winning points.

For the first half 'Ole Miss and Vandy battled on even terms, neither able to score. After the rest period, Parker Hall led Mississippi's attack for the Rebel's lone tally. Vanderbilt worked the ball to 'Ole Miss's 8 yard line in the fourth quarter and Housman went through the line for the first touchdown.

TULANE, 26; RICE, 17.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—An inspired Tulane eleven defeated Rice, 26 to 17, today before a crowd of 27,000. All the brilliant passing of Rice's Ernie Lain could not stop the Green Wave as Warren Brunner, Tulane's triple threat back, ran wild.

Rice scored first in the first quarter with a field goal by Landry, left guard, from thirty-four yards out. Tulane scored twice in the second quarter on passes after line drives and end runs down the field. Lain's passes clicked consistently for a score in the third period. In the fourth period Tulane scored twice within the first six minutes.

BAYLOR, 14; CENTENARY, 0.

Waco, Tex., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—Billy Patterson, triple threat back, led Baylor to a 14 to 0 victory over Centenary today. Baylor scored in the first two periods, then coasted. TEXAS IS ROUTED.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—The University of Texas football team suffered its worst defeat in thirty-four years today when Arkansas won, 42 to 6. It was the worst defeat that a Texas team has suffered since the University of Chicago routed the Longhorns, 63 to 0, in 1904.

Wake Forest went ahead, 7 to 6, when Marshall Edwards went over for the touchdown and John Pendergast added the point from placement. State then passed and bucked its way to another touchdown in the second and a third in the third period.

OTHER GAMES TODAY.
Brooklyn vs. Green Bay in Milwaukee.
Washington in Detroit.
Philadelphia in New York.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Professional football returns to Chicago today. As an added attraction there is a promise that the Cardinals will return to professional football. Their opponents will be the Bears, National league leaders, who open a five week home stand in Wrigley field with today's contest. The kick-off is set for 2:15 o'clock.

Beaten four times in five starts and shaken up so vigorously that five men lost their grips on their jobs, the Cardinals will be seeking to avenge a 16 to 13 defeat at the hands of the Bears which started them on the downgrade at a time when they were enjoying the brightest prospects in five years.

Cards Have Patrick, Babartsky.

To help them return to the status of major leaguers, they will enlist the services of two of the country's outstanding college players last year who will be making their Chicago professional debuts. They are Frank Patrick, Pitt's plunging full back, and Al Babartsky, huge Fordham tackle. Both were members of THE TRIBUNE'S All-Star team last August. Patrick has played in several games. Babartsky will be making his first start in professional football.

Babartsky suffered a leg injury in training for the All-Star game. The injury was aggravated in an all-star game in Dallas, where he also suffered a broken bone in his hand. Discouraged, Babartsky, who had been drafted by the Cardinals, went east to teach school. He gave up teaching ten days ago and joined the Cardinals.

A special guard will protect Babartsky's hand today and until he is operated upon for the removal of a piece of bone. Coach Milan Creighton does not plan to start Babartsky, who will alternate with Tony Blazine, veteran left tackle.

Tyler Takes Pangle's Place.

Patrick came up to the Cardinals with a wide reputation as a plunging full back. It was planned originally to use him at left half back to utilize his driving power. But in today's game Patrick will play at the blocking back or quarter back, where Pete Tyler, a holdover from last year, will start in place of Hal Pangle, veteran quarter back who was released last week.

The game will bring together a team, the Cardinals, that has a reputation for possessing one of the finest pass attacks in football, yet has scored only one touchdown on 61 completions, and another, the Bears, that has a reputation for power, but has scored three touchdowns on 16 completed passes. The Cardinals made their six other touchdowns on running plays. The Bears, who also have made seven touchdowns, scored only four through their power house attack.

Power House Is Recharged.

This power house has been recharged in the last ten days by the play of three full backs, Sam Francis, Bert Johnson, and Gary Famiglietti, a rookie from Boston, who will attempt to make north side fans forget Bronko Nagurski.

Each has been surrounded with three back field mates to form a unit and the units will operate in rotation unless Coach George Halas' attempt to pioneer this system in professional football comes a cropper. Francis and his associates, Bernie Masterson, Ray Nolting, and Joe Maniaci, a former Fordham star who was purchased from Brooklyn Dodgers, the most versatile quartet, will start today's game.

Washington Meets Detroit.

Washington moves into Detroit today on its first western invasion since the ill-fated trip to the All-Star game. It comes west tied for the Eastern division lead and meets a Detroit team that reached its peak in conquering Green Bay last week. The return of Sammy Baugh and the addition of Frank Filchock, former Indiana star purchased from Pittsburgh last week, to help Bill Hartman, Georgia rookie, with the passing makes the Redskins the favorites in this contest. Detroit has been noted for its weak pass defense. At Green Bay the old weakness reappeared. Washington is no team to tackle without an excellent pass defense.

The surprising Philadelphia team meets the Giants in New York. It has been a question how long Philadelphia, rated as one of the second flight clubs, can hold up and how long the Giants, expected to win the Eastern division title, will remain below expectations. Today may tell.

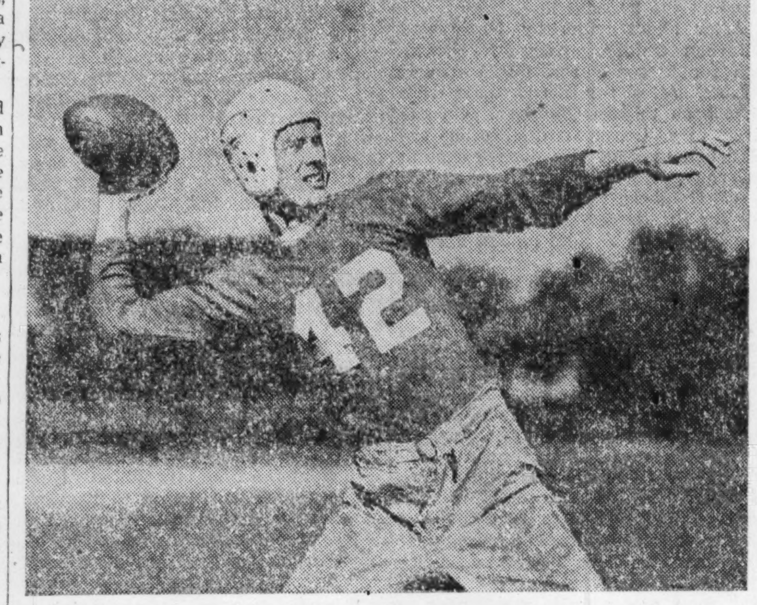
Dodgers Run Into Packers.

Brooklyn, tied with Washington for the Eastern division lead by virtue of the tie game these two teams played in the first meeting, tackles the Packers in Milwaukee. It will be Eddie Jankowski day at which the Milwaukee fans will honor the Packer full back, a home town boy, and with last week's setback by Detroit still rankling the northerners, Brooklyn may find itself out of the lead by nightfall.

Cleveland, which defeated Detroit and the Bears in its last two starts, will be idle.

PRO FOOTBALL COMES HOME TODAY!

The wandering Cardinals and Chicago Bears meet in Wrigley field this afternoon with the Cardinals hoping to avenge a 16 to 13 defeat handed them in Soldiers' field Sept. 10. Len Dugan, Cardinal center, a two year man, is expected to get into the lineup. He's a six footer who weighs 210 pounds.



In Jack Robbins of Arkansas the Cardinals have a pass tosser who threatens to become another Sammy Baugh in pro football.

MICHIGAN STATE WINS, 26-0, OVER WEST VIRGINIA

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 15.—(AP)—A smart Michigan State eleven scored on a break early in the first quarter and then rolled up the count on intercepted passes today to beat West Virginia university, 26 to 0. Dave Diehl, Spartan left end, recovered a blocked punt for the first touchdown, and Half Back John Pingel scored the second on a one yard thrust in the third period after a pass carried the ball to scoring position. Diehl and Pearce, substitute back, added the other touchdowns on intercepted passes, Pearce racing sixty-six yards to score.

Griffith, Michigan State guard, paved the way for the first score by rushing through to block Carliss' kick and Diehl fell on it over the goal line for a touchdown.

In the fourth quarter, Diehl intercepted Audia's pass on the West Virginia 30 and ran for the third touchdown.

The fourth was another gift from the harassed Mountaineers. Pearce, one of the horde of substitutes that Michigan State sent on the field, pulled in White's pass and ran sixty-six yards to score. Lineups:

Football for the Fan

THE KICKING GAME.

Probably no part of football is more important or more vital to the success of a team than its kicking game. The grandstand quarter backs always feel safer when they know their team has a good punter. First of all, they realize that a punt formation is a fundamental formation and a fine camouflage for a punter, passer, or runner.

With the usual line protection the punter stands back ten yards because years of trial have shown that this distance will give enough time to get away the kick. If the line is weak, if the punter is slow in getting off kicks, or if he takes too many steps the coach will have him stationed twelve or fourteen yards behind center. Then, too, some teams use a line spread to allow linemen to get down and to tackle receivers. In this case the punter will be back twelve or fourteen yards and depend on this distance and the blocking of his back field men to protect him.

A punt will be one of two types—either straight and long for distance, or to one side for placement. In the first type a quarter back is trying to gain yardage on his punter's kicks or he is hoping for breaks or fumbles.

The grand stand quarter backs again must keep in mind the cardinal principles of punting: Kick high with the wind, kick low against it, kick for breaks on a wet and muddy field, kick away from a fast man or kick a roller to him, kick for position when in opponent's territory, kick according to the speed of your ends.

Another form of the punt is the quick kick. This is a kick made from a formation other than orthodox punt style. The defense men, seeing that the man with the ball is lined up in running formation will have a tendency to creep a little closer. A quick, rolling kick, high enough to go over the head of the last defense man, or, better still, cut to one side, generally gives no opportunity for a return and gives valuable yardage to the kicking side.

If a team is kicking from behind its own goal or close to it the defensive team may put up an extra back into the line and make every effort to block the punt or hurry it so that a bad kick results.

On the other hand, the defensive team on a sure kick may have the center and even the ends drop back. This would leave only four men in the line to rush the kick, but would put six men back to block and to form interference for the receiver.

OFFICIAL DIES DURING GAME OF HEART ATTACK

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Harris Moriarty, one of the leading football officials in the south, died of a heart attack during the fourth period of the North Carolina-New York university football game at the Yankee stadium today, in which he officiated as umpire.

Moriarty, a graduate of Mount St. Mary's college, was vice president of the First National bank of Birmingham, Ala. He collapsed during a play late in the fourth period and the game was held up several minutes until physicians arrived. They said the official had died immediately, although first reports said he was conscious until carried on a stretcher to the dressing room under the grandstand.

JACOLA DEFEATS SEABISCUIT IN LAUREL STAKES

Breaks Track Record for One Mile.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Jacola, a filly, captured the twenty-fifth running of the $7,500 Laurel stakes today, beating by two lengths Seabiscuit, which will meet War Admiral in a race of champions on Nov. 1. Jacola set a new track record of 1:37 for the mile.

Two and a half lengths behind Seabiscuit came Maxwell Howard's The Chief. Aneroid was fourth.

Jacola, owned by E. Friendly, bettered by one-fifth of a second the mark set by Jack High a few years ago and rewarded her backers at $15.80, $5.20, and $3.50. Seabiscuit paid $2.80 and $2.60 and The Chief $5.

Although for the first time Seabiscuit's equipment included spurs on Jocky George Wolfe, they failed to get Seabiscuit off to a fast start and he was sixth at the half way mark. He came forward fast from the far turn, but Jacola also produced a stretch drive.

Jocky Ward Boots in Daily Double Pair

A crowd of 9,000, the largest of the season, saw yesterday's program at Sportsman's park. The Great Lakes handicap for 3 year olds and up at seven furlongs was the best of an eight race card.

Mrs. A. M. Creech's Gato, ridden by R. Conley, was an easy winner of the Great Lakes. Xenomay was second with Shining Heels, stablemate of Gato, third.

Our Reigh was first to break from the starting gate, with Gato in close pursuit and Shining Heels on the outside in third place. Shining Heels quickly disposed of Our Reigh and ran perfect interference for Gato before giving way in the stretch to Xenomay. Gato ran the distance in 1:28 2-5 and paid $7.20.

Longest Shot of Meeting.

Jocky T. E. Ward was the hero of the day. He rode three winners, among them Gonsbaby in the opener, which was the longest priced horse of the meeting. When he got the favorite, Say Do, home first in the second race, Ward completed a double that was worth $566.60 for each $2 invested. In the sixth he won by four lengths on Mo.

Gonsbaby led all the way to win the seven furlong first race. Copper Lad was second.

There was a loud cheer when the mutuel prices were flashed on the board. Gonsbaby paid $106.80 to win, $30 to place, and $13.80 to show.

In the third race, Mrs. J. Carozzo's Speedy Booger lived up to his name when at the word go he was out in front never to be headed in the five furlong dash. He won by four lengths from Maewhisk, which showed good speed to be second. Bright came from far back to get a photo finish decision over Jane Hull for third money. Jocky J. G. Wilson rode the winner which ran the distance in 1:02 and paid $5.

Tartarus Pays $25.

Tartarus, at better than 11 to 1 in the wagering, rushed to the lead at the start and led all the way in the seven furlong fourth race. Jokester was second and Princess Stone was third. After running the distance in 1:29 3-5, Tartarus paid $25.60. Determined, the favorite, was close up throughout, but in the run for home dropped out of it.

CARTHAGE WINS FROM ILLINOIS COLLEGE, 9 TO 6

Carthage, Ill., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Lloyd Geiger's first quarter field goal and his second quarter touchdown brought Carthage a 9 to 6 football victory today over Illinois college. Dicenso scored for Illinois college in the final period after an eighty-five yard march led by Petroitis and Lambert.

CARBONDALE WINS, 6-0.

Carbondale, Ill., Oct. 15.—(AP)—A 90 yard drive in the fourth quarter gained Carbondale Teachers' college a 6-0 football victory over Arkansas State Teachers college today. Wolfinbarger, Normal full back, plunged two yards for the score. The Arkansas team had threatened twice before Carbondale's touchdown drive.

Gato Comes Home All by Himself

SCHOONER RACE POSTPONED AGAIN—THERE'S NO WIND

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 15.—(AP)—A flat calm for the second day in succession forced postponement of the third race between Capt. Angus Walters' Bluenose of Canada and Ben Pine's Gertrude L. Thebaud for the fishermen's championship of the North Atlantic.

Once again, as yesterday, the two big schooners failed to leave their berths because of lack of wind. The sailing duel will be resumed tomorrow if there is any breeze.

Sterling, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Sterling and Geneseo cross country teams finished in a tie in a race between halves of a football game here today.

COACH OF HAWKS SIZES UP SOME SPEEDY ROOKIES

Youngsters Scramble for Place on Line.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The Blackhawks' second day's workout at the University of Illinois rink saw Coach Paul Thompson directing nearly all of his attention to Rookies Demarco and Besler.

Aside from Paul Goodman, recruit goal tender of last season's Wichita team of the American league, Besler and Demarco are the only members of the squad in training here who have not had major league experience.

Scramble For Place.

The outstanding scramble this season will be among five players, Desilet, Jackson, Jenkins, Demarco, and Besler for the right to play on a line alongside of Johnny Gottselig and Cully Dahlstrom. Hence, Coach Thompson's desire to get an early line on the capabilities of the two rookies whom he had never seen until they reported in Chicago but who came preceded by an excellent reputation made in widely separated leagues.

Demarco, an amateur, made his right wing reputation as member of the Baltimore Orioles of the Eastern Amateur league. Besler was last season's high scorer of the Pacific Coast league, while a member of the Portland [Oregon] Buckaroos.

Youngsters Show Ability.

Nervousness somewhat handicapped the youngsters this morning. However, they showed enough speed and stick handling ability to convince the Hawks' boss that if they do not make the big league grade this season it will be because one of the three other aspirants for the lone right wing post shows a great deal more than just ordinary ability.

Semi-Final in Kelly Cup Tops Soccer Card

BY OFFSIDE.

Only four soccer matches are scheduled today. The International league has postponed all league games to allow fans to attend the Kelly Cup semi-finals on Norwegian-American field, 4500 West Fullerton avenue.

The Scandinavians, winners of the Kelly cup for the last two years, strengthened by the acquisition of several Norwegian stars, are determined to make it three in a row. Their opponents, the Italian-Americans, are strong opponents. This match starts at 12:30 o'clock. The closing game of the double header brings together the German-Americans and an All-Star team picked from the Bohemian and Polish players. This game starts at 2:30 p. m. E. Korer and J. Nugent will referee the matches.

Manhattans Meet Milwaukee.

The Manhattan Beers, last year's Peel cup holders, have the strong Falk team of Milwaukee, Wis., as their opponents today in an inter-city match in Kuppenheimer stadium, 19th street and Keeler avenue. The Falks have several well known players in their lineup, including Jimmy Ramsay and Johnny Orr, former Maccabee stars. The Manhattans, determined to get a winning team, have added Art Garcia from St. Louis, considered the fastest player in the country, and along with Billy Gonsalves and Fabri Salcedo have three of the best scorers in the country. Other new players who have been showing good form are Edward Begley, Jim Ruggels, Charles Ebinger, and Roy Williamson. The game begins at 2:30 p. m. Robert Jones will be referee.

Sparta Plays St. Louis.

Sparta Garden City, national champions, will meet the Burke's All-Stars of St. Louis in another inter-city match. The game will be played in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, starting at 2:30 p. m.

WHITNEY DECIDES HE'LL RETURN TO TURF IN SPRING

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, who last year decided to retire from racing and sell his stable, today announced plans to bring his colors back to the turf next spring. Whitney said he had engaged E. L. Snyder as trainer and that he would race a few 2 year olds next year. His decision, he said, was made "in the hope of developing a stallion to replace Equipoise and a few mares for my breeding establishment in Kentucky."

When he decided to retire last fall, he sold his entire string of racers, including such stars as The Chief and Dauber, but retained his brood stock and his stud farm. Equipoise, his most famous color bearer and second only to Sun Bean as a money winner in racing history, died at the Whitney farm near Lexington, Ky., last August. As a racer, Equipoise won $338,610.

the Panthers to their 30 yard line for a first down. After a long pass had failed, Bellin went through right tackle and lateraled to Weiss who galloped to the 16 yard line. Then the Panther defense tightened and Wisconsin lost the ball on downs.

The Panthers immediately revealed their leg power. With Goldberg and Stebbins lugging the ball Pitt ran its way to the Badgers' 40 yard mark. The charge was slowed down and Chickerneo punted into the end zone but a clipping penalty was inflicted on the Badgers, putting the ball on their 1 yard line. To escape the Badgers boldly resorted to passing. From his own end zone Bellin sailed the ball to Gavre who was run out of bounds on the 10 yard line. Schmitz added five more as the period ended.

Pitt Comes to Life.

Pitt's first touchdown thrust came suddenly when the second period was about half gone. It began with a Wisconsin punt which Peace captured on Pitt's 35 yard line. A time out penalty on the Badgers moved the ball out to the 40 yard line. Thurbon and Naric made the five yards needed for first down. Naric swung around left end for three yards. Goldberg returned as a half back and the next play showed the Panthers were on the prowl. On a reverse Thurbon dashed wide around Wisconsin's left end and wasn't halted until he had reached the 28 yard line.

After short gains by Naric and Thurbon, Goldberg passed to Dickinson for fifteen yards, but Pitt was offside. All of the Pitt regulars were sent back to join Goldberg. On the first play Cassiano duplicated the Thurbon reverse. He dashed around Wisconsin's left end to the 1 yard line. Goldberg plunged through center for the touchdown and then held the ball while Daddio kicked for the extra point.

A Pass Goes Awry.

Less than three minutes of the third period had been played when Pitt punted to abandon a drive which had carried them thirty-three yards on the kickoff. The punt by Chickerneo went out of bounds on the Badgers' 20 yard line. Bellin shot a long pass to Lorenz but the ball rolled off the receiver's finger tips. Weiss ripped through center for eight yards, but the Badgers were guilty of holding and a fifteen yard penalty set them back to their 5 yard mark. In desperation Bellin, standing in the end zone, attempted a short pass to Weiss.

Just as Weiss turned around to make the catch Petro swept past, snatched the ball and kept on moving until he had covered the seven yards to the Badger goal line. Daddio's kick for the extra point went wild. The Badgers bounced back from this jolt by attacking through the air and afoot to reach the Panthers' 29 yard mark. Then Bellin heaved a long pass toward the Panther goal and Goldberg exploded the threat by intercepting.

Touchdown from Punt Formation.

The first of the two touchdowns which the Panthers scored in the fourth quarter began when the Badgers, having driven up to midfield, attempted to make further progress on a long pass by Bellin. It was intercepted by Cassiano who came back five yards to his own 28 yard mark. Cassiano tested right end and was stopped. He passed to Stebbins and it was incomplete. Chickerneo dropped back into punting position, then swept to his right behind beautiful three-man interference and raced to the Badger goal. The attempt for the extra point was futile.

The Badgers took the next kickoff and reeled off a first down before punting. The ball went out of bounds on Pitt's 30 yard line. The Badgers weren't expecting a pass but that was what the Panthers pulled. Naric sent a fifteen yard throw to Thurbon, who was on his way for the goal line before the Badger defenders awakened to what was happening.

Badgers Cash In.

Wisconsin's consolation touchdown in the waning moments was the climax of a sixty-nine yard advance. Schuelke did his share to rip apart the Panther line. One of three passes by Tennant netted nine yards. On fourth down Tennant threw another and Gile, standing almost on the Pitt goal line folded the ball in his arms before taking the step that meant six points. Schuelke tried to kick for the extra point but missed the target.

Fox Bowlers Roll 3,281 for North End Season Mark

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

The recent three game total of 3,252 made by the Joseph L. Gill team in the North End Traveling league would stand for some time, veteran members of that bowling organization said after the performance. They were wrong, as the Fox De Luxe team proved during the last week's matches.

Bowling against the Keeleys, the Fox De Luxe team of Rudy Pehrson, Edward Janis, Rudy Boedecker, Mike Rieth, and Axel Sandquist started off with a 1,142 game which they won easily. Back they came with 1,143 for another victory. In the last game the boys cooled off to a mere 996, also good for a triumph, and a record total of 3,281.

At the same time the Gills also improved upon their lofty 3,252 count. The Gills composed of Joe Puccinelli, Bill Hardagon, Ray Leick, Wally Freitag, and Lloyd Strouse put together games of 1,003, 1,173, and 1,103 for three victories over the Kruse Stations. When they finished totaling the three games, they found they had 3,279, just two pins short of the Fox De Luxe score.

On North Side Alleys.

Ray Leick registered games of 180, 234, and 287 for 701 and Joe Puccinelli backed him up with 655. Such bowling gave the Joseph L. Gills three victories over the Triangle Shirts, with whom they had been tied for first place in the Gold Coast Major league. While the Triangles were being pushed around, the Budweisers, paced by George Miller's 641, took two out of three from the Gold Coast Recreation and went into second place. Sam Paulson maintained his 209 average with 657 and Charley Dau hit 639 to help the National Premium Beers win two from Neumann Tailors. . . . The Wallace Coals and Irving Palm Taverns still are tied for first place in the Samuelson Major league. The Coals won three close games from the Samuelson Kids and the Palm Taverns swept over the tail end Mee and Rammes. Herb Gumz, with a 630 series, took the individual lead with a 201 average as Ed Mahannah, who experienced a sorry evening, dropped to 193.

On South Side Alleys.

The Alderman Murphys finished with a game of 1,103 to total 3,127 and lead the Bruck Major league teams. High individuals were: Bob Hayes, 658; George Maurer, 655; Jay Batchelor, 640, and Stanley Kellogg, 639. . . . South End Traveling league has three leaders, each with ten victories and five defeats. They are the John's Breads, Bill Rands, and Strachan Coals. Jim Garvey is averaging 205, the best individual performance. . . . Sexauer and Krueger was the hottest of the twenty teams in the Stevenson Major league, shooting 3,024 with the aid of a 1,100 finish. The first game of 1,032 beat the leading Eden Insurance quintet by nearly 200 pins, but in the second game the Sexauers slumped to 892 and then came back strong to take the odd game of the series. Bill Harper exploded a 270 game and collected a 648 series for the Edens. Howard Darling hit 624, Lee Hile 615, and Bill Lenzen 643 for Sexauer and Krueger. Jack Frye of Chatham Post Restaurant was high individual with 669, which included a 257 game. . . . Judge Eugene Holland has joined the Triangle Shirts of the Southwest Industrial league as sixth man and manager. His presence apparently supplied the spark that brought three victories at the expense of the Palace Service Stations. John Gaynor's 609 series helped Zeis Lumber to win a pair of games and was high for the last session.

Sopers Men's Shops registered their eleventh straight victory when they beat the Chelten Restaurants three times in the South Shore Chamber of Commerce league on the Cheltenham alleys. The team now has won sixteen and lost only two. Gil Brown and Ed Costello are the big guns of the Sopers.

Windy City Major League.

The standings in the Windy City Major league were given a violent shaking with the result the Burlington Zephyrs and Mineralites share the top rung at 11 won and 4 lost. The Whitecaps and O'Keefe Coals are third at 10 and 5. Led by Babe Bunning's 684, the Mineralites rolled the league's high series of 3,076 while burying G. and W. Five Star. At the same time the Zephyrs totaled 3,031 in taking two out of three from the Maciejewskis. Among the best individual series were: Howard Darling of the O'Keefe Coals, 672; Michael Trausch of the Furmans, 670; Charles Drs of the Maciejewskis, 661, and Jim Veverka, 653, and Steve Kosobucki, 642, both of the Soper Brothers.

Classic League.

Wally Genter rolled 249, 268, and 248 for a 765 total in the Classic league which is the best in the city this season. Genter is a member of the Thompson Restaurants team. Tonight's matches will be bowled at Schueneman-Flynn's West Town Recreation, 324 South Ashland avenue, at 8 o'clock. Tonight's schedule:

Thompson Restaurants vs. Monarchs; Power House vs. Schlitz; Ambrosia vs. Baby Ruths; Pragers vs. Pabst.

About the Women.

Margaret Frank's 613 series helped the Pabsts shoot 2,704, high series of the week in the Congress league. The Budweiser Girls are running away with the team title with 23 won and 1 lost. Other individual leaders were Betty Kleine, 590; Dorothy Burmeister, 577; Ann Weiller, 569; Carrie Enders, 561; Irene Engel, 551; Edna Schelter, 549; Istabel Wirth, 540; Emma Munzel, 539; Estelle Svoboda, 534, and Agnes Pitelka, 534. . . . Mae Lecture's 576 topped the West Ridge league. Mary Wendt had 530; Josephine Consier, 521, and Viola Kennedy, 504. . . . Kitty Gebler started with a 157 game and then crashed through with 256 and 212 for 625 in the Bruck Major league.

Ann Unhoch and Nina Van Camp led the Stevenson Major league with a 542 series. Trailing them were Ruth Ferguson, 534; Helen Hutton, 523; Ella Dobie, 514, and Ethel Kelly, 503. Florence Waterman shot a 235 game and a 571 series, the best performance in the Stevenson Handicap league.

HUNTERS SWARM INTO MARSHES; FIND FEW DUCKS

BY BOB BECKER.

Thousands of Illinois hunters invaded the marshes and lakes yesterday to celebrate the opening of the 1938 waterfowl season with a noisy barrage against ducks, snipe, and mudhens. From the popular northern Illinois lake region where the mudhen shooters annually take part in a big opening day shooting contest to the Illinois river valley and down to the wild goose country around Cairo there was an unusually heavy outpouring of hunters, out on their first hunting trip of the season. With a fair supply of early ducks and mudhens in the sloughs and lakes most of the opening day shooters bagged at least a few birds.

The unusually mild weather which has prevailed in Illinois for several weeks helped the opening day crowd of hunters by keeping thousands of blue winged teal in the state. These birds are early migrants and usually go south before Oct. 15, but due to the warm weather this fall many teal stayed on northern Illinois waters, thus giving hunters additional sport on their first trip of the season.

Many in River Valley.

While many Chicagoland hunters were shooting over every available marsh, waterhole, and slough in Lake county, other thousands were tuning up their waterfowl guns in the Illinois river valley. So heavy was the demand for hunting facilities that some of the daily fee hunting places in the valley reported they could have leased two or three times the number of blinds that they had available.

The bombardment of mudhens on Grass lake in northern Illinois drew more than 3,000 hunters, many of whom had rowed to their favorite spots before 5:30 a. m.—an hour and a half before shooting time. By 6 o'clock it was impossible to rent a boat on the lake, and the late hunters overflowed to Lake Marie, Channel lake, and other waters in the Fox lake chain. The good shooting on Grass lake lasted about an hour.

Shooting on Fox lake is limited to the hours between noon and 2 p. m.

Mosquitoes Bothersome.

Hunters complained of mosquitoes. Hungry mosquitoes were more numerous than ducks. In the Lake county marsh mosquitoes were so abundant that some of the hunters were anointing themselves with repellants which usually are associated with the fishing season instead of the waterfowl season.

Thirty-one Chicagoans were arrested for hunting on the estate of Mrs. Harry McDougal and her sister, Laura Hatch, which is located on the Fox river on the west side of Grass lake. The arrests were made by William Shannon, caretaker of the estate, who is a special deputy sheriff of Lake county. Taken before Justice of the Peace John Brogan, twenty of the thirty-one paid $8 costs with a $15 probation fine, eight left their guns and three asked for a change of venue.

Waukesha, Wis., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Lake Forest college won its fourth consecutive football game of the season and broke Carroll's string of twenty with no defeats by winning today, 13 to 7.

Lake Forest scored twice in the first three minutes of play. The first score followed a long pass, Jauch to McAllister, which put the ball on the 2 yard line. Martinov carried it over on a half spinner. Petersen added the extra point. Almost immediately following the kickoff, Berg's long punt was fumbled. Lake Forest recovered the ball on the 2 yard line, and Jauch scored on a plunge through tackle.

NORTHWESTERN B ELEVEN DEFEATS PURDUE B'S, 26 TO 7

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Northwestern university's B football team defeated the Purdue reserves, 26 to 7, this afternoon. The Wildcats scored seven points in the first quarter, but McIlwain, Boilermaker back, intercepted a pass and went 72 yards to tie the score. Northwestern was superior in the second half. Sahlin scored twice for the Wildcats, and Butherus and Kowalski once each.

AM. TELEPHONE EARNINGS BELOW DIVIDEND NEEDS

Profits Lower Than Last Year.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company yesterday reported lower earnings in the quarter ended Sept. 30 than in the corresponding 1937 quarter. Net income in the three months was $35,707,241, equal to $1.91 a share on the capital stock. This compared with $44,741,858, or $2.39 a share, in the 1937 quarter.

For the twelve months ended Sept. 30, net income was $159,225,960, or $8.52 a share. In the preceding twelve months profit was $192,310,107, or $10.29 a share.

For the twelve months the profits lacked $8,955,186 of meeting the $9 annual dividend. In the preceding twelve months profits exceeded dividends by $24,136,133.

Bell System Earns Less.

Earnings of the Bell system, including American Telephone and its principal telephone subsidiaries, also declined from 1937 levels. Consolidated net income applicable to American Telephone and Telegraph stock was $35,949,267 in the three months ended Aug. 31. This compared with $40,857,734 in the corresponding 1937 quarter.

In the three months operating revenues of the system were $260,211,687, against $261,940,157 a year earlier. Operating expenses declined to $177,343,669 from $179,897,814, but this was offset by an increase in taxes to $36,418,058 from $33,637,491 in the 1937 quarter.

The system's operating revenues in the twelve months ended Aug. 31 were $1,048,711,288, compared with $1,037,099,160 in the preceding twelve months.

Operating Expenses Rise.

Operating expenses rose to $716,488,388 from $688,950,942 in the preceding twelve months. Taxes increased to $141,585,489 from $127,757,092.

Twelve months' net income of the system, applicable to American Telephone stock, fell to $156,741,291 from $195,504,204 in the twelve month period ended Aug. 31, 1937.

Walter S. Gifford, president of the parent company, said the Bell system gained 245,000 telephones in the first nine months of 1938. In the corresponding 1937 period the gain was 706,000 phones.

The rate of gain quickened in the third quarter, when 112,000 phones were added, Gifford said.

Hides to Lether—X.

The "vegetable" method of tanning is the oldest and still most important process in the lether industry. This method uses juices from the hemlock, chestnut, oak, spruce, or the hard South American quebracho.

Ninety-six per cent of the lether used for soles is cured with these "vegetable" extracts. In the nineteenth century, however, the tanning power of chromium salts was discovered as a cheaper process. Today 90 per cent of the lether used to make the upper parts of shoes is chrome-tanned. The mineral salts are said to add to the lether's wearing qualities.

Chrome tanning reduces the thickness of lether and is therefore undesirable in soles. Uppers are thin slices of the tanned hides and the chrome tanning is highly effective in producing pliable softness.

The mineral process is faster, taking about one-quarter of the time of the bark extract process.

Utility Stocks Rise on Signs of U. S. Peace

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 15.—Continuing to celebrate over signs of peace with the government, utilities ran away with the stock market today. They sold at their best prices in a year or more. A total of 1,468,810 shares changed hands during the two hours of trading. Volume was exceeded by only one Saturday this year, July 2, when 1,472,420 shares were traded.

Only aviation and copper stocks made any pretense of trying to keep up with the pace set by the utilities. Railroad issues suffered from some switching to the power group, and lost a little. The industrial list as a whole was irregular, with changes generally held to fractions.

Hope for Utility Construction.

Trading galloped along at a 4 million share a day pace during the first hour, when 830,000 shares changed hands. It was the busiest Saturday first hour in two years. Crowded behind at the outset, the ticker could not catch up for fifteen minutes.

Blocks of 1,000 to 8,000 shares appeared on the ticker frequently. Commonwealth and Southern opened unchanged at 1¾ on a block of 8,000 shares, soon advancing to 1⅞, where it closed for a ⅛ gain. The preferred was up 2⅜.

United Corporation Climbs.

United Corporation, volume leader with a 37,800 share turnover, opened with a sale of 7,000 shares at 3⅝ and then moved up to a new 1938 high of $4. On the curb, Electric Bond and Share, storm center in the government controversy, started out at a new top of 11 on a block of 12,500 shares. It closed at 13⅜, up 2⅞ points.

American Power and Light common moved up ¾ and its preferred issues jumped more than 2 points. Consolidated Edison was up more than a point, Commonwealth Edison gained ¾. Federal Light and Traction rose 2¼ on a single sale.

Other Utilities Gain.

Electric Power and Light common rose nearly a point, and the preferred stocks were more than 2 points higher. National Power and Light advanced ¾. Engineers Public Service issues gained a point apiece. Others gained as much or more.

Standouts among the metals with advances of a point or more were Anaconda, Phelps-Dodge, Cerro de Pasco, and Chile Copper, the latter up 5½.

Motors and steels took a back seat. General Motors managed to move up ½, but Chrysler lost ⅛. United States Steel, Bethlehem, and Republic scored fractional gains.

BANK CLEARINGS VOLUME BELOW WEEK, YEAR AGO

Chicago bank clearings last week declined to $298,700,000 from $300,800,000 in the preceding week and $318,200,000 a year ago. The Columbus day holiday was an influence.

Clearings, as reported yesterday by the Chicago Clearing House association, follow:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday ....$	38,900,000	$ 3,100,000
Tuesday	51,800,000	7,900,000
Wednesday.........	Columbus	day.
Thursday	77,400,000	10,200,000
Friday	74,700,000	4,500,000
Saturday	55,900,000	4,200,000
Total for week...	$298,700,000	$29,900,000
Corresp last year.	$318,200,000	$29,800,000

The New York Clearing house association reported clearings for the week were $3,338,393,270, compared with $3,690,347,518 in the preceding week.

GRAIN TRADERS

We look for wheat and corn futures to advance at least ten cents in the next sixty days. Furthermore, we believe Chicago May wheat will spend most of its time within a 70 to 80-cent price field. The above conclusions are arrived at principally from a study of prices in past years when supplies were about what they are now. The natural tendency for grains to advance in November following August to October declines is given some consideration.

Our bulletins of October 17 and 24, which give this grain price study, will be sent on receipt of $1.00.

WORLD'S BIGGEST BANK OMITS TRADE SURVEY DUE TO UNCERTAINTIES

The Midland bank of London, the world's largest bank, yesterday made the following announcement:

"In view of the recent international crisis and the impracticability of summarizing effectively the disturbed business conditions which have resulted therefrom, it is not proposed to publish an issue of the Midland Bank Monthly Review for September-October, 1938."

The bank usually publishes a monthly review containing sixteen to twenty pages.

PUBLIC SERVICE TO MARKET BIG LOAN WEDNESDAY

An $80,000,000 issue of Public Service Company of Northern Illinois refunding bonds will be placed on the market Wednesday. The issue, consisting of 3½ per cent first mortgage bonds, due in 1968, will be offered by an underwriters' group of 116 members. The offering is one of the largest utility financing opertions in recent years. Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., will head the underwriting group, handling $8,700,000 of the issue. Brown, Harriman & Co., Inc., will handle the next largest amount, $6,000,000.

Public Service of Northern Illinois is one of the Commonwealth Edison group of companies. Completion of this financing will make a total of about $225,000,000 of new securities offered by companies in the Edison group since June.

The program is being carried out to simplify the consolidated capital structure of the Edison group and to make way for an ultimate reduction of the ratio of funded debt to the total capitalization.

ADDRESS F A 332, TRIBUNE

Britain Studies Plan to Lure Gold from U. S.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 15.—A scheme to saddle the United States with the burden of replenishing Great Britain's shrinking gold stocks was advocated in market circles this week.

The proposal was that Great Britain take advantage of peace time conditions to realize immediately on some of its overseas investments while the opportunity is favorable. The consequent boosting of the country's gold reserves, it was contended, would have a reassuring effect in London and tend to slow down the flight of capital to New York.

"An obvious instance of liquidation of overseas assets," said the London Financial News, "would be reimbursement of Canadian government loans. The Dominion might allow itself to be persuaded to make repayment offers to British holders and to raise funds thus required in the United States or Canada itself.

Would Check Gold Drain.

"The American market would certainly be willing to absorb further amounts of Canadian issues. Thus the gold drain to the United States would be checked. This is practically the only way in which the United States could be persuaded to resume lending abroad on a large scale, and from this view alone the proposed solution is worth considering."

The flight of the pound gained force on the London market this week despite all efforts of the British control to check it. The movement no longer is commercial. According to observers it has developed almost entirely into a capital flight based on fears of the economic and political future of the country.

Expect Further Decline.

Hitherto, heavy sales of sterling and demand for dollars have been largely on continental account, but British capitalists now are reported to be sending their money to America also for the sake of the profit they expect to reap from a further fall in the pound, which they regard as a virtual certainty.

With the passing of recent war scare, sterling rallied to $4.82. This week it dropped again, sliding to around $4.73, and the British control fund lost millions in the fight to halt the decline.

The fears of British and European capitalists are attributed to two factors—the rapid decline of Great Britain's prestige in Europe, and the prospect of a huge British budget deficit. The flight from the pound, market men say, is a sure sign that money holders privately discount the British government's claim that Europe is more tranquil than before the Munich agreement.

URGE CONGRESS DO FIVE THINGS TO AID REVIVAL

TradeChamberAsks Fiscal Reforms.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States today outlined a five point recovery program for congress to consider at its next session. Government finances headed the list.

Action of congress on the following points, said the chamber in its publication Washington Review, "can make a positive contribution to enduring business recovery":

1. Prune government expenditures.
2. Revise the national labor relations act "to assure fair and equitable treatment to all interested parties."
3. Ease restrictions governing the flow of investment capital.
4. Change the social security act to eliminate the next scheduled increase in pay roll taxes.
5. Reconsider the wage-hour act "to end present confusion over the extent of its application."

Urges Financial Reforms.

"It is in the field of fiscal matters that congress will have its largest opportunity to lay a solid foundation for sound business recovery," said the chamber. "Putting the government's financial house in better order would seem to be the most urgent and most important problem that will confront the new congress."

There is no denying, the bulletin continued, that the threat of higher taxes is a major deterrent to business progress.

"Congress could relieve this apprehension by early formation of an orderly, systematic fiscal program designed to avoid further budgetary deficits through the reduction of expenditures rather than through new and increased levies," the chamber said. "Such a program would inevitably call for drastic changes in the present method of handling relief—a hangover from the emergency period. It is unsatisfactory and costly."

Urges Local Relief Work.

The contention of business, as expressed by the chamber, is that instead of the Rooseveltian relief machine this welfare work can be handled more efficiently and more economically by states and municipalities. The chamber said developments of recent months justify the wisdom of such a policy.

"It is too early as yet," the chamber continued, "to forecast what attitude congress will take on business-government policies. There have been some indications, however, that the approaching session will see a self-assertive congress and a stronger inclination to help business so that it can provide more permanent jobs and bigger pay rolls."

There is a strong conviction among business men, said the chamber, that congressional action on the points enumerated "would give aid and comfort to the current upturn in business."

CHICAGO STEEL MILLS TO START WEEK AT 45.3%

Steel mills in the Chicago district will start next week with an average operations rate of 45.3 per cent of capacity, the Dow-Jones financial news service estimated yesterday. Although this is a drop of 0.6 of a point from last week's output rate, it is a substantial gain over the 42.9 per cent of capacity rate of the corresponding week a year ago.

Next week will be the first in 1938 in which the Chicago steel making rate has climbed above 1937 levels, Dow-Jones said. At Pittsburgh steel ingot production is expected to start Monday at 40 per cent of capacity, unchanged from last Monday.

How to Analyze Common Stocks

Common stocks do not "stay put" for periods of time sufficient to sleep on an old appraisal. A leader today is dormant tomorrow. Its measure must be taken again and again. Thus it takes no expert to mark out AMERICAN TELEPHONE as a sound company but it takes real analysis to advise INLAND STEEL at 52 and have it rise as far in 23 months as AMERICAN TELEPHONE did in the 5 years from 1932 to 1937.

One factor there is, in the analysis of common stocks, that has nothing to do with the company's financial status or the irrational ratios that ceaselessly cumber charts.

It partakes in virtue of no "inside" information. It ignores the tedious tape tangles of tipsters. But it was the principal motivation behind LIBBEY OWENS FORD and PHELPS DODGE, which less than 5 months ago we recommended at 26¼ and 20¼ respectively. This vital element of analysis for profit exists as one of a series of super-factors responsible for the success of our clients in the money-making art.

This great rule is rooted in considerations so elementary that nothing can displace it. Yet less than ten experts use it or even know it thoroughly. This factor is not abstruse. It is not involved with the mathematics of managed money or Dr. Malthus. It is something that you and I can quickly learn and can talk sensibly about — something you can use on your broker to surprise him with your sagacity by lifting your account to prominence in his eyes.

It is fully set forth in clear terms on 12 pages of a 36 page booklet which deserves the ear of every investor. Many thousands of investors have already absorbed its simple precepts. Read the 12 pages today. They contain a rule and method of analysis which can be put to work as soon as you finish reading about it. Readers of this journal can get a copy without cost and can use it without obligation.

U. S. Puts 3½ Billions Into Private Realty

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—A United Press survey showed today that the federal government has approximately $3,500,000,000 invested in private real estate. At the beginning of September the Home Owners Loan corporation had outstanding an estimated $2,600,000,000 in loans on private residences. On June 30 the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation had outstanding $786,000,000 of loans on rural properties.

Foreclosures made the federal government owner of 85,634 private homes, valued at $459,120,217 as of Aug. 31. In addition, 22,910 pieces of foreclosed residential property were sold for $81,559,693, representing a loss of $12,000,000.

Foreclose on 10,558 Farms.

At the end of June the Farm Mortgage corporation had foreclosed on 10,558 farms. Sale of 2,713 of these left the government in possession of 7,845 farms.

In August foreclosures by the HOLC set a new low record for the fourth consecutive month. It had made loans totaling $3,093,000,000 up to June 12, 1936, when its lending authority ceased. Borrowers had repaid $462,502,475 of the principal by Aug. 31, or approximately 14.7 per cent of the entire indebtedness.

HOLC officials said that an improvement in the real estate market was indicated. They said that August collections totaled 94.6 per cent of the amount billed to HOLC borrowers in that month. Collections in September totaled 89.9 per cent, the drop being caused by the shorter month and the Labor day week-end.

HOLC Has 603,484 Accounts.

On Sept. 30 the HOLC had 603,484 accounts with borrowers who either were up to date on all their payments or less than three months in arrears. There were 118,214 accounts with borrowers who were meeting current payments and making monthly payments on arrearages, and 139,291 which were far in arrears but on which adjusted payments were being made.

The financial position of the farmers also seems to be improving, according to officials of the Farm Credit administration. This was indicated, they said, by an increase in lending by insurance companies and other private lenders to farmers. At the same time the load was being taken off the federal government.

Federal land banks, in which the government owns 50 per cent of the stock, and the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation had outstanding $2,804,000,000 of farm mortgage loans on June 30.

NEW DODGE CAR SHOWS CHANGE IN APPEARANCE

Several Mechanical Improvements Made.

The Dodge division of the Chrysler corporation is presenting a 1939 Dodge which is entirely changed in appearance from preceding models. Because it represents the silver anniversary model of the Dodge cars, the 1939 model has received special attention from the designers and engineers.

Everything about the appearance of the car has been changed—body contours, hood lines, front grilles, fenders, lamps, windshield, and running board. The conventional trunk is gone and the streamlining that starts at the front of the car extends to the rear. However, the concealed luggage space is 27 per cent larger than that in the trunk in preceding models.

Several Mechanical Improvements.

Among the mechanical changes are the following: Individual action front wheel suspension. Improved gear shift levers located on the steering column. Improved hydraulic brakes. Refinements in the construction of the engine. An improved clutch which makes gear shifting easier.

The headlamps are set flush in the front fenders. Visibility has been increased through the use of a windshield of new design, which has a 23 per cent increase in glass area. The corner posts have been trimmed to reduce blind areas.

Riding Qualities Improved.

Riding qualities have been improved by the front individual action springing and by new type semi-elliptic squeakless springs at the rear. The spring suspension is augmented by four airplane type double acting shock absorbers.

Powered by an 87 horse power engine, the 1939 Dodge comes in two lines—the Dodge Luxury Liner and the de luxe Luxury Liner series. Each line comes in four body styles.

F. H. Akers, vice president of the Dodge Brothers corporation, yesterday announced price reductions ranging to $55 on the new models. The $55 reduction applies to the two and four door sedans; prices on the coupe are reduced by $52.

Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. Increases Wages 5 Per Cent

St. Louis, Oct. 15.—(AP)—W. L. Collins, president of Hamilton-Brown Shoe company, announced today a 5 per cent increase would be given this month to employés in the company's plants at Columbia, Boonville, and Union, Mo. The increase will boost the company's pay roll approximately $75,000 annually, he said.

INDUSTRY'S HUM GROWS LOUDER; ORDERS EXPAND

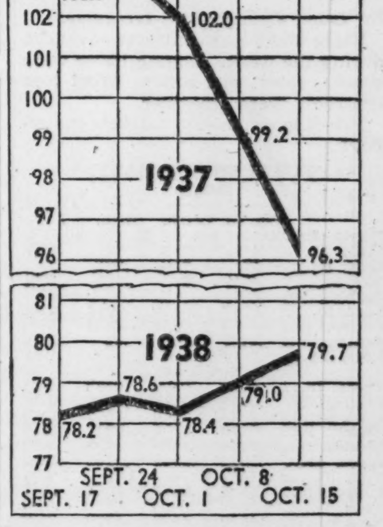
Many Men Recalled to Factories.

The hum of productive machinery in America's factories grew louder last week. Industry felt the invigorating effects of increasing autumn orders. More workers answered the call of factory whistles, and as output rose, raw materials were bought in larger volume at rising prices.

As in the preceding week, however, the outlook was blurred by signs of unfavorable conditions in the oil refining industry. Several refiners cut the price they pay for crude oil in an effort to restore vanishing profit margins.

Business Indices Improve.

On the whole, however, business—sick and careening downward a year ago—showed statistical improvement in the latest weekly period for which figures are available. Steel production touched a new 1938 high level.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding 1937 activity (1929-'30 average equals 100).

Mill output, as estimated by Iron Age, increased to 51.4 per cent of capacity, compared with 49 per cent a week earlier.

Some producers cut the price on steel sheets and strip used by automobile makers. This was in line with a trend in some industries recently toward lower prices as an incentive to increased consumer buying.

The automobile industry, in which there have been price reductions on 1939 models, continued to improve. Sales were reported to be making a good showing. The Cadillac-La Salle division of General Motors corporation was the latest to make price cuts. These ranged from $25 to $100 a car on the models affected.

Auto Output Increases.

Factory production increased to 50,450 cars and trucks for the week. This compared with 37,665 in the preceding week and 89,635 in the cor-

COMING BOOM IN DOGS

(MISTAKES TO AVOID)

by Major L. L. B. Angas

Author of "The Coming Scramble for Stocks", March 22, 1938

The above is the title of Major Angas's current Digest (No. 24). Single copies may be obtained from New Era Printers, 47 West Street, New York City. Investors who have recently bought single copies of Digests for $2 can enter an annual subscription for $22 instead of $25, providing they enclose this advertisement. Major Angas's two previous Digests were written Tuesday, 27th September, and Wednesday, 28th September, respectively. The following was the brief text of Digest 22:

"POSSIBILITIES: If Hitler should resign, climb down, or propose a war-referendum within Germany—buy the market immediately, up to 138 on the Dow Index."

Digest 23, written on 28th September, when the Dow-Jones averages closed at 133, was entitled "Be Bold and Buy." Recent market history has made the following extract from Digest 23 of particular interest.

"At the moment of writing, the Dow graph at 133 is at not only its Cyclical lower parallel, but also at its Intermediate lower parallel, and it has just made hour-to-hour and day-to-day shapes which constitute a minor-swing 'saucer.' Indeed graph readers (who happen to read graphs like I do) will never get, as long as they live, a more perfect series of graphic shapes to play with."

REMARKABLE TIMING

(1) The "Coming Scramble for Stocks" (Digest 15) published March 22nd, within 8 days of the cyclical bottom.
(2) The "Nose Dive" (Digest No. 19), published July 24th, within 2 days of the Intermediate top—and within a week of the 11-point Nose Dive. (Re-purchases were advised in advance on a 10-point drop.)
(3) The "Coming War" (Digest 21), published September 11th, two days before the 14-point War-Crash.
(4) Digest 22 saying "Buy—if Hitler climbs down," published one day before he did so (28th Sept.).

Thus in 1938 Major Angas's advices have once more justified his international reputation as a market analyst.

Digest 25

WHEN TO START SELLING

When markets are booming prudent investors begin to think of the problem of selling. In his "Nose-Dive" Digest (No. 19), which was published on the 24th July, within two days of the recent Intermediate top, Major Angas analyzed in detail the practical application of his "short term selling rules," laid down in Chapter 13 of his world-wide best seller, "Investment For Appreciation." As it happened, the analysis provided in Digest 19 proved timely, for not only was it issued at the virtual Intermediate top, but it was followed by an 18-point decline in the market. Subsequently Major Angas also hit the approximate Intermediate bottom with Digests 22 and 23—again in accordance with the rules of Chapter XII of "Investment For Appreciation."

But a new problem is now presenting itself, namely, "When to sell"—after the recent Rush-up. Can his rules be again applied with profit? Insofar as they are sound, the answer should be Yes. Wherefore, read Digest No. 25, entitled, "When to Start Selling."

Digest No. 25 will not be sold separately to the public, as an individual issue. It will only be sent to actual subscribers to his Digest Service. Therefore enter your subscription AT ONCE. The cost is as follows:

12 MONTHS DIGEST SUBSCRIPTION $25 ☐ 6 MONTHS $15 ☐

Major Angas's Digests which vary in length from brief massages to 30-page pamphlets, are issued when market conditions seem to warrant. Minimum number 12 per annum. The market policy followed in these Digests is a combination: (A) Of the widely-accepted principles of "Cyclical" and "Intermediate" investment, laid down in Major Angas's book, "Investment for Appreciation"; and (B) Of the modification thereto (and also to the well-tried Dow Theory) which must necessarily be adopted now that America is under deliberately Managed Money.

Always read Major Angas . . . . especially when the Public thinks he is wrong.

Personal Management Service

Major Angas is prepared to manage the portfolios of substantial clients, through their own brokers or bankers, for a contingency fee equaling 15% of the net appreciation. No other charges. Accounts (minimum value of $25,000) may be opened with existing securities. Funds remain in client's own custody. Accounts terminable at immediate notice. Full particulars on request. Single interviews $100

N. B.—Major Angas's management accounts, after being approximately 100% in cash for about two months, were reinvested in full on September 28th, in accordance with Digest 22. The following prices were paid:—New York Central 15⅛; Republic Steel 16⅛; Douglas 44; Remington Rand 13¾; International Telephone 8⅛; Paramount 9¾; Celanese 20; International Paper Pfd. 35½; Carrier Corporation 20½; Technicolor 20; Lehigh Portland Cement 19½.

Either follow "Investment For Appreciation"-OR-open a "trial" account ($15,000 minimum) with Major Angas.

[N. B.—Not all of Major Angas's Digests are advertised nor are they all obtainable separately; it is therefore wise to enter a regular subscription. Full-year subscribers ($25) may receive a free copy of his five-dollar book, "Investment For Appreciation" (until the current supply is exhausted), provided they tear out and return this advertisement. (Cash with order.)]

FORTUNE said (as far back as 1934): "Major Angas, by being consistently right for a period of ten years, has become somewhat of a legend."

COPPER LEADS WEEK'S RISE IN METAL MARKET

Other Commodities Show Irregular Trends.

Nonferrous metals, led by copper, continued to climb in cash and futures trading last week. Other staples moved unevenly.

Prices of both domestic and export copper were advanced to the highest levels since last November. Demand was active at home and abroad and statistics showed a substantial reduction of stocks during September.

Domestic copper, which sold in spot markets at 10⅝ cents a pound early Monday, was marked up three times to 11¼ cents. This price is 2¼ cents above the year's low of 9 cents set in May.

Foreign Copper Buying Heavy.

Buoyed by heavy Japanese buying and European purchases, export copper sold up to 11½ cents a pound at the end of the week, compared with 10.80 cents on the preceding Saturday.

Copper futures, closing yesterday with gains of 0.28 to 0.35 cent a pound, were 0.85 to 1 cent higher for the week.

The spot price of zinc last week was advanced 0.10 cent to 5.05 cents a pound, East St. Louis, for prime western grades. Zinc futures were up 0.15 cents a pound for the week, with gains of 0.01 to 0.03 cent yesterday.

Other Commodities Irregular.

Hides and sugar contracts advanced during the week. Edging lower were cocoa, rubber, and coffee. Wool tops contracts were irregular.

INDUSTRY'S HUM GROWS LOUDER; ORDERS EXPAND

Many Workers Recalled to Nation's Factories.

responding 1937 week. It was the first time since last May that production had exceeded 50,000 units. Officials of the Ford Motor company, attending a meeting in Chicago, predicted better automobile business in the coming model year.

The Chrysler Motor corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America reached an agreement which will send 8,000 more men back to work this week, union officials said. Two divisions of General Motors called 4,000 employés to jobs.

Freight car loadings were at the highest level so far this year. They totaled 702,964 cars in the week ended Oct. 8. This compared with 697,938 in the preceding week.

Heavy Building Active.

Engineering construction awards held above 1937 levels for the thirteenth consecutive week. The total for the latest week, which included the Columbus day holiday, was $49,086,000. This compared with $67,954,000 a week earlier, and $34,159,000 a year earlier.

The gain over a year ago resulted largely from public works projects, which have been speeded up under the preëlection spend-lend program. Private awards were below a year ago.

Residential construction rose to a new 1938 high mark. Output of electric power increased. Cotton textile manufacturing, beset by price uncertainties, declined. New financing, as reported by Poor's Publishing company, tumbled to 10 million dollars from 104 million a week earlier. A year ago the week's total was 6 million dollars.

The Public Works administration yesterday announced it will spend 300 million dollars for 6,500,000 tons of iron and steel in the next twenty-one months.

Industrial Index Figures.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity for the week moved up to 79.7 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. A week earlier it was at 79.0 per cent and year ago 96.3 per cent. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Automobile prod.....	37.0	36.1	101.8

*New 1938 high.

Retail trade showed irregular improvement as warm weather hindered sales in some regions. The commerce department's weekly review of thirty-six cities said "wholesale trade, employment, and basic industrial lines displayed definite signs of progress. Some manufacturing lines, however, were weak."

The stock and bond markets for the most part were buoyed by the industrial outlook.

SOY BEANS DIP; WHEAT FIRMER, CORN IS STEADY

Trading in soy beans featured operations yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Liberal hedging sales caused a decline of 2¼ to 3¼ cents from Friday's finish. All deliveries sold at new lows since 1935.

Speculators bought on the break and a moderate rally from the inside prices followed. Closing sales were 1¾ to 2¾ cents a bushel lower. The soy bean crop this season is officially estimated at 47,000,000 bushels, the largest on record.

Wheat and corn futures held within very narrow limits. Wheat closed ⅛ to ⅜ cent a bushel higher, largely in sympathy with the Winnipeg market, which was ¼ to ⅞ cent higher. Corn sold within ⅛ to ⅜ cent of the lowest level since May, 1934, in the early trading. Final sales were unchanged from Friday.

All deliveries of lard futures sold at new seasonal low levels. Closing trades were 2½ to 7½ cents per 100 pounds lower.

Individuals Lend Little, but You Have a Share.

Approximate distribution of the national debt, which now totals about 38 billion 400 million dollars. Figures are based on latest available data or estimates. Among the "others" holdings of 4.2 billions are bonds in hands of corporations and foreign investors.

Although the national debt has been doubled in the last six years and is now more than 38 billion dollars, individual investors have had almost no direct hand in lending the money to the government.

With the exception of buying 1 billion 400 millions of savings bonds in the last three years, they have not been direct purchasers of the bulk of the 19 billions of government bonds issued since 1932. But nearly every one lends indirectly to the government.

Who owns the national debt? It is estimated that individual investors hold little more than 2 billions of government bonds directly. This is less than 6 per cent of the debt.

Banks Own 56 Per Cent.

Who holds the other 94 per cent? About 56 per cent is owned by banks and insurance companies. Commercial banks have invested 14 billion 300 millions of their depositors' money in government bonds. The federal reserve banks hold another 2½ billions. Life insurance companies, with 4 billion 400 millions in governments, have 18 per cent of their assets in these bonds, compared with 2 per cent in 1929.

Another 6 billions, or 16 per cent of what the government owes, is in the investment portfolios of universities, colleges, endowments, and trusts of all kinds.

The government has borrowed from itself to the extent of 4½ billions, or 12 per cent of the total debt. This financing, involving no sales to public buyers of any kind, has been accomplished by the government's selling its own bonds to forty different governmental trust accounts or agencies.

Huge Sum in Taxes Invested.

The total includes more than 1 billion and a half collected in social security taxes which have been invested solely in the government's bonds. The old age reserve account carried $700,000,000 on July 27 and the unemployment trust fund $872,000,000 on the same date.

These sums held by banks, insurance companies, trust estates, other trust and endowment funds and the government itself make up, then, nearly 84 per cent of the debt.

Adding to this the 6 per cent in the hands of individuals, there remains about 10 per cent. This is held by corporations in so-called current asset accounts, by foreigners, and miscellaneous holders.

The distribution of the debt means that, although many citizens are not direct lenders, nearly every one is an indirect creditor of the government.

You Can't Escape Lending.

It is almost impossible not to invest in government bonds. Savings bank depositors and holders of insurance companies are big investors. Stockholders in many industrial firms are investors, because those firms carry part of their current funds in federal obligations.

This borrowing from institutions is a big factor in explaining why the government has not done much direct borrowing from individual investors. It has been easier to sell the bonds to institutions. With private borrowing by individuals and corporations small in recent years banks, insurance firms, and other institutions have been pressed to find places to invest their money.

On top of the government debt, 38 billions, moreover, are more than 4½ billions of contingent liabilities of the government. These consist of guaranteed obligations of governmental agencies. Commercial banks, alone, hold more than 2 billions of these contingent debts. Other institutions hold large amounts.

All Workers Loan to U. S.

But institutional holdings are not the only indirect means of borrowing from individuals. The man with a job, even if he has no savings account, no insurance, and no stocks, is probably a lender to the government.

He is if he pays the federal old age pay roll tax, because the trust fund into which the taxes go is used to buy government bonds. His old age security depends on the soundness of the government debt. So do his unemployment compensation benefits, because the unemployment fund is in government bonds.

Although this government practice of borrowing from itself through its own agencies and trust funds is not a new one, it has greatly increased under the present administration. It was formerly and still is used by the civil service retirement fund, the government life insurance fund, and the postal savings system, which invest in government bonds.

Loans to Rails and Employés.

Now, besides the two large social security funds, another $68,000,000 has been lent to the government by railroads and their workers through the railroad retirement account. The Federal Deposit Insurance corporation has helped government financing by buying $370,000,000 of federal bonds. And nearly every bank depositor pays "insurance premiums" to the FDIC.

The FDIC illustrates how governmental funds sometimes go back and forth. The government has spent $150,000,000 to buy half the capital stock in the FDIC. The FDIC, however, has proceeded to spend more than double this amount for the bonds of the government. Similarly, the government holds stock in the federal land banks, and the land banks have substantial government bond holdings. The same situation holds for numerous other agencies.

FEDERAL BOND PRICES CLIMB; UTILITIES GAIN

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—United States government bonds were buoyant today. Nine treasury issues reached new highs for the year. Gains ranged from 1-32 to 5-32 of a point, with activity centered on the treasury 2⅞s and 2¾s.

Public utility loans continued the center of speculative activity in domestic corporate bonds. They responded to persistent demand with further gains of fractions to 2 points. Pivotal railroad and industrial bonds did little more than mark time.

Foreign dollar obligations attracted little attention, and prices of leading issues varied only slightly from yesterday's finals. Some Italian corporate loans were higher. Yokohama 6s closed up 2¼ points on a single sale.

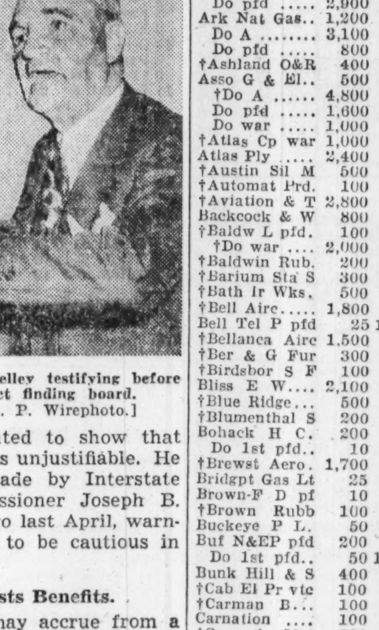
RAILS TESTIFY WAGE CUT LIKELY TO AID RECOVERY

Pelley Says Reduction Is 'Only Way Out.'

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[U. P.]—The railroad industry, in concluding its testimony before President Roosevelt's wage board, today described its proposed 15 per cent wage cut as a possible boon to recovery.



J. J. Pelley testifying before fact finding board. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Dr. J. H. Parmelee, chief statistician for the association, challenged statistics of railroad labor which the unions presented to show that wage reduction was unjustifiable. He cited a speech made by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman in Chicago last April, warning railroad labor to be cautious in its wage demands.

Parmelee Lists Benefits.

These benefits may accrue from a wage reduction, Parmelee said:

1. It would permit railroads to call back furloughed employés and thus reduce rail labor unemployment.

2. Railroads could "enlarge their building programs."

3. The carriers would be able to increase their maintenance forces.

4. The aggregate purchasing power of railroad employés may be maintained or even increased through recall of employés now without jobs.

5. Industry as a whole would be "stimulated by the purchases of materials and machinery which the railroads would be in a position to make."

6. Credit of some railroads would be improved so they could pay bills and acquire new credits for maintenance and other improvements.

Insists Cut Is Necessary.

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, said the proposed wage cut is the only possible solution of the rail problem.

"Immediate relief is absolutely essential in order to carry the industry through this period," Pelley said. He declared that any legislative program to help the rails "could not possibly avoid the necessity of the wage cut.

"The railroads have the most sympathetic consideration on the part of all officials from the president down, and we appreciate it," Pelley said. "With all of that there is nothing else that can be done and I know from my own knowledge and experience that there is no other way out."

Answers Wheeler's Testimony.

"I take it his purpose was to indicate that waste existed and there is no necessity for a wage cut," Pelley said. "That is not the fact. He said we fail to carry on research, and he is apparently not well informed. Our association is always engaged in research and many roads carry on their own work.

"The senator said we were buying trafic by purchases of materials at too high prices so we could carry those companies' goods, and he spoke of coal. The bituminous coal commission raised prices 20 cents per ton. Apparently the railroads had been buying coal at a price below what this federal agency thought to be a fair price."

BANKS TO TELL PUBLIC WHY THEY ARE NOT LENDING

Heads of the nation's largest banks, meeting in Chicago yesterday and Friday, agreed that bankers should do an about-face in their attitude toward the public. They decided that bankers with large cash reserves in their vaults should tell the public why they are not lending to industry, instead of holding the cash without explanation and thereby antagonizing the public.

The meeting was that of the Association of Reserve City Bankers, held behind closed doors at the Stevens hotel. That the need of "better public relations" as a chief topic of discussion was disclosed after the meeting by William F. Kurtz, president of the organization. Kurtz is president of the Pennsylvania Company of Philadelphia, one of the large eastern banking houses.

200 Bank Executives Attend.

The Reserve City Bankers is an organization of heads of leading banks in federal reserve cities. Attending the meeting were more than 200 bank executives.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, also attended the meetings. Among the Chicago bankers present were James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, and Edward E. Brown, president of the First National bank.

"Many of us bankers have been stupid in our public relations," Kurtz said. "We have let politicians blame us for helping to bring on depressions by over-lending, for hampering prosperity by refusing to lend.

Explains Loan Situation.

"This makes good political talk, but it puts the cart before the horse. Bankers do not create the demand for industrial credit. Industrial expansion, growing out of business men's confidence, is the main factor in making a demand for loans. There is not the loan demand today that many people think exists.

"Bankers want to make loans. We are going to go out of our way to make all sound loans possible and help the nation out of the present recession. We are going out of our way to use good manners in handling the public. When we cannot make a loan, we are going to tell why it is unsound.

"Bankers who meet here plan to go home to clean their own houses on the matter of public relations. They are going to tell their side of the story to the public."

Investors' Guide

Sunday, October 16, 1938.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

A Long Shot.

"A salesman is trying to sell me a half interest in a pair of silver foxes for $1,000. He tells me that these foxes will be used for breeding purposes on a silver fox farm and that the skins will be sold at a generous profit. What can you tell me about such a proposition?"

This question, asked by an inquirer recently, is typical of "fur farm" inquiries received by Investors' Guide from time to time. The farm promoter is not always a silver fox enthusiast. He may want to sell you a pair of minks, muskrats, or rabbits. He is almost sure to promise you big profits.

The proposition usually runs on this order: You buy a pair or several pairs of "breeders" from the promoter. They will be kept on his farm to be cared for at a minimum cost. The proceeds from the sale of the pelts will go to you after expenses of breeding and selling have been deducted.

"Invest $100 to $300 in rabbits—make up to $4,000 per year," is the optimistic proposition contained in one circular. But the breeding of rabbits and the breeding of big profits to the "investors" are two different operations.

Fur farming is an important industry. The man who is experienced may very well be a successful breeder and market the pelts with some profit. But the man who is inexperienced may find that he has stepped into a money losing experiment.

Unless you know first hand the operators of the farm in which you "invest," your venture will be a pure speculation. Be on your guard against the promoter who is unknown to you and who glibly promises to "double your money in no time."

In buying a pair of animals the buyer should have some way of identifying his pair, of knowing how many offspring they bear, and what the pelts sell for.

Even if you know the facts, the game is hazardous. Your operator may be unskilled. On thriving silver fox farms, run by skilled fox farmers, about 25 per cent of the animals die every year from disease. If one fox of the 25 per cent happens to be half of your pair, your profits from the breeding venture will disappear.

Lastly, remember that even the successful fur farm is not a formula for getting rich quick. Breeding is expensive. Disease cuts profits. Operators must meet competition.

COTTON

Hedging sales plus lower prices at Liverpool caused a small decline in cotton futures in American markets yesterday. Closing trades were unchanged to .04 cent a pound lower on active months. Liverpool, Bombay, and mills were fair buyers. Prices held within narrow limits.

The Commodity Credit corporation announced it had loaned farmers $43,561,000 on 939,593 bales of cotton up to Oct. 13. The loans averaged 8.91 cents a pound.

English authorities are taking a critical view of the American government loan policy. A Liverpool firm cabled yesterday: "The loan is resulting in a huge government controled surplus, with a loss of export trade to other countries. The high price of American cotton has largely paralyzed normal marketing. Foreign spinners and merchants are reverting to cheaper priced cotton from other countries."

Spot cotton closed unchanged to .04 cent lower, with New York 8.55 cents, New Orleans 8.46 cents, Houston 8.32 cents, and Galveston 8.25 cents a pound. Prices follow:

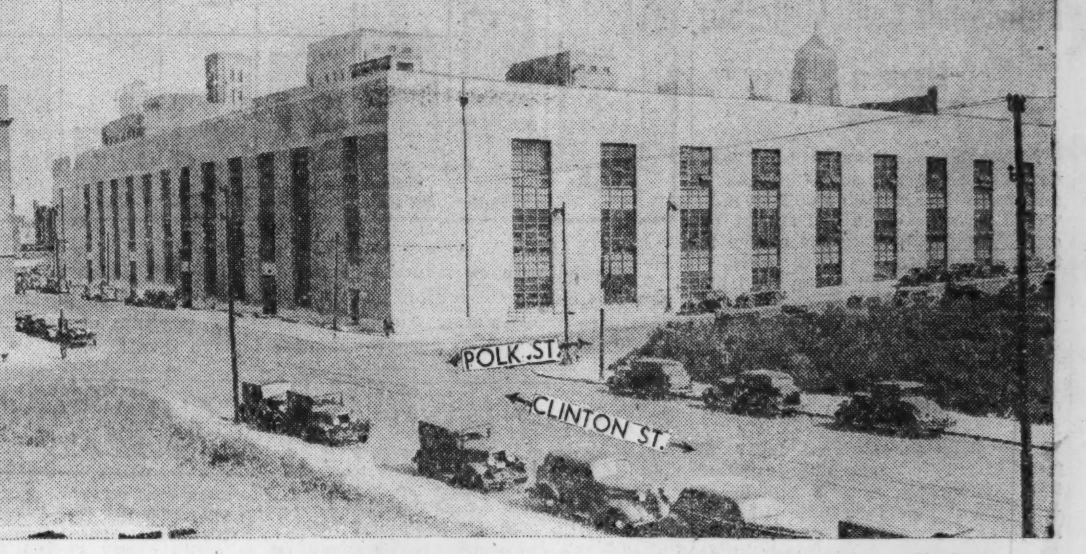
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

$1,561,000 Postoffice Garage



Tomorrow morning, Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen will dedicate and place in service what he describes as the world's largest government owned garage. It's a three story structure on Canal, Clinton and Polk streets which cost $1,561,000.

The first two floors are to be used for storage of the 750 motor vehicles used in transportation of mail in Chicago. On the third floor will be a service and repair shop for these trucks and other mail carriers in an area bounded roughly by Fond du Lac, Wis., Fort Wayne, Ind., Champaign, Ill., and Dubuque, Ia.

The Chicago postoffice received its first motor trucks, a fleet of twenty-one, on Nov. 22, 1915. On July 1, 1929, the last horses were retired.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

PARENTS, PLEASE NOTE.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Some one ought to tell the parents of the three boys who were playing cowboy on the open range with their smoking flivver on Augusta boulevard this afternoon. They were racing, and at Austin avenue skidded through a red light, unable to stop until in the middle of the cross street. The license number of the car was 958—661.

PARKING LOT COWBOYS.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—How much longer must motorists pay to have fenders dented, gears broken, etc., by maniacs employed in parking lots? No doubt there are thousands of automobile owners who pay exorbitant fees and receive damaged autos when they place their cars in the hands of these "cowboys," who immediately seize the wheel and race around these small lots as if they were entrants in the 500 mile classic at the Indianapolis motor speedway.

I recently had the misfortune to park my car in an R. G. Lydy lot at Harrison street and Michigan avenue. When I returned I had an automobile with a broken gear due to a sudden stop and quick shifting of gears. The satisfaction I received from the Lydy company? The same as China received from Japan—"So sorry."

Chicago can derive needed revenue by forcing companies to have licensed attendants, thus assuring the motorist his property is in safe hands. How about it, motorists? Shall we demand a fair shake or shall we remain helpless?

J. S.

WEST MADISON STREET.

Maywood, Ill., Oct. 9.—For some time I have intended to write to you, but your article and pictures of West Madison street tell a story that I have wanted to have brought to the attention of the public and, I hope, the proper authorities. I travel this street five days a week and know how lax is the enforcement of even common courtesy in parking. Central and Madison is perhaps the worst spot west of Garfield park. In the winter especially the Yellow cabs monopolize about two blocks east of Austin with angle parking. Austin and Madison is always a bottle neck with the nagle parking west and east of Austin.

The street cars turning off Madison to enter the terminal stop on the curve while they unload passengers, often starting up without regard for the auto. I cannot see why they cannot pull off the street and then discharge their passengers. Sometimes the other cars are not run around fast enough and then there is a blockade. It would seem that the starter at this terminal could watch this situation and keep the cars up so the incoming car could always pull off the street. The Checker cab stand at this point is somewhat of a nuisance, especially when double parking.

H. V. MAIN.

ROOSEVELT ROAD DISORDER.

Oak Park, Oct. 10.—Thanks for your picture of Madison street in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. We are long suffering people on the west side.

You can get better pictures on Roosevelt road around Kedzie avenue. This is a regular circus grounds, every man for himself, and what fun [if you care for that kind of fun]. Several people have been killed here but that's their hard luck.

During last month's rain of several days' trafic was moving about eighteen miles an hour on slippery car tracks, the only place to drive as cars were parked and double parked everywhere. I complained to the commissioner of police with no results. On Sunday morning at 8 o'clock I counted 8 cars double parked in three blocks with plenty of room at the curb.

MRS. MARY DALEY.

LOST IN PARKING LOT.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Last night after the All-Star game my husband and myself, and hundreds of others, spent an hour searching the parking lot for our cars. Surely this deplorable parking condition could be remedied. Many persons refuse to attend any event at Soldiers' field on this account.

MRS. C. R. FINLEY.

DEALERS' PLATES.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—I see hundreds of privately owned cars using dealers' plates, which can be had at greatly reduced prices. If State's Attorney Courtney is what they say he is this would be a good job for his office to investigate.

ART CLARK.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Because driving too fast accounts for many automobile accidents some manufacturers are putting danger signals on speedometers as a safety measure. Harry G. Moock, sales vice president of the Plymouth division of the Chrysler corporation, described the new safety system in Chicago last week. He was one of the speakers at the National Safety council's silver jubilee congress at the Stevens hotel.

"The system is to light the speedometer on the dash with green light at moderate speeds," Moock explained. "Above 30 miles an hour the light changes to amber, but if the speed indicator passes the 50 mile mark the light changes to bright red.

"Selling safety is as fundamental in the auto industry as selling autos. To do an effective job of selling safety to the public, our efforts must begin back in the shops, practicing safety among ourselves and preaching it to every man on the job."

Moock said the modern auto factory has well organized safety and health departments. These keep watch over workers and check new processes for possible menaces to health and safety of the men. The new precision machines have electric safeguards of various types, including the electric eye.

The way to enjoy an automobile is to drive at moderate speed—about 45 miles an hour in the country—W. A. Hilman, service manager of the Chrysler division, Chrysler corporation, says. "Many motorists believe that the success of a tour depends on the number of miles covered," he says, "but I think this is a mistake. With the high speeds of which modern cars are capable, it is true that a lot of miles may be driven in a day. It is my opinion that the motorist who covers 250 or 300 miles a day will enjoy himself much more than one who exceeds that."

NEW CADILLAC AND LA SALLE ON VIEW THIS WEEK

The 1939 Cadillacs and La Salles are being placed on display this week throughout the country. These cars, which represent General Motors luxury lines, include numerous refinements in mechanical operation and improvements in riding qualities.

Among the improvements listed for both Cadillac and La Salle are the following: Controled action ride produced by an improved rear spring suspension. Increased visibility through an increase of 27 per cent in glass area and narrowing of the body pillars. Refinements in the gear shifting mechanism which is located on the steering column. Smoother power flow derived from the relocation of side engine supports. Greater economy in oil consumption.

The La Salle will be offered in five body types powered by a 125 horse power V-8 engine. The Cadillac "61" comes in four styles and the Sixty Special in only the touring sedan without running boards. Both lines are powered by 135 horse power engines. Twelve custom-built models will be available on the Cadillac Fleetwood and Cadillac Sixteen.

PARKED AUTOS BECOME A MAJOR TRAFIC PROBLEM

Advocate City Owned Lots Near Business Section.

BY HAL FOUST.

Highway officials, since the first automobile, have been concentrating talent and expenditures upon improving facilities for the moving vehicle. Last week a round table discussion in the Stevens hotel by 300 members of the Institute of Trafic Engineers brought out that the car that is standing has become as acute a problem. The opinions of these experts coincided with a common motoring experience—it's frequently easier to get somewhere than it is to dispose of the car at the destination.

All aspects of the parking problem were discussed with factual backgrounds and analytical predictions. Fred W. Fisch, director of the bureau of trafic and city planning of Schenectady, N. Y., cited arguments for the development of city owned and operated parking lots in neighborhoods of depressed realty values conveniently adjacent to the central business district.

Essential to Retailing.

Mr. Fisch pointed out that only city ownership can assure a continued operation of existing parking lots on real estate too valuable for parking fees to pay taxes and to return a profit to the property owner. At the same time, he added, parking facilities are essential to adjacent retailing and that unless they are continued an uneconomic decentralization of business will be hastened.

E. B. Lefferts of the Automobile Club of Southern California told of efforts by Los Angeles merchants to combat this decentralization by providing off street parking for their customers.

"With the greatest concentration of automobile ownership in the world, 928,744 passenger cars registered in the county," he said, "Los Angeles has faced motor car problems earlier than other American cities. The downtown lots are operated on a chain system, with cars being shuttled to and from outlying lots.

Parking with $1 Purchase.

"Merchants downtown furnish free parking with every purchase over $1. They spent between $150,000 and $160,000 on this service last year, and enjoyed sustained patronage and a reduction in delivery costs. Office buildings with basement storage for their tenants remain filled while other buildings have vacancies. A large market had to close because it couldn't compete with markets with parking for their customers.

"Banks, shoe repair shops, and stores have been forced to provide parking for their customers. There are drive-in movies where you can sit in your car and watch the pictures. There are drive-in restaurants serving a five course dinner to you in your car.

"A Los Angeles ordinance provides that in the construction of a multiple family residential building there must be offstreet parking accommodations for one car for each family."

Maxwell Halsey of the Yale university trafic research bureau, emphasized the commercial value of centralization and argued that it is as much a function of a city to provide parking facilities as it is for a city to provide pavements for trafic.

Twice Cost to Motorist.

Hawley S. Simpson of New York, research engineer for the American Transit association, reported on a national survey of parking meter operation. He said that the cost to motorists of nickel curb parking was about twice the cost of regulating limited time parking on the streets with policemen without the nickel meters.

J. B. O'Connell of the Chicago Surface Lines said that it was a duty of trafic engineers to enlighten merchants on the value to them of regulating parking in their districts to increase the accessibility of their stores to customers.

Herbert R. McCaske, Detroit police inspector, told of his city's plan to build a double decked parking area in Cadillac square, in the heart of the business district. He also said his city was having a satisfactory experience from locating cab stands at fire plugs so as to increase the space for storing unattended cars at the curbs away from fire plugs.

WOMEN REVEAL WIDE INTEREST IN PRESS PARLEY

Leaders Tell Value of Conference.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Fifty years ago women did not know their own strength. Today they are a concerted influential body in world affairs. This success is due to their willingness to learn.

Mrs. Wade W. Reece.

Indicative of this attitude, hundreds of women will attend THE TRIBUNE press conference to be conducted by Miss Betty Browning, club editor, Nov. 2 and 3 in the W-G-N audience studio. Originally scheduled for Nov. 3 only, the conference had to be extended to accommodate the influx of reservations. Tickets will be mailed out in a fortnight.

The program for the two days will be both entertaining and instructive. Staf members of THE TRIBUNE will explain the workings of their departments and a playlet depicting the trials and tribulations of a publicity chairman will be staged.

From Diverse Organizations.

Hundreds of south and southwest side clubwomen from federated groups, parent-teacher associations, leagues of women voters, hospital auxiliaries, university alumnæ associations, Daughters of the American Revolution units, business and professional women's organizations and American Legion auxiliaries will attend.

Mrs. Arthur Guillaudeu.

Mrs. Wade W. Reece, president of the 2d district in the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, has made certain that her district will be well represented, having announced it at her board meeting last Thursday. The announcement will be repeated at the annual autumn district meeting this Thursday in the Del Prado hotel. "Press chairmen need the training of skilled newspaper people," says Mrs. Reece, "and presidents as well as program chairmen need to know the difficulties connected with obtaining publicity. The conference will set us all straight. We all appreciate the advantage being offered to us by THE TRIBUNE."

Says Ideas Invaluable.

Speaking for the P.-T. A.'s, Mrs. Arthur Guillauden, president of the High School council of Districts 1 and 25, expressed her enthusiasm at being offered such a conference. "We have sent out notices to all our representatives urging them to attend. I believe the instructions will be invaluable to our women. I know that those who have attended the conference formerly certainly go about their press releases in a very business like fashion."

"I have attended fifteen openings of clubs during the autumn season," said Mrs. Thomas Gifford, newly elected president of the 3d district in the Illinois federation "and will speak at more before the conference is held. At all of the meetings I have requested the presidents, program press chairmen to make their reservations for either Nov. 2 or 3. It is extremely important to us that we know how to make our projects known to the public at large and a press class is the only way we will learn."

Mrs. Thomas Gifford. [Koehne Photo.]

Meets Chairmen's Need.

Writing for tickets, many press chairmen have expressed their thanks at being allowed to attend such a meeting. Mrs. Kenneth C. Sears of the Hyde Park League of Women Voters writes, "This conference is just what I need and I am sure many other publicity chairmen feel the same. You have always coöperated on our publicity and this conference is the finest coöperation possible."

Others, such as Mrs. W. W. O'Connell of the Thornton Township High School P.-T. A., say "As a newly appointed press chairman, I feel that this conference will be of great value to me." From Calumet City Woman's club Mrs. R. E. Pfeifer expresses her appreciation, "It is wonderful to be offered such an opportunity and it seems to be no more than expected that so generous an offer should come from the world's greatest newspaper."

Stealing Grandma's Styles

MISS HELEN LEWIS.

The modish maid of today is a copy cat! She has stolen grandmother's styles with the rustle of taffeta, the wasp waist, and the curls high in her hair. Proving it is fashionable to be old-fashioned, members of the Englewood Woman's club will conduct a style show Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 26, in connection with a bridge luncheon at the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive. The ways and means committee will collect the proceeds. The style show will be under the direction of Mrs. Jetta Reid, 6900 Jeffery avenue.

Being demure in American Beauty taffeta [incidentally a color that hasn't been in style since the sentimental pre-war days], Miss Betty Shaver, 8015 Langley avenue, will walk the runway at the show. Her dress will be trimmed with [believe it or not] forget-me-nots!

The quaint First Evangelical Lutheran church . . . one of the oldest buildings in Blue Island . . . built on land that cost only $400 . . . made of hand cut stone which was hauled from a local quarry by ox teams . . . dismissed its first pastor for heresy . . . led by only eight pastors in seventy-five years, three of whom were father and sons . . . now the second largest church in the American Lutheran church boasts the largest school in the sect . . . stands unchanged over three-quarters of a century.

The Rev. W. J. Ferne. [Fordtran Studio.]

Such facts dot the history of Blue Island's pioneer church which will celebrate its diamond jubilee beginning next Sunday and continuing until Oct. 30 under the chairmanship of the Rev. W. J. Ferne, pastor.

Seventy-five years ago Blue Island was a tiny village surrounded by the prosperous farms of a German speaking colony. Pious and God-fearing by nature, the farmers were wont to band together for small prayer meetings. In 1862 the Rev. W. Stubnatzi, who at that time resided at Cooper's Grove, assumed charge of these meetings and gathered about him a following of sixty-six members of the Lutheran faith.

First Meet In Home.

At first these services were held in the home of Peter Engelland at the south village limits, then graduated to the Bauer brick house and finally to the school house at the stone quarry. But permanency being a definite part of the German temperament, the farmers soon found these arrangements unsatisfactory.

In January, 1863, they set about organizing an Evangelical Lutheran church, elected a board of directors, and made plans for the building of a church. The corner stone was laid May, 1864.

The building was dedicated in July of '64, having been erected of local quarry stone at $2.50 a cord. The parishioners took turns at lending their ox and horse teams from their farms for the hauling of materials.

During the building of the church a man, who is only recorded now by the name of Israel, was appointed as its first pastor. Nine months later he was driven away by the strict Lutheran congregation for heretical teachings. Next came a minister by the name of Reinke, staunch in his faith and business like in his pastorate.

Seven Other Pastors.

Seven other pastors followed as the years passed, until 1931 when the Rev. W. J. Ferne, who had served the Lutheran church in four states, came to Blue Island. Realizing that no longer was the congregation completely German speaking, the Rev. Mr. Perne introduced two English services to augment one German worship on Sundays. Eleven church organizations have flourished under his leadership.

The Rev. Mr. Ferne will begin the diamond jubilee service next Sunday morning at the English 9 o'clock service, and the Rev. M. P. F. Doermann, who is the immediate former pastor of the church, will appropriately take over the German anniversary service at 10:30 o'clock. The children's service at 7 o'clock in the evening will be conducted by Carl Amelung, while the young people's meeting will be led at 8:15 o'clock by the Rev. Gerald E. Ferne, son of the present pastor.

Service for Women.

The anniversary observance during the week will include a service for women by the Rev. George Durkop Monday evening, Oct. 24; a social get-together of the congregation Tuesday evening, Oct. 25; a community service conducted by the Rev. William Zibell Wednesday evening, Oct. 26; music night held by the Rev. A. C. Ernst Thursday evening, Oct. 27, when the Glee club will repeat the sacred cantata, "Ruth the Moabitess," and a mission service by Dr. P. H. Buehring Friday evening, Oct. 28.

Sunday, Oct. 30, will close the anniversary program. The Rev. G. H. Doermann will be in charge of the school service at 9 o'clock in the morning and at 10:30 o'clock an English and German memorial service will be conducted by the Rev. William Durkop and the Rev. Fred Kordewich.

On Committee for Fête.

Members of the anniversary committee in charge of all arrangements are Ralph Jebsen, general chairman; Miss Frieda Doermann, secretary; William Bauch, Harry Voss, Mrs. R. F. Heitmann, Elmer Mangold, Miss Louise Damm, Paul Domrow, Auguste Hannebohm, A. W. T. Doermann, Rudolph Storz, Miss Fredericka Vohs, Mrs. Gustav, and Edward Bochmann.

DEMOCRATS GET LATE START IN CONGRESS RACE

Hold Fire for Last Days of Campaign.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Rivalry in the congressional campaign on the south and southwest sides was intensified last week as the Democratic nominees — most of them incumbents — began marshaling their strength to meet the G. O. P. offensive that began several weeks ago.

Harry P. Beam.

Almost without exception the Democrats have saved their heavy oratory for the final month of the contest that will end with the Nov. 8 elections. No such reticence has been observed, however, by the Republicans, who are depending largely on a long sustained attack to wear their foes down.

Asks for Coöperation.

In the 4th district Representative Harry P. Beam, who has yet made no official reply to the attack of his G. O. P. adversary, Dominic M. Janec Jr., launched his reëlection fight with a defense of administration measures and an appeal for greater coöpera-

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

GIRL SCOUTS of the southeast district will follow a new director this fall, Miss Elizabeth Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. D. Scott, 1419 East 58th street. She obtained her bachelor of philosophy degree from the University of Chicago in 1935, and received her professional Scout training at Association camp in Colorado in 1937. Last year she was assistant to the southeast director, and this summer was leader of the Clippership unit, one of the oldest age groups at Jupiter Knoll, the Chicago camp in Wisconsin.

Miss Elizabeth Scott.

ANOTHER youthful Our Towner with accomplishments is Jane Hull Wagner, daughter of T. Rowan Wagner of the Flossmoor Country club and grand-daughter of the late H. B. Hull, vice president of the Illinois Central railroad. Jane captured not only the girls' but the women's tennis championship at the South Shore Country club this year.

George M. Porter, 3500 South State street, is engaged in a hot but non-political campaign in which he is stumping for votes like a veteran. A candidate for the mayor of "Bronzeville," he has three opponents, Robert H. Miller, B. H. Huggins, and Clinton A. Brown. The contest will end tomorrow night with a swing ball in the Savoy ballroom at which prominent orchestra leaders will appear.

MOST embryo drummers bend their talent in the direction of Ray Baudus and Gene Krupa, famous swing band beaters, but not Harley Nosker. Junior, as he is known to his friends, a member of the 1938 graduating class of Whiting High school, has been appointed drummer in the Kryl Symphony orchestra. The orchestra, under the direction of Bohumir Kryl, left Erie, Pa., recently for a ten weeks' concert tour through the eastern and southern states. Harley also was a member of Father Lach's Symphonic band which toured Europe last summer. He captured first honors in the national contest last year, and took first in the district and state contests the year previous. He has studied under Andrew V. Scott, Chicago.

School addenda: The names of five students from the south and southwest sides were added to the mythical roll of honor of Our Town for varied achievements. Betty Snider, 8307 South Paulina street, and Jean McDonald, 6517 Yale avenue, were elected president and secretary, respectively, of Entre Nous, only girls' organization at the Central Y. M C. A. Day High school.

Rita Rourke, 5445 Dorchester avenue, was graduated from Providence hospital, Washington, D. C., where she had been in training for nursing for the last three years. She was vice president of the senior class and assistant editor of the class paper.

Florence Wright, 2106 West 101st street, and Jane Waldron, 10531 Longwood drive, students at Rosary college, River Forest, will blend their voices with the speech choir which will present a program at 5 o'clock today over the National Broadcasting company system.

Next Sunday will be a golden day for Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Blumenthal, 4711 Ellie avenue. From 7 o'clock in the evening they will greet their friends at an open house, celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary. Married in Chicago, they have been residents here for about sixty-five years.

REPORT FAVORS RE-ELECTION OF 7 INCUMBENTS

NoContest Elections Bring Censure.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Four southwest side state senators and representatives who are candidates for reëlection on Nov. 8 were denied indorsement by the non-partisan Legislative Voters league in its report on nominees for the 61st general assembly made public yesterday.

Rep. Schnackenberg.

The unindorsed incumbents are Senator Charles Baumrucker [7th, D.] and Francis J. Loughran [13th, D.], and Representatives Calvin T. Weeks [11th, R.] and Jorn G. Ryan [13th, D.].

Five incumbents were recommended or indorsed for reëlection and two were approved. Those recommended were: Senators William E. King [3d, R.], John M. Lee [11th, D.], Richard J. Barr [41st, R.], Representative Elmer Schnackenberg [13th, R.], and Representative Richard J. Daley [9th, D., candidate for senate].

The two approved were Representatives Michael E. Hannigan and George A. Fitzgerald, both Democrats of the 11th district.

Two Win Praise.

The highest praises were paid in the report to Representative Schnackenberg in the 13th and David I. Swanson, Republican, former member of the lower house who is a candidate in the 11th. Swanson was indorsed instead of the present Republican incumbent, Weeks.

David I. Swanson.

The report said Schnackenberg should, "by all means, be reëlected." It did not indorse his Republican running mate, William G. Henry. The statement on Swanson said, "Deserves election by all means." In the report it gave no reason for not indorsing Weeks.

In a foreword to the report the League points to the newly instituted legislative council as a promising contribution toward the improvement of the functional efficiency of the legislature. The council will present the results of its initial labors to the 61st general assembly in January. It is now studying the state school board question and congressional reapportionment.

Attacks Party Agreements.

The League attacked bi-partisan agreements in districts where party senatorial committees decided last spring to nominate only one member from one party and two from the other for the house instead of two from each. In such districts the primary election was tantamount to election, and the November vote will be a mere formality.

Only three of the southwest districts have contests in the house elections. The report pointed out that of 25 districts in the state where voters still can make a choice from more than three candidates for the lower house, six are in Cook county.

In the report on candidates the League made no recommendations where candidates are uncontested. The report on the southwest districts follows:

DEMOCRATS TAKE LATE START IN CONGRESS RACE

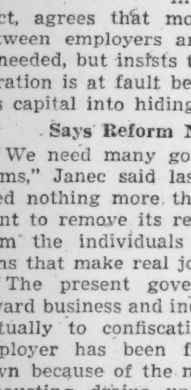
tion with the President's program.

"There must be a greater understanding and better coöperation between business and government if the unemployment slack is to be taken up effectively," Representative Beam said.

"It is a matter of simple fact that we must create real jobs for the unemployed if we are to continue to be a rich and prosperous nation. I regard the providing of work as the underlying issue of this campaign.

"We have gone a long way in this direction, but not far enough. Industry must absorb a great number of the present jobless men and women."

The seventy-fifth congress did much to aid recovery, Representative Beam declared. Among the helpful measures he listed the flood control appropriations, progress in conciliating warring labor factions, assistance and benefits to agriculture, aid to business through enlargement of the scope of the RFC, and the home loan and slum clearance programs.



Dominic M. Janec Jr.

Janec, the Republican nominee in Beam's district, agrees that more coöperation between employers and government is needed, but insists that the administration is at fault because it frightens capital into hiding.

Says Reform Needed.

"We need many governmental reforms," Janec said last week. "We need nothing more than for government to remove its restraining hand from the individuals and organizations that make real jobs.

"The present government policy toward business and industry amounts virtually to confiscation. Many an employer has been forced to shut down because of the more and more exhausting drains upon his profits made by a hostile administration. A Republican majority in congress can change all this."

Cites Social Legislation.

Mr. Kelly challenged Republicans to "state honestly whether they favor repeal of the social security act, of the act insuring bank deposits, of the work relief act, and numerous other worth-while social legislation that has been placed on the statute books by this administration."

Mr. Dosland declared that government hostility to all business hurts the little fellow most.

"The small business man," he said, "cannot withstand the effects of constant experiment and the veering and shifting of government policy as well or as long as the big fellow can. The recession has crippled small business and made life hard for the employés of small business.

"The industrial strife fostered by government labor policies has hampered all business and industry, and it has also driven hundreds of little fellows to the wall."

Argue Racial Representation.

In the predominantly colored 1st district the issue of racial representation continues to occupy a large place in the spotlight. Both candidates are Negroes. Ald. William L. Dawson [2d], the Republican nominee, charges that his Democratic opponent, Representative Arthur W. Mitchell, curries the favor of whites to the detriment of his own race. This the 1st district congressman denies.

The 6th district fight, the only three cornered scrap in the Chicago area, warmed up last week as A. F. Maciejewski of Cicero, the Democrat, and Michael J. Creighton of Chicago, the new Independent, announced their platforms and swung into the fray. The G. O. P. nominee, Robert Isham Randolph of River Forest, has been campaigning for several weeks.

Maciejewski, the regular organization choice of a successor to the retiring 6th district congressman, Thomas J. O'Brien, promised to work for shorter hours with more pay. He declared in favor of a strong national defense, but against foreign entanglements.

For War Embargoes.

Creighton advocates the removal of government competition with private industry, as in the electrical power field. He calls for strict observance of the neutrality law, an impartial embargo on war materials, and other measures that would keep the nation from waging aggressive war.

Randolph demands a balanced budget, preservation of our present form of government, and a better deal for both labor and employers. He, too, favors an adequate defensive setup, but warns against taking part in other nations' quarrels.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Pilot, 5228 Albany avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Anne, to Harry G. Hansen, 6152 Kolin street. Miss Pilot is a member of Kappa chapter, Chi Sigma Beta sorority.

BEAUTIFICATION OF DES PLAINES IS DINNER TOPIC

Civic Group Also to Hear Highway Plans.

"The Beautification of the Des Plaines River," a topic which has been the goal of the Des Plaines Valley Improvement association for many years, will be the subject of the main address at the association's third annual good will dinner Thursday evening in the Kinsman Country club, four miles east of Archer road on 143d street. Col. Robert Isham Randolph of Riverside and Chicago will be the speaker.

The D. V. I. A. is composed of civic organizations from Argo-Summit, Joliet, Justice, Lemont, Lockport, Romeo, Sag, and Willow Springs townships. Its campaign for the conservation and improvement of the lower Des Plaines river recently gained strength under the chairmanship of Dr. L. H. De Krauze of Argo, who pointed out that the river is one of the few bodies of water with a natural and scenic setting within easy access of Chicago.

Point to Pollution.

The findings of Dr. De Krauze's committee reveal that the waters are now a cesspool, notably the lower stream between Hoffman dam and Lockport, caused by the inflow of constantly accumulating sludge from the upper waters where some of the municipal sewers are still emptying into the river.

Beginning from Argo all the way south the original course of the Des Plaines has been diverted for the construction of the sanitary canal. The flow has been forced to seek and to cut its own channel through a limestone ledge extending south toward Willow Springs. The result, according to the committee's report, is the formation of stagnant pools where fish die of exhaustion and marsh gas.

The D. V. I. A.'s plans would turn the district into a park first by halting all pollution, cleaning and deepening the channel, and by deeding all available land owned by the sanitary district along the banks to the forest preserve for conversion into recreation centers.

Hear Superhighway Plan.

In addition to the report on the river beautification project, members of the association will hear plans for the proposed superhighway to the southwest explained by a representative of the Chicago Motor club at the good will dinner.

Reserveations for the dinner will close today. Members of the committee on arrangements include Ralph Strand of Lemont, general chairman; Clarence Barrett of Argo-Summit, Frank Jonak of Justice, Daniel Lynch of Willow Springs, the Rev. Peter Geraghty of Sag, Glen Miller of Lockport, and M. J. Musser of Joliet. The women's committee in charge of card playing will be composed of Mrs. Ralph Strand, Mrs. Walter Bush of Lemont, Mrs. Frank Sloan, Mrs. Pauline Stell, Mrs. Bruce D. Cheadle of Lockport, Mrs. Eugene Drenning and Mrs. Ken Turman of Joliet.

PRESENTS THE GOSPEL IN STORY FORM TO THE SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Lloyd C. Douglas.

Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas, who resigned from his pastorate at St. James United church, Montreal, Canada, five years ago because he felt he could better spread the Gospel message by novel and film, will present a new and original short story tonight to the audience of the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall.

Dr. Lloyd's address is entitled "The Mirror" and it deals with an imaginary conversation between the Master and Zacchæus after the latter, of "short stature," had been summoned from his vantage point in a sycamore tree whence he was viewing the passing throng. He finally sees mirrored in the loving glance of the Teacher his own realization of the utter vanity of earthly possessions.

The anthems to be sung by the club's choir directed by Edgar Nelson include Handel's "Let Their Celestial Concerts all Unite!" and "Ho, Every One That Thirsteth," by Macfarlane. At the 7 o'clock service Clifford W. Barnes, president of the club, will give the second of his new Bible talks on "The Father's Business."

Church Convention Honors Mrs. Orville A. Sardeson

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The United Lutheran Church in convention last week in Baltimore, Md., signally honored Mrs. Orville A. Sardeson, 730 North East avenue, Oak Park, by electing her chairman of the personnel committee of the Women's Missionary society and announced that she was one of two Lutheran women of America who would be sent to the world missions convention at Madras, India, in December.

Mrs. O. A. Sardeson. [Toloff Studio.]

As chairman of the personnel committee Mrs. Sardeson leads in the selection of women missionaries commissioned out by her church. She has been a member of the executive board of the Lutheran Missionary society and a member of the board of deaconess work for several years.

Her selection as one of two of American Lutheran women for the Madras meeting was made by the National Foreign Missionary council representing missionary coöperation of more than a score of American denominations.

Consider Chicago Office.

Possibility of opening a Chicago office of the National Lutheran council was announced at the Baltimore session by Dr. Ralph H. Long of New York, executive director of the council.

The council was set up as a wartime agency to look after Luthern interests in such matters as chaplaincies and welfare work. Representing Lutheran coöperation similar to that of the Federal Council of Churches for other Protestant groups, the Lutheran council represents eight national Lutheran groups.

These are the United Lutheran church, the American Lutheran church, the Norwegian Lutheran church, the Augustana synod, the United Danish church, the Lutheran Free church, the Danish Lutheran church [different from the United Danish church], and the Icelandic synod.

With the exception of the Rev. Dr. Armin G. Weng of Elgin, president of the Illinois synod of the United church, all other representatives of the United church on the national council are from eastern cities.

Committees Meet Here.

Dr. Long announced at Baltimore that the social trends committee of the council, headed by the Rev. Dr. Martin Anderson, 419 Greenfield street, Oak Park, of the Norwegian Lutheran church, will meet in Chicago on Dec. 13 and 14. Other leading members of this committee of the council are the Rev. Dr. Herman E. Sandsted, 5755 South Wells street, of the Augustana synod, and the Rev. Dr. N. P. Lang, 2911 Logan boulevard, of the United Danish church.

The social trends committee investigates movements in the country in the name of all Lutheranism which, especially when fostered by governments, demand definition of the church's proper attitudes toward government under the rule of separation of church and state.

The Chicago office of the national council now projected is planned in connection with a proposed regional system of Lutheran publicity.

ENGLISH HOUSE HAS FIRST FLOOR ON TWO LEVELS

Dining Room Up Short Flight of Stairs.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If you were to discover, before the sun sets tonight, that some dream had come true and you could start building that long-hoped for new home, what type of home would you build? The colonial home still leads in national polls, but homes in the spirit of old English are also high in favor.

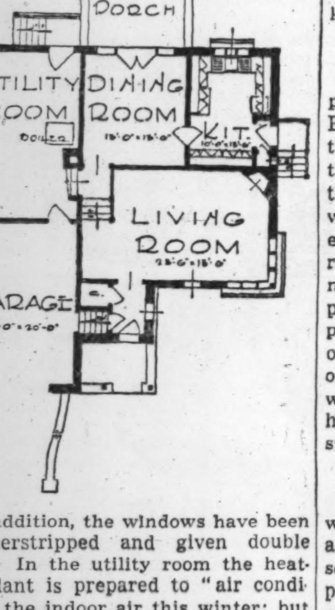
Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Becker, 2323 Blackhawk avenue, Highland Park, chose this latter type. And the result is a very inviting small home. The shingle roof is in colors ranging from deep to light brown and from medium to light greens. Its lines are long and sweeping. In location and landscaping, the most was made of a wooded lot. The exterior walls are of used common brick, in shades of tan and salmon red, with flagstones interspersed. The timber work is a deep rich brown.

Within this exterior, quaintly, charmingly traditional, there is every evidence of much study and thought given to the plan and layout, to produce a compact, yet convenient and flexible room arrangement.

Deep Basement Out.

The designer, Arthur Swanson of Des Plaines, has eliminated a deep basement. Just a few steps down at the left of the main living rooms is the garage, with utility room back of it. Plenty of light and air can get into the utility room through an outside door and windows over the laundry trays. And there is a gas fired heating plant, completely automatic.

The house also is entirely ready to put up a fight on winter. It is heavily insulated. Blanket insulation has been used between wood studs on second floor, "fill" insulation between attic ceiling joists, and still a third type of insulation on the first floor has been sprayed on masonry between the furring strips.



In addition, the windows have been weatherstripped and given double glass. In the utility room the heating plant is prepared to "air condition" the indoor air this winter; but the air conditioning windows are vitally important, too, since they mean lower fuel bills, less condensed moisture on window panes, and no chill surfaces next to the single glazed window on a wintry day.

Has Timbered Ceiling.

As you enter the living room, you see that it is a story and a half high, with timbered ceiling. In the front wall is a gem of a little round window, of colored antique glass. At the extreme right are wide corner windows. In the opposite corner is the fireplace, of flagstone in ashlar pattern, with raised harth.

The walls are treated with a seven foot high oak wainscot. This same wainscot is carried into the dining room beyond, except that here it is only three feet high. The living room seems much larger than it is because it is divided from the dining room by an oak rail.

You go up four steps to reach the dining room, and this room in turn opens onto a screened porch. This porch is reached through French doors, with windows on each side to widen the view. It is a quiet, off the street retreat.

Red Ceiling in Kitchen.

In this way there is the effect of three rooms which are, after all, just one room—a really vast room, to find in a small home.

The kitchen is "U" shape and very modern with its linoleum counter tops and chromium bands, its work spaces and cupboards and cabinets and receiving door. It is very gay and attractive as to color and tone, with a dashing red ceiling overhead and a linoleum with a splashing red border under foot.

Bit of Old England

There's fine color and texture and an old world charm in the wood shingle roof of this small brick home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Becker, 2323 Blackhawk avenue, Highland Park. Note how the dormer sets into the roof and flows with it. Designed by Arthur Swanson, Des Plaines.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 17.

Gardening is more or less dormant out of doors, but there are indoor plants that require constant attention. If new beds are anticipated for next season, it is wise to spade, after spreading a copious amount of barn yard manure over them, and allow the ground to lie in the rough all winter. The vacant lot will be better if plowed and allowed to lie rough, and next spring seeded down, or utilized for gardening to keep down the weeds. The vacant lot problem can be entirely eliminated if persons living near by will convert it into a garden.

Tuesday, Oct. 18.

Usually the best plants for indoors are those which are grown for their foliage, such as the screw pine, thatch palm, Boston fern, sansevieria, aspidistra, cacti, and similar plants. For hanging baskets or viney kinds the philodendron, English ivy, and wandering Jew are excellent. Most any kind of flowering plant can be grown.

Wednesday, Oct. 19.

Shrubs and trees can yet be planted. Buy the best grade stock. Plants are checked when moved for the roots are disturbed or broken and the tops must be cut back to place the top and root system in balance when planted. Dig the holes large enough to easily accommodate the roots, examine the roots and cut back mutilated ones to sound wood, replace poor soil with good soil, and plant carefully, neither too shallow or too deep. Water well during the operation of planting and mulch when the ground freezes to prevent heaving. Trees should be securely staked.

Thursday, Oct. 20.

It is good practice to pile soil for winter potting, remove pots to a shed and arrange for pot shreds or broken soft brick for drainage. The use of potted bulbs of various kinds is one of the pleasant features of growing flowers indoors, and the wide variety offers an opportunity to fill every window with delightful material. Pot up a number of tulips, hyacinths, crocus, narcissus, and others and keep in a cool, dark place until rooted, and then bring indoors for flowering. It takes about three weeks for the paperwhite narcissus to flower in pebbles and water; the yellow paperwhite and Chinese sacred lily also may be grown in this way and they are interesting and beautiful.

Friday, Oct. 21.

The small fishtank can be made into a thing of beauty if the selection of plants is carefully made. Small ferns, small tropical plants, such as the peperomia, variegated screw pine, sword ferns, and club mosses are the types to use and they can be procured from any greenhouse. Planting soil consists of peat and sand in equal parts and the shape of the miniature garden can be arranged to suit the planter. Hills and valleys, elevations and depressions can be made at will and stones, bridges, and any of the materials procurable can be used according to the desires of the gardener. See that the soil molds easily in the hand, neither too wet or too dry.

Saturday, Oct. 22.

Winter is the time for remaking the garden on paper and there is no better time to start than immediately while the garden layout is in mind. Do this important undertaking on paper and draw to scale. It is wise to read books on the subject of design, although one should use his own ideas as far as consistent to good taste.

YOUTH FROM PERU FINDS R.O.T.C. A STEP TO BANKING CAREER

Capt. George L. Dewey, leader of the band at Morgan Park Military academy, is evidence for the contention that the R. O. T. C. trains students broadly for life rather than specifically for the United States army. For George, a native of Lima, Peru, is satisfied with the military prep school education he is rounding out this year at the southwest side academy.

Capt. George Dewey.

"I always wanted to go to a military school," he explained, "and I'd heard that those in the United States are the best. I had to learn the English language before I came here, but these four years were worth it."

George is so far from his family at Lima [thirteen days from New York by boat] that he goes home for a vacation only once every two years. And for that reason he is going home to stay—after he completes his college education, either at Dartmouth or at the Wharton school of finance at the University of Pennsylvania.

AWARD PRIZES THIS WEEK IN LAWN CONTEST

Lawns that have been velvety green all summer have come to their rewards now that autumn is here. Prizes will be distributed this week in the fourth annual Save the Lawn contest conducted by the Chicago park district in coöperation with civic and garden club groups.

Nine south and southwest side winners were selected in this city-wide beautification campaign. The competition included five divisions—apartment houses, homes, public schools, and fire and police stations. Judges this year differentiated between bent and blue grass lawns, giving prizes in each class.

Woman Wins Prize.

The first home owners' award in the bent grass classification will be given to Mrs. Florence E. Jones, 2117 West 69th place, and first prize for the blue grass will be presented to Mrs. Grace Scott, 3334 Vernon avenue. The apartment house award on the south side was won by Joseph Rueff, 5714 Kenwood avenue, for a blue grass lawn.

The highest home owner winners on the southwest side are Mrs. Josephine Slakis, 10426 Oakley avenue, who kept a blue grass lawn, and C. A. Hoyt, 8837 Racine avenue, who planted bent grass. Mrs. Slakis' lawn was given the highest rating in the entire city for private homes.

Awards of merit will be presented to William Vanderlaag, 10621 Normal avenue, and L. J. Sebo, 8317 Calumet avenue, with bent and blue grass respectively.

Hubbard Branch Wins.

In the public school competition the Hubbard branch of Lindblom High school received first award in the section, and the Peck school, 3826 West 58th street, an award of merit. Designated as a far south side school, the Oglesby, 7646 Green street, was given one of the highest ratings in the city.

Among the preliminary judges were Mrs. C. O. Wright, 7728 Indiana avenue, and Mrs. T. P. Kaufman, 3233 West 65th place.

Dear Betty:
Last night Harry asked me to go to the movies with him. But how could I? Monday is my wash day and I get so tired standing at the washer all day, that all I want to do is rest when I finally do finish.
I told Harry this and he said that all our friends send their clothes to the laundry. I'm the only one that's foolish enough to do my own washing.
From now on, Harry will never hear me complain, because starting next Monday, I too am sending my wash to the laundry.
Yours,
Elsie

RADIO PROGRAM TIES UP HISTORY WITH DAY'S NEWS

Ryan Presents New WGN Feature Tomorrow.

A new program, "History Repeats Itself," embodying an idea new to radio, will begin tomorrow night over W-G-N and will be heard five evenings each week, Mondays through Fridays, from 8:37 to 8:45 p. m. following the reading of Tomorrow's Tribune.

Quin Ryan, commentator, announcer and reviewer, will present this feature. The program will use events from the news of the day and show how they compare similarly, and in some cases, duplicate, events of the past. Ryan will make use of his extensive library of news stories of the last fifty years.

In commenting on the new program, he said: "History does repeat itself, and this was never truer than in the fast-moving, crowded times in which we are now living. For example, last week a news story reported some miners were trapped for several days in a mine cave-in up in Canada. This naturally recalls the famous Floyd Collins Kentucky cave incident."

In the midst of Europe's recent crisis it was noted that Czechoslovakia observed its twentieth anniversary. The death of Pauline Frederick, the actress, coincided to the day with the death of another famous actress a quarter of a century ago. In other words, history repeats itself.

"Yankee Clipper," a stirring saga of the seas of the period when sturdy little American ships sailed to the utmost corners of the world, will be presented on "Curtain Time," Friday, from 9 to 9:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The story revolves around the adventures aboard an American clipper which is sailing to California by way of Cape Horn. Reese Taylor plays the lead rôle of a young supercargo who is faced by a mutinous crew. Vivian Fridell plays the part of a shipowner's daughter who is aboard the vessel.

"Yankee Clipper" was written by William Pryor and will be directed by Blair Walliser. The W-G-N concert orchestra will provide the musical background.

In "Nights Without End" W-G-N and Mutual network listeners will hear how "The Shadow" saves New York when blinded and terrified by a black fog. This will be broadcast today from 4:30 to 5 p. m. on the stage of the Mutual Radio Playhouse in Times Square, New York.

WALTER HAMPDEN HEADS STARS ON MAGIC KEY TODAY

Walter Hampden, America's most distinguished tragedian, will head the group of guest stars to be heard on the Magic Key program at 1 o'clock today over WENR. Hampden will be heard as Richelieu in a scene from the play of the same name.

Two singing stars, Virginia Rea, soprano, and Elizabeth Lennox, contralto, will be heard in a duet, and Alec Templeton, blind pianist, will do a group of his famous impressions.

Dr. Frank Black will direct the Magic Key orchestra, and Clifton Fadiman will act as master of ceremonies.

Sonja Henie Is on Program Tonight with Don Ameche

Sonja Henie will renew her acquaintance with Don Ameche, who starred with her in "One in a Million" and "Happy Landings," when she visits the variety show where he is master of ceremonies. The program is heard at 7 o'clock tonight over WMAQ. Miss Henie will co-star with Ameche in a dramatic sketch and will return to the microphone later in the program to meet Charlie McCarthy.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN ON THE AIR TUESDAY IN 'LIGHTNING JIM'

"Lightning Jim," a new series of western dramas featuring the exploits of Lightning Jim Whipple, famous United States marshal, a rôle played by Francis X. Bushman, will be on Tuesday from 7:30 to 8 p. m. over W-G-N. The program will be heard every Tuesday and Thursday night.

The first story, entitled "Indian War Drums," tells how Lightning Jim and Whitey handle a dangerous Indian uprising and expose the graft of a band of outlaws.

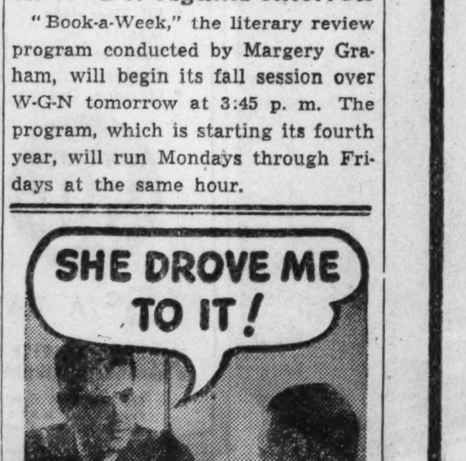
Book-a-Week Review Back on W-G-N Again Tomorrow

"Book-a-Week," the literary review program conducted by Margery Graham, will begin its fall session over W-G-N tomorrow at 3:45 p. m. The program, which is starting its fourth year, will run Mondays through Fridays at the same hour.



"SHE nagged me to death—I hated to go home—and then I met this other girl . . ." But for the full, frank story of a dozen cases like this, tune in tonight on radio's gripping Good Will Hour. Every Sunday night real people bare their most intimate problems frankly, without rehearsal. The wise advice given them by John J. Anthony, noted radio counselor, may help you, too.

COLLEGE JINKS, CAMPUS TUNES ON STOKES' LIST

Melodies from the Sky Heard Wednesday.

Collegiate capers and a pigskin parade of popular campus tunes will provide the musical fare in Harold Stokes' "Melodies from the Sky" Wednesday from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The "Meet Your Neighbor" feature will bring together two gridiron stalwarts from the University of Chicago and Northwestern university for interviews and girl cheer leaders will be present to preserve peace.

Voted Best Tune.

"Stardust," recently voted the most popular campus tune, will be included in the musical selections. Others will be a medley with "Betty Co-Ed," "Ten Yards to Go," "Cheer Leader Charlie," "On Observatory Hill," "College Swing," and a medley of alma mater songs representing the universities of Chicago, Northwestern, and Illinois.

"Your Sunday Date," under the direction of Harold Stokes, will blend in its musical program some of the latest hits and some of the old favorites this evening from 7 to 7:45 o'clock over W-G-N.

Hear Edna O'Dell.

Edna O'Dell will sing "Love Is Where You Find It" and "Summertime," from "Porgy and Bess." Other songs will be "Rainbow Round the Moon," "Night Is Filled with Music," "Girl Friend of the Whirling Dervish," and "No Wonder."

The Memory Lane medley will present "I Hope You're Satisfied," "The Sheik," and "Dear Old Pal of Mine."

'SHOW OF WEEK' HAS AL GOODMAN THIS AFTERNOON

Al Goodman and his orchestra headline the W-G-N Mutual Broadcasting system's coast to coast frolic entitled "The Show of the Week" to be heard this afternoon from 5:30 to 6 o'clock. Ray Perkins will be master of ceremonies. Also highlighted on this weekly program are brief news flashes read by Ernest Chappell.

"The Show of the Week" already has presented Eddy Duchin, Fred Waring, and Vincent Lopez. Here's the future lineup: Oct. 23, Red Norvo and Mildred Bailey; Oct. 30, Leo Reisman; Nov. 6, Will Osborne; Nov. 13, Nat Brandwynne, and Nov. 20, Buddy Rogers.

KAFFEE KLATSCH PROGRAM ON THE AIR TOMORROW

Kaffee Klatsch Time, a new program starring Eddie Cavanaugh, will be heard for the first time tomorrow from 2:15 to 2:30 p. m. over W-G-N. It will be aired three days a week—on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Cavanaugh will meet with women's clubs and church groups and will discuss with them their home making plans and ideas. He will act as a master of ceremonies. For many years a radio favorite, Cavanaugh has appeared on the Broadcast Rhymsters and Radio Gossip club programs.

A radio studio has been built in the offices of the sponsor of Kaffee Klatsch Time, and the program will be broadcast direct from there. Following the show, Cavanaugh will be host to the women at luncheon.

'The Green Hornet' Drama Turns to Smuggling Theme

An old man informs federal authorities that he fears his nephew is mixed up in smuggling contraband from Canada to the United States. Smuggled goods do cross the border every time the boy makes a trip, but federal agents are at a loss to solve the mystery until Britt Reid, youthful newspaper publisher, dons the mask of the Green Hornet to drop clues in the Green Hornet drama to be heard at 7 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Wife's Jealousy Is Theme of Human Relations Court

What can a man do when his wife's jealousy threatens to drive him and his children to the poor house? A competent doctor has been forced to give up his practice in two towns because his wife drove women patients from his office. This problem will be presented on the "Court of Human Relations" program to be heard over the Mutual Broadcasting system today from 3:30 to 4 p.m.

It's "Miss Blue"

Madaline Lee, lovely young actress from Dallas, Tex., is known to the radio audience as Miss Blue, Andy's secretary on the Amos and Andy show. Miss Lee's southern drawl and comedy antics are a high spot on the program, which is heard on WMAQ Monday through Friday night at 10 o'clock.

Turner Goes to England.

STREAKY
by LOY BYRNES
JIM JOLLY, WHO SWINDLED THE PEOPLE OF MIDVILLE AND MADE STREAKY THE GOAT, HAS BEEN CAPTURED BY GOVERNMENT MEN. IN AN EFFORT TO FIND THE MISSING STREAKY, POSTERS WITH THE WORD "WANTED" ARE DISPLAYED THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY. STREAKY SEES ONE AND IN A PANIC RUNS OFF WITHOUT READING THE REST...."NO CRIMINAL CHARGES— TESTIMONY NEEDED AT SWINDLERS' TRIAL". JOLLY LEARNS OF THE POSTERS AND ORDERS ONE OF HIS HENCHMEN TO "GET" STREAKY AND KEEP HIM AWAY FROM THE TRIAL
A FINE JOB I'VE GOT— IF THE GOVERNMENT MEN CAN'T FIND HIM, HOW CAN I— HUH, I COULD WALK WITHIN A FEW FEET OF HIM AND NOT KNOW HIM
SAFEST PLACE TO LOSE YOURSELF IS A BIG CITY, WITH THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE, SO HE MUST BE HERE — UMM — SOMETHING TO BRING HIM OUT IN THE OPEN —SAY, THAT'S IT— LET HIM FIND ME— THE MOUNTAIN COMES TO MOHAMMED!

OH, SIR—I BEG YOUR PARDON—DON'T DO THAT—I THOUGHT YOU WERE—I'M SORRY— BEG PARDON—ER, AH, MY ERROR—SO LONG —G'BYE
O.K. IT WORKED—NOW THAT I KNOW YOU— TRY AND LOSE ME — JUST TRY AND LOSE ME
I'D HAVE SWORN THAT WAS JOLLY —FROM THE BACK—

As BURNHAM'S
Trained Others
Now Making
$50 a Week in Beauty Culture
—Burnham's Will Train You.

There's money—BIG MONEY—in Beauty Culture if you're trained right and are started right. For instance, within a hundred yards of Burnham's there's a graduate whom we trained in 1936, who now earns over $50.00 a week regularly. And we can name you many others doing as well.

To Make the Most Money Out of Beauty Culture.

—You should get into a smart shop where the established operators frequently make $50.00 a week and up. Burnham's is in a position to help you. For months we have been unable to supply demand for our graduates. With such a large number of shops to choose from, we place our graduates in the choicer spots. That means more money from the start, greater prestige, faster progress.

Investigate the Exclusive Advantages Causing More Students to Enroll AT BURNHAM'S Than Any Other.

You owe it to your future to learn about the Burnham methods of training—the result of 67 years of knowing how to teach. Of how you're trained under ACTUAL BEAUTY SHOP CONDITIONS on living models under supervision of experts. Of how you not only become a skilled all around operator, but also an artistic Hair Stylist. Of how you're drilled in the psychology of pleasing selling customers. The reputation of our graduates for always being superbly trained and always profitable for the shop is why Burnham trained operators are in such demand, why we can place our graduates to such splendid advantage.

Only $5 Enrolls You
Complete Beauty Outfit Given If You Act Now.

Every future student who mails coupon below or who phones or visits school is eligible for splendid beauty kit without extra cost. Don't let lack of money hold you back. If you are in earnest, you can practically write your own terms. Mail coupon below, phone, or visit the school any weekday or any Monday, Wednesday, or Friday evening. Night and day classes.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Bluebirds Go South.

Oct. 14, 1938.

MIGRATING bluebirds swept through the farm this week bringing with them another reminder that this is the time of the year when bird life is saying good-by to northern nesting grounds. When the bluebird comes to the farm in the spring he's hailed as a harbinger of the new season, for he comes early. Now the bluebirds are heading south.

The deep blue plumage of these cheerful birds is at this season of the year in marked contrast to the color schemes in the woods, where the sumac is a vivid red and the trees are featuring browns, yellows, and other typical autumn colors. From now on the bluebirds lead a happy-go-lucky vagabonding sort of existence. In the winter these popular songbirds are great rovers. They travel around in good sized flocks in the south, often seeking trees which have growths of mistletoe. The birds like to eat the berries of this plant. Unlike the warblers and other birds which migrate across the gulf to South America, the bluebirds are content to stay in the southern states during the winter.

Turkeys Forecast Winter.

The turkeys on the farm apparently realize that a new season with a threat of cold weather is at hand. For the last few weeks they have been coming into the barnyard each evening to roost. During the summer they roosted in the woods every night and the flockmaster hardly ever saw them. But now they show up every evening. Even the spell of warm weather last week didn't make them change their minds about their roosting place. They were in the barnyard every evening after a full day of feeding in the fields and woods. One flock of ten turkeys refuses to follow the rest of the birds into the yard, however. These ten turkeys still are in the woods and fields. But it won't be long until they come marching home to their roost in the barnyard.

The turkeys and the guinea hens have worked out a rather peculiar system for roosting in the barnyard. The flockmaster was telling us the other evening that the turkey poults hatched this spring refuse to roost with the older turkeys. Instead they roost with the young guinea hens in an elm tree. Similarly, the young guineas refuse to stay in the same trees with their elders, preferring the company of the turkey poults. So the old turkeys and guineas have taken over their favorite box elder tree for a roost, leaving the elm for the exclusive use of the young guineas and turkey poults.

Poisonous Weeds Destroyed.

Moving day for the white face Hereford steers on the Du Page county farm meant that several of the boys had to inspect a big pasture to which the steers were driven. The steers have been in the east woods on the farm ever since they were bought this summer. Recently, however, they were driven across the road into a new field. Before putting the cattle into this grazing area the farm workers made a close inspection of it to make sure there were no poisonous weeds growing there. Their efforts produced results, for a number of water hemlock plants were found and uprooted.

The water hemlock has characteristics similar to those of the true hemlock, and is extremely poisonous to live stock. When seen in the fields it superficially resembles the common Queen Anne's lace or wild carrot. It usually grows in low, moist areas, and cattle going to a stream to drink often are tempted to eat the poisonous stems or roots.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE CITY AND SUBURBAN Average NET PAID DAILY CIRCULATION DURING SEPTEMBER WAS

Last month set a new record in monthly volume of Tribune city and suburban net paid circulation. It was the 34th consecutive month in which city and suburban net paid daily circulation gained over the same month in the previous year.

The Tribune built its circulation, holds its circulation, and continues to increase its circulation because it plays a vital and intimate part in the lives of the people of Chicago.

Readers turn to the Tribune for its accurate, comprehensive news reports. They like the vivid way news is written and illustrated in the Tribune. They like its staunch independence, its comics and features.

As a result, the Tribune is the only newspaper with majority coverage of Chicago's families. It reaches practically as many families in Chicago and suburbs as any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

Because the Tribune best serves the reader, it produces best for advertisers. Because the Tribune pays out best, advertisers place more advertising in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper.

No matter what you want to sell to Chicago's families, your logical medium is the Chicago Tribune.

TOTAL DAILY AVERAGE NET PAID CIRCULATION DURING SEPTEMBER WAS IN EXCESS OF

THIS WAS AN ALL-TIME HIGH FOR ANY MONTH ON RECORD AND A GAIN OF 47,000 OVER SEPTEMBER, 1937.

Flatterers Designed for Chic in First Cold Weather

Above: Glorious red fox and brilliant woolen frock fashion this breath-taking beauty. Coat is hip length, with long, loose sleeves lined with harmonizing satin. Dress harmonies are unlimited.

Above: One of the finest of dull woolen dress coats, showing the smooth perfection of spicy mink as shoulder trim. Coat is particularly adaptable for underdress contrast. For example, thin woolen or crepe in teal blue, the same tone of brown as the mink, dull black crepe or velvet, raspberry red or chartreuse, pale beige, all shades of blue, or violet and the new stripes.

Above: A stunning beauty, the dress coat trimmed lavishly but smoothly with flat, silky Persian lamb. It fits in at the waistline, has a belt, and boasts a deep shaped band of the fur down the front and sides of the skirt. To be worn with daring contrast, such as vivid red, chartreuse, beige, or violet, as well as becoming a supercostume with black dress.

Obliging Duets of Fur Coat and Dress Rate High Popularity for Their Practicality and Irresistible Appeal of Color

By RHEA SEEGER

OF ALL the obliging duets ever concocted for fashion-wise and practical clothes collectors, nothing rates higher popularity with all shoppers than the fur coat and dress combines. They appeal to the short and tall, the crowds of "limited budgeteers," as well as the lucky possessors of unlimited supplies of cash. Unquestionably the best finds and buys of the season are these irresistible twosomes.

This fall you'll buy color. Select glorious high shades of green, red, yellow, and blue in simple dresses and top them with the smart short, chubby fur jackets. Limitless assortments of colored wool dresses that smack of everything you ever desired in smooth streamlines, clever details, soft, easy-to-wear wool fabric, and color now are ready. Of course, you can alternate these high-colored charmers with equally smart dresses in deep navy, dark brown, and black, but the first outfits will stress the vivid clash of bold color with the fur jacket. Infinite variety is assured.

There are two smart models in the fur toppers, the swanky short, boxy jackets that just clear the hipline, most of them square-shouldered and collarlesss, the sleeves loose, simple, and easy to slide into; and the newest sensation, the lumber jackets, short blouses that are gathered into a cinched tight belt. Other in-between models feature semi-fitted body lines but short lengths. Surprisingly inexpensive outfits are contrived of novelty furs such as a silver gray caracul or caracul in brown and shiny black.

These moderately priced furs sometimes wear much longer than the luxury pelts, and, although designed for daytime wear, some of the dark furs easily can go out at night topping evening costumes. Skunk dyed like sable, a luscious brown tone, is a sensational success so far this season. It contrasts with virtually every color and goes with daytime clothes with the same lovely accent that finishes the most dress parade costumes. Added to that, it's one of the longer-wearing pelts.

Sheared beaver is another long-wearing fur. It's a handsome selection for all the brown enthusiasts, for it, too, goes with all colors and may be worn for evening as well as daytime. Kolinsky jackets, baum marten, fitch, gray Persian, and monkey skin are other finds to combine with slim, simple wool dresses in harmonizing shades or contrast clashes. The fluffier furs, such as red fox, silver fox, the new black and smoke gray fox, as well as lynx, are more expensive and less sturdy as to general wear, but assuredly make up for this in the flattering colors and softer outline. For afternoon and evening wear these fluffier models are especially high fashion and decorative, whether they are the shortest sort of boleros or the long straight-line coats.

Next to the fur coat-wool dress combine for all-purpose wear come the costume coats, that is. slim, distinctive dress parade coats that are smooth examples of sleek streamlines, the finest of fabrics, and trimmed with lots of fur. These are the coats that also are worn with contrast dresses in chiffon-thin wool or clinging thick crêpes. Brilliant color contrast is introduced with the dresses for street or daytime wear, and the same coats also can be worn with dark harmonizing dresses. Fur trimming is applied with great imagination, such as cut-out bands and shaped plastrons, and sometimes flared borders to the skirt of the coat at least twelve inches deep. Black coats with mink, with silky Persian, or any other comparatively flat fur are the best examples of this sort of costume coat.

From one outstanding showing of dress and fur coat costumes, and a similarly varied collection of coats to top colorful dresses, we've sketched only five of the newest duets. Others just as new and equally irresistible are featured now, ready for the first cold weather. The fur tops can be purchased alone, also the dresses. Other colors are obtainable, so the fun of assembling your particular costume is up to you!

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

Particularly flattering to the heavier figure are these two daytime frocks. One is rather dress parade in its styling, while the other is puritanically plain. Both are "musts" for a well rounded wardrobe.

The original frock of pattern No. 2009 is fashioned of black crêpe, that severe and fundamental fabric that relies for trimming on delicate touches at the throat, and upon nothing but itself for distinction. There's subtle concealment in every line, camouflages of various sorts to hide overweight. The bodice is cleverly shirred to soften a full bustline, detracting emphasis from it to the slim waist panel and the squared shoulder styling. The skirt is a simple gored affair that molds the hipline and flares gently at the hem. All the trimming you need is dainty ruching in white or pastel, and jeweled buttons and belt buckle.

The tailored frock's original is distinctive in novelty weave silk. The fabric's surface lends plenty of chic in itself, so the frock dispenses with further trimming, using only small buttons on the bodice. Plaits play an important rôle, and the rever neckline is modish.

Velvet and silks in all dark colors, also bright shades, make up well in the dressy afternoon frock. For the tailored dress, select tailored looking silks, mixtures, and lightweight woolens.

Style No. 2009 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2676 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

George Rector

One of my readers in Denver wrote me as follows:

"Dear Mr. Rector: I would appreciate it more than I can tell you if you would do me the great favor of answering this letter.

"I cook for a living, and have had the opportunity to cook and prepare many lobsters. This is what I want to know from you, as you are considered the finest authority on foods and the preparation of same.

"Yesterday my employer gave me two lobsters to cook. They were supposed to be live ones, sent here from the east packed in ice. But they were dead. We are sure of that, because we gave them ample time to recover from the cold, also giving them other methods of trying to revive them, but to no avail.

"I refused to cook them because I had always been told that as soon as a lobster dies poison goes into the meat and should not be used.

"What I would like you to tell me, did I do the right thing? I will be deeply grateful if you will take time to answer.

"Yours truly, Mrs. A. O."

I wrote this lady as follows:

"Granting that the lobsters that you received were alive when packed in ice for shipment, but appeared lifeless when you unpacked them, did not indicate that they were unfit for food.

"You could have with all safety plunged them into boiling water, boiling them the required length of time, according to weight, and the meat would have been just as good and wholesome to eat as if the lobsters were alive and kicking when received.

"Lobsters do die in transit, but if too much time does not elapse, and the lobsters have been kept at a fairly even temperature, they are perfectly good to eat.

"A great many people are under the same impression as you, but it is a mistaken idea."

I don't believe there was a restaurant either in Chicago or New York that sold more lobsters than we did in Rector's. Our lobster shipper in Boston and in Maine used the utmost care in seeing that our lobsters were alive and also that they were properly packed in ice and seaweed. These lobsters arrived in barrels and each one of them was carefully examined. True, we did find perhaps two or three out of the shipment that were not alive, but they were not thrown out. Instead, these lobsters were immediately placed in a large pot to boil and later to be used in salads or reheats such as lobster Newburg.

Never in all the years that we were in the restaurant business did we get one complaint that a customer was "poisoned." Personally, I would not eat any shellfish if I knew that they had been dead for some time and had not been kept under proper refrigeration.

Fresh crabmeat which is shipped out of Virginia and Maryland in cans (these cans are not hermetically sealed but the covers are tied on with a piece of white cord) is of course cooked meat. When this meat is removed from the crabs it is immediately packed in one pound cans and the covered cans are packed in ice and promptly shipped out. It is extremely perishable and should not be kept longer than one day. Canned crabmeat which is hermetically sealed can be kept on the pantry shelf almost indefinitly.

Ever so often there appeared on the menu of Rector's a dish that was very popular. It was known as Seafood Newburg and consisted of several varieties of shellfish. Here is the recipe:

SEAFOOD NEWBURG.

2½ cups rich cream sauce
2 egg yolks, well beaten
3 cups cooked seafood [crab meat, shrimps, lobster]
2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons sherry
Salt and light pinch cayenne pepper

When cream sauce has reached boiling point remove from fire and slowly blend in egg yolk. Then add seafood (which can be either fresh or canned), butter, sherry, and seasonings. Do not allow sauce to boil again, but it can be kept hot by placing sauce pan over hot water. Serve with triangles of freshly made toast or in patty shells. When oysters are in season add six or eight medium sized ones which have been poached in their own liquor for three minutes. They can be added along with the mixed seafood.

For Mrs. K. C., who requests a recipe for Oyster Omelet. Being an unusual recipe, I thought others would like to try it.

6 eggs
4 tablespoons milk or water
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup cream sauce
1 pint oysters
Finely minced parsley

Beat eggs well with milk, salt, and pepper. Melt butter in large omelet pan, tilting the pan so the melted butter will coat the sides of the pan. Pour in eggs and as they begin to set take a spatula and lift the edges so the uncooked egg can reach the bottom of pan. Use the spatula in this fashion until the top of the omelet is set and bottom of omelet is lightly browned. In the meanwhile have ready one cup of medium cream sauce and in a separate sauce pan poach the oysters in their own liquor for five minutes. Drain oysters of all liquor and arrange half of them in the middle of the omelet. Carefully fold the omelet over and transfer to a hot platter. Garnish ends of omelet with remaining oysters and pour the cream sauce over the oyster garnish. Sprinkle a pinch of finely minced parsley over the oysters which are at either end and serve immediately.

CODFISH PUFFS.

2 cups shredded codfish
2 cups freshly boiled riced potatoes
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon grated onion
2 eggs, well beaten
¼ teaspoon white pepper

Freshen codfish by tieing in piece of cheese cloth and squeezing in cold water. Add remaining ingredients and beat with a fork until thoroughly mixed. Drop by spoonfuls into deep hot fat (hot enough to brown a one inch cube of bread in 60 seconds) until nicely browned. Drain on unglazed paper and serve with special tomato sauce.

SPECIAL TOMATO SAUCE.

½ cup melted butter
½ cup chili sauce
½ cup ketchup

Melt butter in top part of double boiler; stir in chili sauce and tomato ketchup and heat over hot water.

Mahogany as the Masters Used It

This magnificent sideboard could not have been made with greater skill even in the days of Chippendale, Sheraton and Hepplewhite. It demonstrates perfectly the great beauty of mahogany as a furniture wood.

"What's Wrong with Your Room?" a booklet by Edith Weigle, giving simple solutions to complicated problems of furniture arrangement is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. For 3 cents; by mail, 5 cents.

By Edith Weigle.

Do you know your mahogany? Almost every American home has more than one piece of furniture made of this wood. It is to the furniture world what the meat course is to a meal.

So, test your knowledge of mahogany in this mahogany quiz:

1. As a furniture wood, how does mahogany rank?

Answer: It is considered the best wood money can buy.

2. Where does the most superior grade of mahogany come from?

Answer: From Cuba and Santo Domingo. Excellent trees also come from British Honduras, Guatemala, Nicaragua, and Costa Rica, from Peru and the Amazon, as well as from Africa.

3. What is Philippine mahogany?

False mahogany. Philippine "mahogany" comes from native trees: the tanguile, the red and white lauan, and the almon. It is in no way related to true mahogany.

4. How can the customer tell whether furniture is made of real mahogany or not?

Answer: Look for the labels: Genuine Mahogany, and Solid Genuine Mahogany. If not labeled, ask the dealer for definite information.

5. Do mahogany trees grow in forests in the jungle?

6. How high does such a tree grow?

Answer: Sometimes to 150 feet and 10 to 12 feet in diameter. The first limb may be 60 to 80 feet above ground.

7. Where is the oldest carved mahogany in existence?

Answer: In the chancel of the cathedral of Santa Domingo. It dates back to 1540, and is in perfect condition.

8. When did mahogany come into general use as a furniture wood?

Answer: In the 18th century in England. It was known there, however, in late Elizabethan days and in the period of William and Mary, and Queen Anne. It was extremely popular in the time of Chippendale, Sheraton, Hepplewhite, and Adam.

10. Does mahogany change in color with age?

Answer: Yes, unstained or lightly stained mahogany gradually turns to a rich sherry tone with the years.

11. What great craftsmen of colonial America were identified with the use of mahogany?

12. What is a proof of the strength of mahogany?

Answer: The fact that it was early established as a shipbuilding wood. Cortez used it for the construction of ships for his voyages of discovery.

The photograph today shows a sideboard made in the manner of the great craftsmen of the golden age of furniture design, the 18th century. The firm producing this piece prides itself on the excellence of its mahogany and on the infinite care of its skilled workers in making every detail.

Nautical Design

There are few men or boys who, at least once in their lives, didn't own or want to own a boat. Naturally, those who could not fulfill this desire appreciate wall hangings, pictures, or pillows in the nautical manner. Used as a decorative wall hanging, this hot iron transfer pattern of a graceful sailboat is destined to become a ranking favorite. The needlework is easy to do and the entire motif is worked in outline.

For a hot iron transfer pattern of the sailboat, No. X-104, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth-avenue, New York City.

Mrs. C. J. Steinbach, Muskegon, Mich.: I find that if I keep my electric range well waxed, it saves me a lot of time cleaning it.

Mrs. Helen T., Chicago: All school year I treat the lether book bindings of notebooks, textbooks, and so on, well rubbed with a mixture of castor oil and paraffin. They stand up a lot better under the hard usage the children give them.

Joyce Jones, Chicago: I couldn't scrub any more without a cheap little wire soap dish hooked to the side of my scrubbing pail. The time I used to spend hunting for my soap! Now it's always where I want it.

Georgia Smith, Milwaukee, Wis.: I use discarded phonograph needles to hang small pictures. I can drive in one of these needles, at a slight angle, about ¼ inch [I drive in the thick end]. It will hold quite a bit of weight and won't leave a bad mark when it's removed from the plaster.

Harold Jones, Chicago: In summer I color flowerpots for the wife, and then in winter she uses these flower pots for cut flowers. All I do is put a stopper in the hole and pour melted paraffin over it. Then I coat the base with paraffin, too, to ward off any danger of damp spots on tables or window sills.

Marion Smith, Chicago: I use a potato to clean my decanters and bottles with small necks. Here's how I do it. I peel a potato and cut it into small pieces. I drop these pieces into decanter with warm water and shake well. When the glass begins to shine I tip out pieces and rinse with cold water.

Knitted Sweater

By Jean Macdonald.

Angora wools are essentially soft and flattering, and the plain hand knitted sweater with a combination cowl and V neckline is one of the most attractive sweaters to be worn with a winter suit. Ribbing is used at the wristband and around the bottom of the sleeves, while the remainder of the sweater is knitted in the stockinette stitch. A novelty clip is the finishing touch to a flattering neckline. The fine angora is used in preference to the heavier type, but chiffon zephyr or crêpe may be substituted.

For instructions for knitting the sweater with the combination cowl and V neckline, No. X-103, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Renew That Loose Putty Around the Window Panes

If you discover that the putty around your window panes is falling loose, repair it before the cold winds blow. First scrape it all off, brush off any dust or remaining particles, and then paint with a good priming paint. Then after the paint has dried apply fresh putty, rubbed smooth. Wrap the putty in wrapping paper for a few minutes if it seems too oily. Or add a little whiting.

Use one of the handsome mahogany knee-hole desks for a dressing table in your colonial bedroom. You'll have more drawer space than is possible with a vanity. Hang your mirror above the desk, and there you are.

If you are renovating an old screen select a beautiful new wall paper, apply it with wall paper paste, use a binding tape to finish the edges, and then treat it all to a coat of colorless shellac or to liquid wax. The wax will not tinge the paper with brown, as the shellac does.

Milk and Cheese.

Delicious creamed soups, puddings, hot breads, creamed vegetables and meats, tasty cheese soufflés, and ice creams are ways to include more health-giving milk and cheese in the daily diet.

TRIPLE-CREAMED!

CHOCO-MALLOW CAKE

½ cup Spry
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
3 ounces chocolate, melted
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
2 cups sifted flour
1 cup milk
24 marshmallows

Combine Spry, salt and vanilla. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. (Done in no time with smooth, creamy Spry!) Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add melted chocolate and blend well.

Add baking powder and soda to flour and sift 3 times. Add small amounts of flour to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, mixing after each addition until smooth. Pour batter into two 8-inch layer pans greased with Spry. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 30 to 35 minutes. (See what fine, even grain Spry cakes have. Use Spry in this recipe to be sure of best results!)

Cut marshmallows in halves with scissors. Pressing cut sides against cake, arrange on top of each layer. Spread Choco-mallow Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake.

CHOCO-MALLOW FROSTING

3 tablespoons Spry
1½ tablespoons butter
4 ounces chocolate
7 tablespoons hot milk
2¼ cups sifted confectioners' sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon vanilla

Melt Spry, butter and chocolate together over hot water. (Spry makes frostings deliciously creamy, beautifully glossy.) Pour hot milk over combined sugar and salt and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add vanilla. Add chocolate mixture and beat until smooth and thick enough to spread. Makes enough frosting to put between layers and on top and sides of Choco-mallow Cake.

High Coiffure Demands Best of Throatline

"Don't pooh-pooh dryness in your hair," says Antoinette Donnelly in her booklet, "Bring Out the Beauty in Your Hair." Read this important handbook on the care of the hair. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. Postpaid, 7 cents.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

If you have a good one, this is YOUR year!

It's a funny thing about styles, clothes or hair. You protest when they first appear in all their startling newness. Gradually you succumb to them and suddenly you find the old style you swore you'd never desert "dating" you and you know it only too well. That's the tale of the upswept coiffure. You swore you'd never adopt it. It made you look older. It didn't go with your modern skirt length. You hated the hats that slithered off one small forehead curl. But by now we haven't a doubt you've been either flirting with the upsweep, you've adopted it wholeheartedly, or you have made a smart compromise of one sort or another.

Some predict that the upswept hair won't last; that it is not the most flattering style for women generally on account of that side throat line; that it will run itself out with the first freak chapeaux to greet the season. But we are not so sure. In any event, the up-hair-do is here for a time and you have to have the throat for it or it's going to be just too bad.

A funny thing about this hair business is that a style entrenched no more permanently than the upswept coiffure is, at this writing, already influencing your judgment on the long bob. It begins to look old-fashioned, particularly so on the girl or woman who rates no movie beauty standard. We do feel that the shoulder length bob is doomed permanently. Those who will not and should not lift the back hair sky high will compromise by lifting it above the collar line, at least. It will be "some up," as we heard it said.

So there will be no escaping the need for throat improvement, where improvement is called for. Probably the hair up-do is going to prove a good thing for women in general, anyway. If it makes them get after their throats and jawlines it will be, and we feel that no woman can get a frank exposure of said throat and jawline, as the upswept hair exposes it, without dashing to her dressing table to wrest fighting ammunition therefrom. Women themselves hate that sagging chin and jawline, the crinkly, crêpey, throatline and all the insinuations that go with the condition. It's a firm throat, they know, and a clear curve from ear to ear and from ear to shoulder that establishes youth in the sector we are talking about.

Some one has said that a good throat begins in the cradle but, like many other things that formerly were allotted a cradle start, the throat line can be caught and improved even in middle age. True, if good posture marked the cradle product all the way up, she'd arrive at middle age with little or no throat ills. Or, even if she took up good posture at "deb" age she'd still be in the running at 40 plus. Indeed, at any age the first remedial measure for chins and sagging jawlines is just that same old homely posture advice. Keep the head up. And keep it up sitting, standing, walking. Keep it stretched tall, tall, and taller. Especially if the neck is short and thick hold the head high and stretched tall.

If you have any of the age habits of posture, such as letting the head slum[illegible] forward, you must discipline [illegible] of yours to carry itself [illegible] No use applying skin foods [illegible] here's no magic in them [illegible] you [illegible] ted by yourself, pos[illegible] spe[illegible] [illegible] n, to m[illegible] neck and throat [illegible] you must [illegible] the muscular [illegible] ture into st[illegible] firmer form. [illegible] must execut[illegible] rcise daily [illegible] e there's droop [illegible] hadow or [illegible] of crêpiness. Begi[illegible] the old [illegible] f dropping the hea[illegible] rd on [illegible] hest and back as far a[illegible] go [illegible] ch to right as far as [illegible] ead [illegible] go without strain. Stretch to left [illegible]. While head is dropped back, open mouth widely and close slowly.

Here's an excellent one for throat and posture as well. Stand with your back flat against a wall. Literally "crawl" up the wall with your head, stretching the throat. Keep shoulders flat against wall and stretch head higher, higher, higher.

Before you get out of bed in the morning give yourself the same stretching work from the shoulders up.

Either on the mattress or on the floor lie flat on abdomen with arms down at sides. Raise your head up and back. Don't strain. Work up gradually to ten times a session. Turn over on your back and, without arm aid, try to raise your head forward until chin touches chest.

In the meantime, sleep with as flat a pillow as you can manage. Better if you can go without one entirely.

Now for the local treatment with cream and massage. Smack away at a double chin. Put cream on the back of the fingers of your hand and slap smartly upward upon the droopy muscle. Repeat with an astringent after you have removed the cream.

To smooth out chin furrows, use a swing movement. After you moisten the forefingers of each hand with cream, begin at the edge of your chin on each side. Rub inward and upward until the forefingers meet under your mouth. Then swing up and outward, following jawbone to a point just in front of the ears. Do it rhythmically, in and up and up.

Scrub your neck with a complexion brush to quicken circulation. Use a rich cream to supply oils for the dry and withering skin. Anoint the throat with cream every time you cleanse your face and you'll prevent the neck skin from drying and crêpiness.

Remodeling the throat and chinline takes time, patience, and perseverance. But the rites themselves are simple. Hold the head up tall and proudly. Exercise the muscles daily. Give the skin daily massage and good cream lubrication and soon you'll be able to wear the upswept hair with the best and youngest of them.

WEAR HAIR HIGH, BUT BE SURE NECK AND JAWLINE PERMIT

At left: The higher the hair, the better the throatline must be, as Eve Arden, glamorous blonde in black, illustrates. The war about upswept coiffures has been waged, and both Paris and America give it a sweeping victory. But not every one can wear it, at least, not until her throat and neckline have been trimmed into shape for it.

Below: The extreme sweep of hair, piled glamorously atop the skull, is not for every woman. The facial contours and, above all, the neckline and throat, must conform. If your features don't permit the acceptance of the style without reservation, design it to suit your contours, as Dorothy Howe has done, compromising on the length, leaving some rather low in back.

Etiquet Gives Carving Task to the Host

By Helen Bartlett.

The first of the fall holidays is Thanksgiving. And that is only a little more than a month away. Then the gracious hosts of the country can gloat under the eager and admiring glances of kith and kin as they skilfully and artfully carve the turkey. Carving, of course, is not just a holiday function. To wield the knife properly on any bird or roast is an art and one that requires a great deal of skill at any season. But dissecting THE bird and finding all the joints, maintaining one's poise while every one watches for the slightest slip, is a superior accomplishment.

In the very fashionable homes the actual carving is not done at the dinner table, usually. Rather, the servant carves the fowl in the kitchen, then puts it all back together again so that the surgical work is hardly noticeable, arranges it on a piping hot platter, and brings it to the host, who has only to do the serving. It has two advantages—that of quicker service and resulting hotter food.

But in the thousands of average families the carving is done at the table. Personally, I like to see it so, if it is well done. It can be quite a charming gesture, although if the carver lacks all grace and butchers the job, the sight can be most painful to one who recognizes his mistakes.

For the man who likes to carve, and does, the meat platter is placed before him, and with it the carving knife and fork, the steel or knife sharpener, and the plates to be served. If there is a maid to help with the serving, she places one hot dinner plate at a time in front of the host. When that is ready she removes it and replaces it with another hot plate from her serving table. As she is placing the full plate in front of the diner, the host proceeds with serving the second plate. When there is no maid the full stack of hot plates is placed in front of the host. And as he completes serving each one it is passed along to the person for whom it is intended.

Naturally, the skill of the carver depends upon his knowledge of the anatomy of the bird, if it is a fowl he is carving, and also on his knowledge of the correct procedure, such as severing the drumsticks first, then the second joint, next the wing and, finally, slices of the white meat. And also that roast beef is sliced across [thin slices rather than thick], that leg of lamb is cut horizontally down into the bone, commencing right in the center of the roast rather than at either extremity. There is a good deal to know about the carving and serving of different kinds of meats and fish, all of which should be learned before taking on the task. And a little experience will do much to further the skill. Learn to do it properly.

One thing to remember in carving is that all the meat that is to be served in the first portions should be cut off before any is placed on the plates. The complete job of carving should be accomplished first. This helps to keep the food hot and permits all to be served at approximately the same time so that all may begin eating at about the same time. The host should ask each one, as he prepares his or her plate, which cut is preferred.

It also is one of the etiquet rules that the host should remain seated while he is carving. To be able to do this is an indication of great skill. However, this point should not be insisted upon if the small stature of the man, the tremendous size of the bird, or the lack of skill of the carver would seem to endanger the roast.

If you have a good one, this is YOUR year!

It's a funny thing about styles, clothes or hair. You protest when they first appear in all their startling newness. Gradually you succumb to them and suddenly you find the old style you swore you'd never desert "dating" you and you know it only too well. That's the tale of the upswept coiffure. You swore you'd never adopt it. It made you look older. It didn't go with your modern skirt length. You hated the hats that slithered off one small forehead curl. But by now we haven't a doubt you've been either flirting with the upsweep, you've adopted it wholeheartedly, or you have made a smart compromise of one sort or another.

Some predict that the upswept hair won't last; that it is not the most flattering style for women generally on account of that side throat line; that it will run itself out with the first freak chapeaux to greet the season. But we are not so sure. In any event, the up-hair-do is here for a time and you have to have the throat for it or it's going to be just too bad.

A funny thing about this hair business is that a style entrenched no more permanently than the upswept coiffure is, at this writing, already influencing your judgment on the long bob. It begins to look old-fashioned, particularly so on the girl or woman who rates no movie beauty standard. We do feel that the shoulder length bob is doomed permanently. Those who will not and should not lift the back hair sky high will compromise by lifting it above the collar line, at least. It will be "some up," as we heard it said.

So there will be no escaping the need for throat improvement, where improvement is called for. Probably the hair up-do is going to prove a good thing for women in general, anyway. If it makes them get after their throats and jawlines it will be, and we feel that no woman can get a frank exposure of said throat and jawline, as the upswept hair exposes it, without dashing to her dressing table to wrest fighting ammunition therefrom. Women themselves hate that sagging chin and jawline, the crinkly, crêpey, throatline and all the insinuations that go with the condition. It's a firm throat, they know, and a clear curve from ear to ear and from ear to shoulder that establishes youth in the sector we are talking about.

If you have any of the age habits of posture, such as letting the head slump forward, you must discipline that head of yours to carry itself tall, erect. No use applying skin foods and lotions. There's no magic in them until you get righted by yourself, posturally speaking.

Then, to model the neck and throat line you must work the muscular structure into stronger, firmer form. You must execute exercise daily where there's droop or shadow or hint of crêpiness. Begin with the old one of dropping the head forward on the chest and back as far as it will go. Stretch to right as far as the head will go without strain. Stretch to left ditto. While head is dropped back, open mouth widely and close slowly.

Parents Must Get Together with Teen Age

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Of late I've had many talks with mothers about teen age children. And not parents of boys and girls who are running wild, or bringing sorrow to any one's gray hairs! No, they've been parents of splendid young people who are happy in their homes but who are going through the years close to mature manhood and womanhood, yet not quite there. Even these understanding mothers are puzzled, distressed, and definitly worried at times. They're often at sea, and know that about all they can do is to stand by.

But those are not the families I am really concerned about. They'll come out all right. It is rather the families in which antagonism and friction, resentment and impatience have grown up, which are headed for trouble.

If ONLY you could get together on things—you parents and your teen age sons and daughters who are in the midst of such turmoil.

You'll never get anywhere, that is, anywhere worth going, if you don't. And it's so foolish to spend these few remaining years of childhood before your young people actually step out, in friction and antagonism. If, on the other hand, you would only both try to see the other's point of view as well as to root [necessarily] for your own, you'd be so much happier and really get somewhere worth going.

Bury the hatchet, for war of a kind is what it sometimes amounts to, and be friends. It's such pleasure and such fun to have your 16 or 18 year old as a friend as well as a son or daughter. Besides these are important years. Don't allow anything—their future career, work, studies, the question of going out with those of the opposite sex—come between you.

There is, on the whole, too much real estrangement between parents and their older children. It involves a deep hurt as well as a deep deprivation on both sides.

It is dangerous, too, to grow away from your child. It impairs your usefulness to your boy and girl at a time in their lives when they need you badly. You can't help or advise successfully if you're not your boy or girl's friend. Your influence is greatly weakened by antagonisms or coldness.

Of course, you may be at war with your adolescents and still retain your complete authority, which is not the same as influence. You may be able to strictly enforce rules of conduct, decide for your child on a choice of work or profession, or absolutely ban visits, parties and movies with other young people. You may be able to get your way because you hold the purse strings, or by using fear, or because your child isn't of age.

In one way or another you may gain every point; but you may never know the depth of your discouragement, disappointment, or seething rebellion that lies beneath the surface—each reaction depending upon whther your son or daughter is the kind [a] too easily squelched, or [b] too peace-loving to resist, or [c] the kind who is strong without being ruthless and so has to bide his or her time until the oppressive yoke can be thrown off.

Why do I write all this today?

Partly because I see the need of it in so many instances in my own contacts with young people, and partly because of the many appeals that I receive from the young people themselves.

"My people have made me practice for hours every day since I was a little girl. They are determined that I shall be a concert pianist, but I don't think it possible. I love music, but I do not want to make it my profession. There is something else that I have always wanted to do.

"But now my parents are always telling me about how much money they have spent on my education [they are comfortably situated] and that they are not going to have it wasted. They are so ambitious for me and I know I am going to disappoint them—in fact, I have already," writes one girl.

"I am 17,' 'writes another, "and I do truly try to do what my parents want me to. They are strict about everything. But one thing I think is too difficult is this: They do not want me to have anything at all to do with boys, not even to go to a party at some one's house where there are both boys and girls. Why, I wouldn't think of asking a boy to come to my house. And there are some nice boys in the block, too.

"Do you think this is right? And what can I do? I don't want to meet boys outside. My parents are good and mean to be kind, I suppose, but couldn't talk anything over with them."

Now, what can I say to these young people? The simple fact is that their parents need reëducating in their job. They are making a mistake in forcing their own decisions down their children's throats in drawing such tight lines of conduct.

Neither the domineering, nor the severe, nor the aloof attitude is a workable one with young people. Don't try to be monarch of all you survey with your fast-maturing boys and girls. In being so you rob them of confidence in themselves and of the power to make decisions, both of which attributes they will soon need when they go out into the world, whether it is the world of work, of college, of sociey, or of marriage.

Get down off your dictator's pedestal! Come out of your shell of aloofness! Be your child's friend, whatever his age may be!

Be willing to talk anything at all over with your teen age son or daughter, especially anything important. And when I say important, I mean not only what you think is important, like going to college or showing respect to elders, but what they think is important, like having a long dance dress, or being allowed to stay an hour later at a party.

If they think it's important to them, it is important for the time being at least. Next year they may laugh at it, themselves. But that isn't this year.

Respect their values. Meet them at least half way. Get their angle, which because of their youth and inexperience must be different from yours. You'll be gratified to see friction and antagonism gradually melt away.

This subject will be continued Monday.

Second Annual Quiz on Bridge Begins Tomorrow

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

The second annual self-rating national bridge examination begins tomorrow, Oct. 17, in my daily column and will continue for about two months. Last year's examination was successful even beyond my hopes. It will be recalled that the plan of the examination was such that questions appeared one day and were restated with the answers and the demerits or credits the next day, thus permitting every reader to rate himself. At the same time it was announced that readers who preferred to send in their answers daily to my office would be rated by me and, if their final mark waranted, would receive a certificate of merit. Despite the inconvenience attendant upon this daily mailing some 1,200 players chose to turn the rating over to me, and I am happy to say that a large proportion of them received certificates attesting that they had attained master, expert, or post-graduate rank.

The plan of examination this year will be almost identical with that of last year, except that I shall make it easier for readers who choose to send in their answers. Instead of giving the answer the day following the question, I shall pose the question [or questions, depending on space required] each day of the week and will publish the answer on the corresponding day of the following week. Thus, readers will still easily be able to "rate themselves" by writing down their answers and waiting for the next week's newspaper. But if they choose to send their answers to me for grading they will have to send them in only at the end of each week. In this way they can group one entire week's answers into one letter to be postmarked before 5 p. m. on the Sunday at the end of each week. These answers will be graded by me and when the examination is over an appropriate certificate of merit will be mailed to each reader who has attained the rank of master, expert, or advanced player. As in the case of last year, the demerit and credit system will be used, but instead of starting with a par of 100 points, from which perhaps one or two demerits must be subtracted each time the contestant makes an error, I shall start with 1,000 points as par. This will allow me to make more flexible and accurate demerits. Thus, on some questions a player will have to take off 8 or 9 points from his par score; on others, perhaps 17 or 18. Let me remind readers that if they enter this examination and immediately lose a great many points they should not become discouraged because many questions will appear in which there will be no demerits for improper answers. Instead, premiums [credits] for giving the right answers will be granted. Hence, if you have to take off 50 or 60 points the first week, you may be able to earn these points back in succeeding weeks by answering difficult questions.

In addition to the certificates of merit mentioned above, I will donate special prizes to readers who attain high ranking. These prizes will be Autobridge playing boards, with two sets of deal sheets. This, of course, is a particularly appropriate prize. As you probably know, Autobridge is a device which enables the player to enter a real game of contract bridge all by himself—to learn, if he is a beginner, or to improve his game if he is already experienced. He plays with and against world famous experts, exactly as though he sat with them at the bridge table. The model that will be distributed retails everywhere, with the two sets of deal sheets, at $4. Naturally, to qualify for this prize, as well as for the certificate of merit mentioned above, readers will have to send their answers to me, in care of The Chicago Tribune, for grading, but let me make plain that there is no cost whatever to any reader other than the postage stamp he must put on his letter.

Last Sunday we discussed the important question of "placing" the high cards and suit distributions held by the opponents. Now let us continue with this vital subject:

Hand placing is the highest stage of creative counting. It is the plastic reconstruction of the opponents' hands, which with only bidding clews as a guide, proceeds to reconstruct the "scene of the crime." At first, with the first bid and response, there are available only the faintest traces and clews; but with further bidding the evidence gradually accumulates and the scent becomes hotter and hotter. A mere assumption turns into a certainty and finally a thrilling climax is reached when the mystery of the unknown hand is definitly solved.

If an opponent leads the king of an unbid suit and the declarer holds the ace, he can definitly place at least the queen and probably another honor in that suit in the leader's hand. If leader held such a hand as K 5 4 3, a lead of the king would be incorrect and he would avoid it. Again, if at a trump bid an opponent opens the deuce of an unbid suit, and the declarer holds the ace, he can definitly place either the king or queen with the leader's partner. If the leader had both the king and queen he would not have opened the deuce at the serious risk of losing a trick. Thus, in card placing, the player draws inferences not only from what an opponent actually does but also from his failure to make a certain play. [Of course, a player must always keep in mind the possibility of an irregular lead as an attempt to fool him. But this is usually solved by the answer to another question: "What has the leader risked by fooling his partner?" If the leader's risk is great, then the lead is regular, and if it is not very great, then the lead may be irregular.]

Positional placing is also facilitated by opponents' follow suit plays and discards. When possible the opponents usually throw away their lowest and least valuable cards [except to signal]. When they begin to play their eights, and nines, and honors, their plays or discards are most revealing to a keen observer who, after seeing a nine drop, can naturally place the opponent who played it with either no more of the suit or an honor.

Whenever a player fails to follow suit, the number of cards he originally held in that suit becomes a matter of open knowledge. By using the rule of suit placing you can determine the distribution of that suit in the other unknown hand beyond any question.

In most cases a player has the benefit of combining the inferences from bidding and play, thus checking one source of information against the other. In practically all such cases the player should first make use of the bidding to reconstruct at least partly the opponents' hands; then, keeping in mind his theoretical plan of their hands, he should proceed to check and modify this plan according to the new information revealed by the fall of the cards. As the cards are being played out his original mental blueprint that rather vaguely embraced the opponents' entire hand patterns begins to shrink; but while it loses in the number of cards remaining it gains in the precision of inferences, and what was originally a rough sketch now becomes a precise and detailed drawing. During each round of play the player has redrawn his original plan, shifted the honor and length values, abandoned the incorrectly placed cards, and substituted facts for assumptions.

The bidding [both sides vulnerable]:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the club king. The ace won and declarer cashed his three top trumps. He finally had to concede four tricks—one in each suit—and hence lost his contract. How could he have fulfilled the contract against the best defense?

ANSWER: If declarer had let West hold the first trick with the club king, successful play would have been easy, as follows: Club ace wins second trick, and declarer then ruffs a club with a low trump. Declarer cashes the A K Q of trumps, the A K of spades, and the A K of diamonds. Then, with the lead in dummy, he leads the fourth club. East is helpless. If he ruffs with his high trump, declarer discards and must make his remaining low trump; if East discards, declarer ruffs for the tenth trick.

We Americans Prefer Sheep at Lamb Stage

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Americans do not like mutton. They prefer their sheep young, mostly at the lamb stage. Approximately 85 per cent of the sheep marketed in this country annually is sent to slaughter before they're a year old. Five per cent is marketed as yearlings, and 10 per cent is allowed to grow into mutton.

No longer is roast leg o' lamb available only in the spring. New production and distribution methods make lamb a year around meat. All cuts from the lamb carcass are tender ones, and most may be cooked by roasting or broiling, dry heat methods. This isn't true of any other young animal. Veal, as I've mentioned in a previous article, must be cooked by moist heat, for although the flesh is tender, its connective tissue is rather tough and needs moisture to help soften it.

LEGS.

The legs include a part of the loin. They correspond to rump, round and hind shank of beef in the wholesale cut. The legs are split for retail purposes, and usually are cut short, the loin portion being used for chops.

"American style" leg of lamb is prepared at the market by pulling the flesh back from the shank, removing the shank bone, and fastening the shank meat back against the leg. This makes a compact roast much favored by homemakers.

"French style" leg of lamb has had part of the meat removed from the shank bone, exposing the bone as a sort of handle.

Leg of lamb may be boned at the market, so that it may be stuffed. It always is cooked by roasting uncovered at 300 to 325 degrees, approximately 30 to 35 minutes per pound. The "fell," or paperlike covering of the leg, should not be removed. Steaks cut from the leg should be broiled or panbroiled.

LOIN.

Loin lamb chops correspond to porterhouse beef steaks, being very tender, and containing the T-shaped bone. English lamb chops are loin chops cut without splitting the loin through the backbone. They usually are cut double-thick. Vertebrae are removed and the flank ends may be wrapped around half a lamb kidney, then skewered together. Loin chops and English chops both should be broiled or panbroiled.

Roast whole lamb loin is known as lamb saddle roast. There usually is such demand for the loin chops that not many loin roasts are sold. They are excellent, however.

RIB SECTION.

Two sections of lamb ribs may make up a crown roast when tied together, with the ends of the ribs, "Frenched." Or the ribs may be cut into chops which may or may not be "Frenched" for the use of paper frills. The crown roast is cooked with a dressing, as a rule. If not, it may be placed upside down in the roasting pan, standing on the rib ends so that the fat which cooks out of the roast will keep the bones from drying or charring. If the ribs are left upright, they should be protected by wrapping them with strips of bacon.

BREAST SECTION.

The breast section includes part of the foreshank and the flank. The breast may be boned and rolled with flank end left on and shank part removed, for braising or roasting. Or the dealer will, if asked, prepare it, foreshank removed, with a slit for stuffing and roasting. He will grind the foreshank meat for use as stuffing, if you like. Stuffed lamb breast also is cooked by roasting. Breast meat may be cut up for stew, and foreshanks sold separately from the breast may be braised with vegetables.

LAMB SHOULDER.

The shoulder is used for roasts and chops, and is cooked by dry heat at a low temperature. The whole shoulder is difficult to carve when roasted with the bone in, so frequently it is boned and rolled. Or it may be prepared "cushion style" for stuffing and roasting. "Saratoga chops" are cut from the boned and rolled shoulder. They are cooked by broiling or panbroiling. Shoulder chops are large and meaty, and represent an economical purchase.

"Mock Duck" is shaped by the dealer from the shoulder section. It's roasted, of course.

NECK AND SHANK.

Four slices may be cut from the neck section. They contain vertebrae which may be removed before cooking or slipped out afterward. They have a fine flavor and are good braised with vegetables or made into stew. The whole neck may be roasted. The shanks may be roasted, braised, or stewed. Lamb patties are made from ground meat from lean portions of the neck and shanks, also from parts of the breast and shoulder. The patties usually are broiled.

Mrs. Marie E. Massmann of Chicago has loaned this official cover from Liechtenstein. This tiny principality, which covers approximately one-third the area of the city of Chicago, is described in an adjoining column.

Liechtenstein is a small agricultural principality lying south of Lake Constance between Switzerland and the Austrian province of Germany. Although the population is now German-speaking, the original tongue of the region was Romansch, still used by the Grisons of Switzerland, and perpetuated in many of the place names of Liechtenstein, notably the capital, Vaduz, and Samina, Gavadura, etc.

This is one of the smallest independent stamp issuing countries in the world, being underrated only by San Marino and Monaco. In area it embraces somewhat less than 70 square miles and is about 12 miles in its greatest dimension. The state is composed of the county of Vaduz and the lordship of Schellenburg, both of which were in many hands before being purchased by the count of Hohenems in 1613.

The Liechtenstein family purchased Schellenburg in 1699 and Vaduz in 1713. In 1719 the two states were raised to the status of a principality in the Holy Roman Empire. This ended in 1806 and Liechtenstein was independent until 1815, when it became a part of the German confederation. In 1866 it again regained its independent status and has been successful in maintaining that until the present time.

From 1852 until the close of the world war, it was joined with Austria in customs, coinage, and postal matters and appeals from its highest court at Vaduz were taken to the prince's court in Vienna. The first stamps under the Austrian administration of the postoffice were issued in 1912, and the last in 1918. In 1920 the principality began issuing its own stamps, but in the following year entered an agreement with Switzerland, adopted Swiss currency, and began using stamps in rappen and franc values instead of in the heller and krone values of the Austrian and local issues.

The sale of stamps to collectors appears to be one of the principal sources of income in this tiny state, and since the Swiss administration of the postoffice became operative there has been a steady stream of new issues covering not only the regular field with pictorial and commemorative stamps but also semi-postals and air mail issues. Since 1932 there have been regular issues of official stamps for use by the governmental departments.

The cover shown in an adjoining column bears examples of the current postage set overprinted with the inscription "Regierungs-Dienstsache," surrounding a crown. This inscription may be freely translated as "Government service—official matter."

Stamp Notes.

A new 9d stamp of Australia pictures a strange animal known as a platypus. This with the koala, the kookaburra, and the lyre bird give Australia first rank in countries picturing zoological specimens. The animal has a scientific name, "Ornithorhynchus," meaning the "bird-billed," but is commonly called the duck-billed platypus. It was described in a scientific magazine in 1799, and very near disrupted the classification of animals devised by Karl von Linne, for it overlapped several groups into which he had divided vertebrates. Von Linne's system was based on the belief that animals do not change, and since it did not fit any group it had to be placed in an appendix even by such an eminent scientist as Tiedeman until Darwin explained it in 1856. The platypus is aquatic, and is covered with short, soft fur mixed with longer wire hairs which are flat at the free end. Its front feet are equipped with large webs filling the spaces between the toes and extending beyond the ends of the flattened nails. Its rear feet have curved and pointed nails and are only slightly webbed, and those of the male are fitted with spurs which are connected to a poison sac.

The platypus lays eggs and hatches them in a pouch similar to that with which kangaroos are equipped. The only allied animal in the group of lowest mammals is the echidna, or porcupine anteater.

The African World explains that the high value British New Guinea stamps are used to pay the postage on gold shipments. The entire gold output of the colony is flown by air to Australia and parcels frequently require £10 to £15 in stamps, thus making the £5 stamp almost a necessity.

Chile will issue 100,000 copies each of two values to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the occupation of Easter Island [Isla de Pascua]. This counteracts a previous order which called for an entire series of stamps for this event. The 80 centavo value will be sold for 3 pesos and the 3.60 pesos value will sell for 10 pesos. The overcharge will be placed in a fund for various specified health and child welfare purposes.

In place of one of your existing radiators, or in addition to one of your regular radiators, there is a unit which will help to condition your air properly this coming winter. It will clean it, circulate it, humidify it, and heat it.

A new type thermostat now made will feel a change of less than one degree; a trustworthy control which will save you fuel and perhaps doctor bills. To heat a house to 75 degrees costs one-fifth more fuel than to 70 degrees. And these sensitive controls keep a house at more even temperature and likewise eliminate expense of uneven heat.

October Fears

By Eleanor Jewett.

I saw hung in the west one night
A copper penny, huge and flat.
My mother said it was the sun—
But I was sure it was not that.
Quite round it was and a dull red,
A penny from a giant's purse;
I was afraid if it should fall
That it might crush our car, or worse,
Set fire to the autumn fields
Where smoke already rises high.
But Mother said: "Don't be afraid,
The sun can't slip out of the sky."

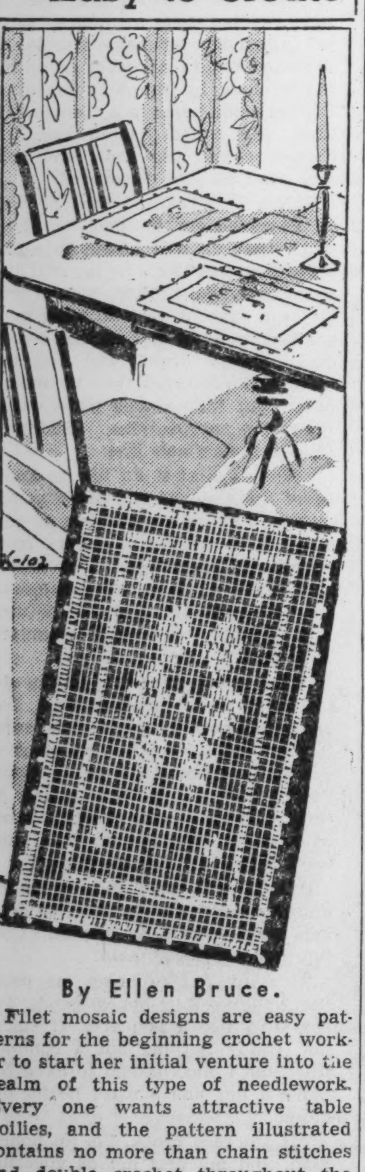
Crochet Design in Filet Mosaic Easy to Create



By Ellen Bruce.

Filet mosaic designs are easy patterns for the beginning crochet worker to start her initial venture into the realm of this type of needlework. Every one wants attractive table doilies, and the pattern illustrated contains no more than chain stitches and double crochet throughout the entire mat. Two hanks of ordinary bed cotton, or mercerised crochet cotton, will create a set of eight mats.

For instructions for crocheting the filet mosaic place mats, No. X-102, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth-avenue, New York City.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

The conservatives, who place a premium on beauty and good taste and leave the startlingly different to their more daring sisters, will welcome some new makeup accessories in a warm royal red. The lipstick, rouge and nail enamel have warmth and richness, but are neither obviously purple nor acidly pink. And they're universally flattering!

Royal red is the descriptive name of another family of new makeup aids. This is THE color for the conservatives who indorse the new makeup accents in deep tones but flee at the suggestion of the acid pinks.

First, there is the lipstick, a really gorgeous shade, in the warm royal shade of a king's robe. It has the depth that purple undertones contribute, but NOT a purple cast. Because it is so warm and so wonderfully red, it is perfect as a color accent, making the skin seem fairer by contrast. As far as we've been able to determine, it's as effective for blondes as for brunettes. It doesn't have the dark, dregs-of-wine cast that will make all skin but the alabaster white look muddy.

As a lipstick it is high quality. It spreads with a satin smoothness and clings beautifully. Also, it doesn't change color on the lips. And the consistency is creamy.

To match it there are rouges in the same royal red shade, one in cream, one compact. These, too, are high quality. We particularly like the thinnish texture of the cream rouge. It's easy to apply and to blend.

Then there is a nail enamel in the same shade. Now we've discovered that the rouge, lipstick and nail enamels that are supposed to match perfectly aren't always exact. Some of the best beauty creators have missed fire a bit in this respect. In the case of our lovely royal red, however, we defy anyone to detect a smidge of difference.

The nail enamel [some of the best, although least famed] is precisely the shade of the lipstick. And very pretty, too, as a dramatic finger tip adornment.

This new makeup is conservative compared to some of the obvious purple and pink ones now on the market. But its very conservatism gives it beauty and quality of good but fashionable taste that appeal. It's stunning with black, with the blues and an absolute knockout with the fuchsia costume colors.

For information about this makeup, telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100, or write to her in care of the Chicago Tribune.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

"The doctor who came for the children said maybe you could help us get a stove" . . . "The case worker said maybe you could help us get some blankets" . . . "The worker at the clinic said that I should write to you and tell you that I need a warm coat or I can't go for my treatments" . . . "The nurse said she would ask you about getting another bed" . . . "I have no one to help me. Maybe you will."

Thus are we beseiged, by letter, by phone, and by personal call. The need for bare necessities seems so great that we have shelved all other business for the purpose of concentrating on stoves, bedding, furniture, and clothing.

Relief agencies can supply fuel but no stoves, and many of the clients are without heat.

Finding living quarters for relief clients has become increasingly hard, and many of them are forced to move into unheated, unfurnished, unlivable quarters. Appeals for furniture of all kinds have come in from all sections of the city. Unfortunately, one of the difficulties in filling requests is that of transporting such offers as we receive. Donors, as a rule, cannot deliver, and those in need have no money to pay for cartage. We are generally forced to delay while the applicant finds some friend with a car or truck, a slow and rather unsatisfactory process. We hope that donors will understand this difficulty and be patient.

Clothing requests are unending. Mrs. P. writes in behalf of her brother, whose meager salary as a night watchman must care for both of them. She is diabetic and must have a special diet, and the expense of this, coupled with bills for rent, groceries, and heat, leaves no money for clothing. In his fifties, he weighs 189, and is 5 feet 6. He needs a suit, size 46, an overcoat, shirts 16 or 16½, and shoes, 9½ or 10.

Mrs. M. has five children, boys 10, 8, and 6, and girls 3 and 2. Her husband has left her, and undernourishment and hard work have impaired her health. She is in need of floor coverings, bedding, cooking utensils, and clothing for the children.

Although her husband works only part time, Mrs. S. has managed to do without relief. She is anxious to get warm clothing for her girls, 9 and 7, and boys, 11 years and 17 months. The latter also is in need of a stroller. He has been ill much of his short life, and weighs only 22 pounds. He had pneumonia, followed by measles, then a recurrence of the pneumonia, and consequently he is too weak to walk. It is necessary that he have plenty of fresh air, but he has no warm clothing and his mother is no longer able to carry him.

These are typical cases. We have hundreds like them, plus appeals for men's and women's clothing of all sizes.

Clotilde Children's Fashions

This pattern should delight mothers who have two or more daughters for whom to provide wardrobes, because it offers versions for the very young girl of kindergarten age and also for the miss already well along in school. Many kinds of fabrics also are suitable, depending upon the style selected.

Sketched at the left is a peasant model that takes beautifully to all types of soft silks, cottons, and to challis. It has a shirred bodice and full skirt, and the collar is a plain shirtwaist one. The sleeves are puffed, and trimming collar, cuffs, and bodice is ready made bias binding, simple to use and inexpensive.

The other frock, for the older girl, takes to plaits for its chic, and makes up attractively in woolens. It's the kind of dress that really is a uniform, since it wears and wears and your daughter will not become tired of it. It's perfect for school. The collar may be made of the same material as the dress, or it may be of lingerie fabric and detachable for laundering. The sleeves may be long or short, but we have an idea that the style conscious miss of 10, 12, or 14 will like best the long ones, since they're more "grownup."

Style No. 3232 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2½ yards of 39 inch material.

If by chance we belong to the group of those who want to build or to buy here are ten golden rules to follow. If these rules had been followed some ten years ago by numerous hopeful families so many homes would not have been given up and lost. So many wrong homes, too big homes, too expensive homes, too hard to keep up homes, all costly mistakes, and sometimes quite heart breaking mistakes.

So those evenings when you reflect on what spring may bring forth in the way of a new home for you and yours keep the following brief and very simple rules in mind, just as insurance again woes to come, all unnecessary woes in the light of how wise we are this year.

1. Start some simple budget so that when spring comes you will have a rather definite idea [if you haven't already] of what your average expenses run.

2. Don't plan to spend more than three times your annual income. You'll be wiser if you spend only two and one-half times!

3. Remember that home costs are not just mortgage costs and taxes. Begin now to check up on carrying costs so that you can meet these out of salary.

4. Plan to pay as much as you can in the beginning so you won't have to pay so much and so long!

5. Plan to pay off balance as rapidly as possible.

6. See if your husband can carry enough life insurance to permit you to pay off mortgage in case he, as head of the house, should die.

7. Buy a house that always is just a little less than you can afford rather than just a little more.

8. Buy the sort of house you can add to if you wish later on.

9. Take time to get acquainted with the neighborhood in which you are planning to buy or to build.

10. Shop around and become acquainted with what the market offers. Garner in grains of wisdom when the wintry breezes blow. You'll find the adventure full of interest. Possibilities, all manner of them, are yours to investigate.

And if you'll plan to keep No. 2 always before you and No. 7 and the eight besides the chances are good that you can find just the house you want when the warmer breezes blow and, better still, keep it, too!

Home Baker's Tip.

The next time you mix pie dough, double the quantity. Wrap the surplus tightly in waxed paper and store it in the refrigerator. Then you'll have it handy during the week to cover pot pies, make into patties for left-over meats, vegetables or dessert combinations. Part of the dough may also be rolled out, spread with brown sugar and spices and rolled up, cut off into thin slices and baked until well browned. If you like cheese, sprinkle a little over another bit of rolled out dough. Cut it into straws and bake them. Serve with soups, salads or beverages.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE

By Rupert Hughes

THE STORY TO DATE

Santa Claus Comes to Ben and Nell Roat Via the Front Page of the Newspaper

"Two hunnert dollars' worth of beads!" Ben was crying now, and it was devastating.

INSTALMENT III.

(Copyright: 1938: By Rupert Hughes.)

THE BUELLS brought up Ned to believe that any penny he wanted he must earn, and that other people's property was their own, however they got it.

The Roats brought up Ted on the theory that other people's money was his the moment he could get it without being caught. The clever thing was to take it the easiest way. If he were caught at it the joke was on him, and he'd better be cleverer next time.

From Ben and Nellie's usual line of talk Ted imbibed the idea that everybody was a crook and that the money the Roats got dishonestly had been previously got dishonestly by the people they took it from. Concerning other people's goods the Roats were communists. But once a valuable fell into their hands, it belonged exclusively to the Roats. Nobody can be more indignant than the bit biter or the robbed robber.

Ted was never exactly schooled in their gospel. He was never schooled in anything. He just drank it in from the conversation and the excitements of his supposed parents. He heard much praise of great thieves. He heard much praise of gunmen, of pirates, of defiers of the law, and of gangsters who murdered one another brilliantly and took more pride in it than in slaughtering policemen or plain citizens.

The Roats led a Bedouin life of mysterious disappearances. To Ted their flights and hideouts from the police or hostile gunmen were simply picnics and excursions. He took everything merrily. His parents kept indoors for days and days, but he could always amuse himself. He just pretended that it was raining.

Sometimes his parents entertained strange people who spoke a mysterious language. Sometimes the Roats were frightened, sometimes hilarious. Both Nell and Ben drank too much at times, but Ted took their alcoholic antics and quarrels as so many more jokes.

He was not forced to go to dull schools or Sunday schools or made to study books or do home work. What he learned he learned by ear or drank in at his pores. Ted had a really happier childhood than Ned, for he did not have the precepts of morality dinned in his ears.

It is of the nature of human nature to resist influences and to resent commands. The Roats did not try to force their boy into crime. He was none of the little army of Oliver Twists who are whipped into pocket-picking and beaten into thievery. Yet if Nell and Ben had tried to drive Ted into crime they might have made him honest by pure cantankerousness.

Naturally his practices followed the theories he absorbed. At a very early age little Teddy was as thievish and as cute as a pack rat. When he stole from his father, his mother laughed. When his father threatened to beat him, his mother defended him. When he stole from his mother, his father laughed.

His mother was angry at first, then heartbroken — not because he had stolen, but because he had stolen from his loving mumsie. He found that stealing from other children or neighbors amused both parents at once. And so, since he loved applause, he stole mostly from neighbors or strangers.

Yet he was not hard or tough. He could be ruled best by appeals to his sentiments, and he could be magnanimous in a graceful and smiling way. This also he learned from Ben, who also had his moments of generosity. In his early apprentice days of being only a stickup man Ben had often given a victim car fare home—after looting him of everything else.

Ben rarely robbed a pal unless he though the pal might be about to rob him. He was very gallant to women and never frightened one unnecessarily. It really hurt him to knock a girl senseless when she hung on to a handbag or a ring he wanted. He was not proud of having to slug an old woman who threatened to scream and wake a household. Ben always wept at the word "mother," especially when it was bleated a little, as if the tremolo stop were pulled out in a church organ.

And yet Ben was sincerely ashamed of this weakness. As he confessed:

"I'm a sucker for any double-crossin' dame. I'm a fall guy for a floozy every time. Just leave a skirt squeeze one tear and I'm all wet."

In fact, it was this curse of gentleness that nearly ruined him. He was to sentimental to succeed at daylight robbery or after-dark burglary, and too gallant to do well as a white slaver; he was always being cheated by his victims.

He had been desperately looking about for a larger career when, luckily for him, prohibition came along and enabled him to devote his attentions to rough fellows like his Uncle Sam and the roughnecks who attempted to pretend to enforce the excise laws. Now he could afford to be polite to females.

So Ted grew up in an atmosphere of deep chivalry toward women, especially his mother. The boy had gracious and magnetic manners that promised a fine future as a confidence operator. At eight he was already a bit of a gigolo. Little girls bought him candy and fat old ladies caught him up into what laps they had. He was not yet ten when his gallantry cost him dear.

Bad luck and good were always on each other's heels with Ben, but he finally acquired a certain eminence and reliability as a bootlegger. He numbered among his patrons some of the most respectable worthies of New York and its environs.

Of course, he used forged labels on forged bottles filled with forged liquor, but as bootleggers went he was a man of honor. Some of his imported liquor was actually imported, at least from Mexico or Canada or Cuba, and he owned a share in a fast power boat that brought the contraband to a convenient landing place. When it was captured and sold he bought it back from the law enforcement men. At last a lofty ambition tempted him. He told Nell and Ted:

"I got the grandest ideer I ever had. I'm goin' to build me a gasoline truck—or what looks so much like one it'll fool any revenue agent. It's goin' to carry a thin little stock of gasoline, but the tanks will be full of wine and hard liquor. It can travel the highways without attractin' no attention from the cops or other hijackers. But it's goin' to set me back twenty-fi' grand—and Gawd, how it hurts!"

"Twenty-five thou'!" cried little Teddy. "Are you printin' your own money, pop?"

"Nah, some of it's good, honest money I made on holdups. Some of it's advance payments, and I borried a part of it. With that truck I can run liquor anywhere and get rich right off the bat."

"You're off your bat, all right, all right," said Nell, who was a pessimist, being a woman. Somepum tells me."

"I'm usin' it, son," said Nell, "but it all comes out bad."

With scorn for his wife's lack of confidence and courage, Ben went ahead and ordered his smuggler's truck. The manufacturer cruelly insisted on cash in full on delivery, and Ben, feeling rather gaunt after disgorging twenty-five thousand dollars, took Nell and Ted around to se the new truck in its splendor and all ready for use as soon as the paint dried.

"It's a beaut," Nell had to admit. Still she croaked: "But the beautifuller it is the easier it's busted."

Ted pleaded and wheedled and wept to ride with the truck on its first outing. But Ben refused to risk his precious person on such a venture.

Mere child that he was, Ted was a pirate by training, and his heart hardened against his father for denying him a chance at the glory of sharing the truck's maiden voyage.

LATER in the day Nell and Ted, out for a walk, paused before a big jewelry store on Fifth avenue. Nellie was always fighting her love for flashy things and blatant colors. Now she was bowled over by a beaded bag of exquisite delicacy.

"It's simpully swell-elegant, refined—it's what you'd call chaste. I'd give my right eye for it."

"Why don't you go in and buy it, mamma?"

"It would set me back two hunnert bucks, and I'm just a hunnert and seventy-fi' short. I'll wait till papa's ship comes in."

"But why must you wait? Why don't you just go in and ask to look at it, and then I'll holler fire or something and you can——"

"Why, Teddy Roat! Are you trying to get your poor old mother pinched? And don't talk so loud. Some one might listen in and think I was a shoplifter."

"Well——"

"Hush, for gawsays!"

She hurried him away, but his little heart ached for her and the yerning — she pronounced it yen — that tormented her. When Ben came home for dinner Ted told him of his mother's heart's desire, but Ben was not his better self.

"You must be crazy with the heat," he snapped. "Layin' down two centuries for a beaded bag, and nothin' to put in it. You know I've sank every bean I can lay hands on into that truck. Once that gets over I'll buy you a flock of beaded bags and stuff 'em with bills till they bust wide open."

The next day Ben bade them farewell for an indefinite period. He was to make his grand adventure with the twenty-five thousand dollar galleon on wheels.

Worrying over him put Nell so down in the mouth that Ted felt the need of getting her something to cheer her up. He thought of that beaded bag. As a surprise gift it might brighten the gloom.

If she had merely wanted a few bananas or oranges or some chewing gum he could have got them for her from almost any fruit stand by the simple arts of swipery. But he had had no experience with jewelry stores. He paced up and down outside the window where the chaste and elegant bag taunted him. He entered and paced the aile. But he could tell that a nine-year-old boy in a jewelry store was so conspicuous as to excite attention.

"Looking for mamma, buddy?" A large person with the flat feet of a detective was asking him this, and Ted took the hint.

That night he stole from his bed and scouted about. But he found the jeweler's shop closed with great iron shutters. He saw every indication that it was patroled by a night watchman, and he had to admit that this bit of grand larceny was a bit too grand for his skill and his years. Buying the beaded bag was equally beyond the reach of his savings bank. It was a burglarproof bank, but Ted could loot it. Little good his skill did him now, for you cannot rob a bank of more than it holds.

Yet heaven helps those who help themselves, and Ted, snooping about the flat while his mother was out, came on a cache of exactly two hundred dollars. Ben Roat had put it aside for a rainy day, but not so cunningly as he had thought. So Teddy helped himself to the heaven-sent funds. After all, his father would soon be rolling in wealth.

Ted dashed for the jewelry store with the speed of a Skippy. The clerk was puzzled when the small boy on tiptoe peered over the top of the counter and asked for "the beaded bag that was in the winder yesterday." He was more puzzled when the lad handed over the full price for it. Ted silenced his worries by saying:

"Mamma sent me for it. She wants to carry it to a party tonight. It just matches her dress."

The money was good, and a sale is a sale, so Teddy was permitted to depart with the treasure. The humiliation of the honest purchase was redeemed by the fact that he had at least stolen the price—and from his father, of all people. He reached home breathless. He handed over the beaded bag in its authentic box as he panted:

"M-mamma, here's a little p-present for you."

"A present, son? Why, it's nowhere near Christmas."

"That's why you get it now, mamma."

Prepared for a practical joke, Nell accepted the parcel. She gasped:

"My Gawd, it's the beaded bag!"

She hugged it to her amplified bosom, and Teddy purred. Nell fairly reveled in the chaste elegance of the ornament, and she preened before the mirror. Then she whirled with a sudden demand.

"Where'd you get this bag? You couldn't have——"

"No, mamma. There wasn't a chance. I had to buy it."

"Buy it? What with? You didn't loot your own savin's bank, did you?"

"Why, mamma! Is that nice?"

"Don't think I don't appreciate the sweet thought, son, but you got me guessin' about where you got the dough. You never took it off me. Your father—— Teddy! Did you peel it offen papa's roll?"

He rather overacted the registering of horrified innocence, and Nell made him confess where he had found the money. So Ben was holding out on her! The whole performance, following Ben's crass comments on her desire for the bag, delighted her so that she almost laughed herself to death.

HER cachinnations were still strident and she was wiping the tears from her cheeks when Ben came in most unexpectedly. He did not say a word — not even a curt "Howdy!" To Ted's acute alarm, he went straight to the hiding place of his money. The roar he let out resembled, in Teddy's mind, Nellie's ancient bedtime story of the remarks Papa Bear made when he found that Goldilocks had not only sat in his chair and lain in his bed but had also hogged up his porridge.

Ben always "suspicioned" everybody, but he always accused the nearest to the crime. To save Ted from Ben's rage Nell said:

"It was me who took it, Ben. I just hadda have that beaded bag I'd set my heart on, so when I come on that dough where you hid it I just hadda use it."

The sight of the chaste and elegant reticule threw him into a fit of rage so fierce that he almost laughed. He knew that the jewelers would never refund the money. As for a pawnbroker, if either of the Roats took him the bag he would charge the regular commission of a fence. Nobody would ever believe for a moment the truth that the bag had been bought over the counter for the asking price.

In his fury Ben threatened to take the price of the bag out of Nell's hide. Then Ted stepped forward to protect her and in somewhat the manner of Parson Weems' Washington under similar circumstances said:

"Pop, I can't let mom lie me out of it. I swiped your kick, and I'll take my castor oil."

Ben gaped at him. He was too weak by now to have punished a mosquito for biting. He explained why he took it so hard:

"I wouldn't 'a' minded your buyin' the bag, Nell, if—I'd 'a' bought you a better one myself if—but—well, last night I took the truck out for its first trip—drove it down to the beach where a schooner from Cuba was dumpin' kegs and barrels overboard to float 'em ashore. I had men in the surf to hurry up the casks. Everything was lookin' lovely when — well, they must 'a' been a million revenooers hidin' out to spy on us, for all of a sudden they bust out from cover with guns goin'.

"My grand new truck hadn't got the first pint into it yet, but I slapped on the clutch and beat it as fast as I could kick the accelerator. Out the corner of one eye I could see the schooner puttin' out to sea, and some of the cops closin' in on the men comin' out of the water.

"The cops come shootin', and I saw one o' my men drop in the surf just as the truck went round a corner on one ear. She had speed, and she was leavin' the bulls behind, but they kep' shootin' away at me, and purt' soon I run into some motorcycle cops, and they drawed their guns on me and fell in alongside with sirens goin' full blast. They was nothin' to do but drop off in a thicket and leave 'em have the truck.

"As I swung off I give the wheel a spin, and I like to got one of the bulls. He was so busy dodgin' the truck he never thought to watch me, and I got away in the woods. But o' course the truck's got enough of my finger prints all over it to sink a ship.

"I thumbed a ride into town and holed up till dark. The evenin' papers say one of my boys was killed in the surf — nice boy, too. That leaves his poor mother an orphan, and I got to take care of the funeral and the flowers and slip the old woman a piece of money. And all this while the cops are fine-tooth-combin' the town for me. I know, because they'll easy enough beat it out of my hired men who I am.

"That's one trouble with a crook. You can't never trust him. All a cop's gotta do is put the heat on him, swat him with the rubber hose, jab his thumb in his eyes, or hold a match to his big toe, or sumpin', and the dirty welsher will confess anything the cops tell him to. So what chance have I got to be kep' out of it?

"Whilst I was makin' my way home by roundabouts the on'y bright spot I could see in this lousy worl' was those two hunnert smackers I'd salted away here in the flat. I was countin' on usin' 'em for eatin' money whilst I was hidin' out. And now I come home for 'em, and what do I find? A beaded bag. A beaded bag!

"Two hunnert dollars' worth o' beads! Why, you could buy all the Indians in the United States for that many beads. You could 'a' bought the whole United States offen the Indians for it, if anybody'd wanted to. A beaded bag! Hully mackerel, and the bag ain't big enough to hold a ham on rye sandwidge if you had one."

Ben was crying now, and it was devastating to little Ted to see his revered parent in tears. If anything could have changed his optimistic soul to a pessimistic outlook it would have been the conviction that chivalry and mother love and legal purchase of goods were all as likely to turn out wrong as the most crooked dealing. He had learned, too, how hard it is to please everybody at the same time, especially a husband and a wife.

Even while he was weeping Ben was flinging what clothes he had into a suitcase. The sobbing Nell handed him the beaded bag as a peace offering. He flung it in her face and left without kissing Teddy good-by.

As soon as she could Nell fled with the boy to another town, only to learn that Ben had dashed into the very arms of the police. He was speeded to the penitentiary as one of the latest victims of the prohibition laws. They were repealed long before he was released by the parole board.

Hard times followed for Ted and Nell, and it was the nearest Ted ever came to downright poverty. His mother was hard put to it to keep them both alive. She felt she had to go back to shoplifting and an ancient game that Teddy was too young to understand fully — or at least he pretended to be. It was called the badger game, and required a collaborator.

Pill Gormer, one of Ben's pals, usually pretended to be Nell's husband. He would follow her about, and when she found a companion for the evening Gormer would break in on them and threaten to start shooting unless the guy spilled all his cash. But it was a precarious and rarely profitable form of drama, for most of the guys who had money carried only a little cash and a check book. Cashing checks secured under duress was hazardous, and the checks were usually stopped before the bank could be reached.

Devotion to his hard-working mother awakened the best in Teddy, and he did what he could to increase the family income. But good intentions are a poor substitute for technique, and he kept getting caught. He always told a good story with a sweetly guileless face, but the same guileless face and his different stories and names exhausted the patience and loving kindness of the Juvenile court, and at a flatteringly early age he was sentenced to the reformatory handsomely entitled the New York Training School for Boys.

The climate was fine there at Warwick, and the society was plentiful and picturesque. Teddy always made the best of any bad matter, and the reform school was an academy to him. The more brutal depravity of his companions hardly touched him, but he learned all they had to teach in the way of tricks of the trade. If that school included a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, Teddy would have come away with a key and a diploma summa cum laude. He would probably have stolen the key and forged the diploma.

WHEN he was graduated he needed all he had learned to keep alive and free of the police nets while he hunted for his father and mother in their hideouts. He went back to the reformatory for a postgraduate course. When he found his parents at last they were none too flush.

Ben had just come down the river with only a new suit of clothes and a five-dollar bill to show for the stretch he had done at the penitentiary. And Nellie had come out of the House of Detention in Jefferson market with still less. They had friends to tide them over, but their hopes of big and easy money had gone glimmering.

The repeal of prohibition was a bitterer blow to Ben than to many of the high moralists of the Anti-Saloon league. They had not made a living out of prohibition, and he had.

The faces of all three Roats were so familiar to the police that they hardly dared show them at a market or a movie for fear of being warned out of town or picked up for vagrancy. The future was dull and drab. Of course, they had one another, but, as Ben would often say, "Love is darling, but it ain't doughnuts." They drifted westward in search of seclusion and modest opportunities for a return to power.

And then once more heaven sent them a rescuer. And the one who saved them was, of all people on earth, that very twin brother Ned, of whom Ted was to learn for the first time.

Ned did not hurry to the rescue of Ted intentionally. He did not even suspect that he had a brother. And he was so far from meaning to come to the rescue that—by a kind of Irish bull of fate—it was his disappearance that saved them.

He vanished at Christmas, the gladsome Yuletide, when the hearts of Ben and Nell had always expanded with a warmer love of humanity, because at this dear season people gathered together in vast crowds. The department stores were insane asylums, and cash in large quantities was freely circulated.

Hence Ben had usually found wonderful opportunities to hold up bank messengers carrying pay rolls or deposits in satchels. Nellie could ply her shoplifting art, and even little Ted could pick pockets and snatch purses without attracting attention.

But everything went wrong this year. The bank messengers traveled with armed guards or rode in armored cars. Even in the small city of Clayburg, where the Roats were in semi-retirement. Store detectives arrested shoplifters at Nell's very elbows, and many of them recognized her and bade her to keep going.

Little Ted was the only one of the three who brought in any real revenue. Dressed like a millionaire's son and endowed with a gift for playing and looking the rôle of Innocence itself, he moved about in the throngs, collecting here a handbag, there a parcel or a pawnable jewel.

But, as Ben complained, there was no fat money in that hick town. And what would they do when the shopping season was over? Christmas day dawned cold and clear, and their question was unanswered, their stockings were empty. But Santa Clause was there. He did not come to them through the fireplace, because there was no fireplace; nor did he come through the steam radiator. He came in a newspaper.

Time—fourteen years of it—and the utterly different natures of their surroundings had left the twins little or nothing of their twinship except physical appearance. Spiritually life had been doing for them what scientists like Dr. Pitnick had longed to do but could not — and dared not. For no biologist or psychiatrist would have dreamed of turning one twin over to criminals like the Roats while giving the other to law-abiding, honorable-hearted people like the Buells. Yet life had done just that.

Ned had known none of the wanderings and hidings and terrors that had made up Ted's existence, for the Buells had taken root like trees. Since Ned's long trip west on the baby train he had hardly ever left Hampton, where the Automo-Buell battery factory was the mainstay of the citizens and the Buell home the show place of the town, more for its age than its splendor, for it was merely a solid, ugly, old, comfortable mansion of charmingly hideous architecture, as homey as it was homely.

Prosperity as a manufacturer was not enough for Clinton Buell. He was a peace-time patriot, always warring on grafting politicians, crooks entrenched in office, and any other swindlers of the public. When his party needed a clean name at its head Clinton Buell was asked to run for governor—largely at his own expense. He consented because he felt that he could do the state some good by seeing to it that only honest men had a chance to spend the public funds.

But in the shadow of every honest man peculiar people are sure to spring up like toadstools under a live oak. Buell never dreamed how many crooked persons he was sheltering. Even his loving and beloved daughter Edith had unwittingly conspired against him, for she had fallen frantically in love with a handsome young man whose definition of business was "other people's money, and how to make it your own." Clinton Buell had got rich honestly, but it was slow work, and Gilbert Easton was a sprinter, not a marathon runner.

Easton overcame Edith's sales resistance so cleverly that she snapped him up and rushed him to the altar. And now he could label himself the son-in-law of the next governor. Buell was a perfect front for Easton, who indulged in daylight robbery and called it investments. He unloaded thousands of shares of stocks and bonds on people who would have trusted Clinton Buell with their lives. Easton began to build himself a magnificent residence. While it was going up he lived with his wife in a wing of the big Buell home.

When Buell's second daughter, Margaret, promised to marry Gordon Spencer, Gilbert Easton promptly persuaded Gorodn to turn over practically all of a modest inheritance and his other savings in return for some paper that Easton humorously called gilt-edged securities. The gilt was very thin, but the edge was very sharp.

CLINTON BUELL was so busy with his campaign that he suspected nothing and blindly permitted Easton to "assist" him in his campaign. Easton won his father-in-law many votes by promises he made in Clinton's name without troubling to mention them to Clinton. He guaranteed the same offices and perquisites to dozens of people as glibly as he guaranteed impossible profits to those who bought his bonds.

To Ned the campaign was mainly a matter of parades, photographs, processions, brass bands, bouquets, and headlines. He was a studious little bookworm and just coming into the age which is perhaps the most solemn and earnest a man knows. Ned was passionately zealous as a Boy Scout. In fact, he was passionate about everything in life. The platitudes of patriotism were gleaming, new, and glorious. He loved his country, his God, and the governor-to-be.

The long turmoil ended in Buell's election by an immense majority. His inauguration would come late in January. One of the first painful discoveries was that his son-in-law, Easton, had pledged him to leave in office a number of the worst rascals and to put back a number who had been previously thrown out.

It was one of the family jokes that you had to walk about the library carefully or you would step on Ned. The boy loved to pull heavy books from the shelves to the floor and lie there reading them for hours. Late one afternoon he happened to be stretched out in a corner behind a heavy chair by the window when Clinton came home in a tremendous rage. He called Easton into the library, closed the door, and told him what he had discovered.

Before Ned realized that he was an eavesdropper he had heard so much that he was afraid to make his presence known. He lay still and shivered while Clinton poured out the vain rage of an honorable man compromised by a reckless scoundrel. Easton stammered and faltered and protested that he meant well. But his excuses were worse than the accusations. Suddenly Clinton took a new line.

"While I'm at it I'd like to know about these stocks and bonds you're selling. Part of my business as governor is to protect investors from fraudulent promoters. I've looked over some of your advertisments, your circulars and follow-up letters, your prospectuses and promises. They terrify me.

"Your advertisments read like old-fashioned patent medicine stuff. You guarantee profits nobody could earn. If your bonds were half as good as you say you'd be a fool to sell them. You've been selling them mainly to widows, farmers, and small investors who know little, have little, and can't afford to lose anything."

In answer to this explosion Easton murmured assurances that his dealings were absolutely honest. Clinton, not convinced, said:

"I want you to bring me proof that you're selling honest goods. It's easy to prove if you are. If you're not, you're nothing but a common thief and I don't intend to have you make a liar and a ward heeler out of me.

"If you're a crook, I'm an honest man, and my first act as governor of this commonwealth will be to put my son-in-law into the penitentiary. You will have made me an accessory to your crimes. If I have misjudged you and your so-called securities I'll be only too glad to apologize. But I want proof, bank-worthy proof."

Paris Dishing Up Color with Furs for Fall

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Sports fashions designed for snappy autumn weather are substantial enough for the Paris dressmakers to get their teeth into something, so they've turned out a handsome spread of clothes to wear to the big game and any other roustabout doings in the open air.

As usual, the fur coat, or the fur trimmed coat, is the star piece of sports fashions. A whole series of new or disguised breeds of fur is devoted to keeping feminine rooters warm and chic this fall. Familiar friends such as nutria, beaver, and ocelot have a pep treatment of color so they are a lot more exciting. Million dollar football fans can wear coats of natural lynx or fisher at several thousand dollars a throw, but they won't be any better looking than the girls in lesser furs. There will be lots of lynx trimmed tweed coats and capes for sports, and these, being dished up in gorgeous colors, are about the most effective yet shown. Violet, red, radio green, and other such colored tweeds will make stunning sports wraps, trimmed as they are with lynx, cross fox, and similar fine looking animal pelts.

Alix, the old genius, introduces a Frenchified edition of the peasant dress in simply ravishing colors to wear for fall sports, and she pairs it off with a brown caracul jacket having puffed sleeves, making an ensemble that is simply unbeatable and as personal as a love affair. The dress is made of fine wool jersey. The top and sleeves of the fitted bodice come in that grand color, teal duck green. From the bosom to the waistline the bodice is a dull fuchsia red jersey, this color mounting in a V-shaped piece at the back. The full gathered skirt is reddish brown jersey, and tucked over a string belt. The brown caracul jacket explains itself. A Scotch cap of teal green felt has fuchsia felt flowers encrusted on the top.

There are copious models in the Paris houses done in blanket wool patterned with Scotch plaid designs, coming in sports coats or capes, and in two piece dresses to wear under them. A very new and flattering Scotch plaid suit in Schiaparelli's show comes in vivid pink and black. Plaid in colors such as these is the smartest.

Striped wools, also in unusual colors such as violet and brown, shocking pink with green or black, make some of the best sports jackets with one-color tweed skirts and sweaters or wool sports blouses. Checkered wool box jackets with velveteen skirts are a Creed sports suit entry that is a knockout. Sports skirts are, I notice, narrower than they were last season, but they're easy because of flared gores or plaits that are set in sparsely, not all around as they were this summer. Circular cut skirts with plaited fronts are being groomed for skating, and they're grand and graceful paired with fitted mess jacket tops or basques.

Hoods to wear with sports clothes will be leading accessories this season, so there's no reason to freeze your ears. Molyneux makes big beaver and nutria hoods to go with cloth sports coats. Schiaparelli makes closely fitted ones of bushy fur that tie under the chin. Alix has her own way, which is to combine side-curtain ties with a pillbox hat. One model is a black felt pillbox hat, with combined tawny ocelot fur and black wool jersey making the curtains that tie under the chin and keep the ears steam heated even in the worst cold snap. The Alix coat of ocelot fur that companions the hat is so closed it may be worn as a dress should you happen to feel that way any time. The gayly speckled fur is so soft that it can be worked like cloth, and has leg o' mutton sleeves, a fitted waist section, and a flared skirt. A narrow black belt spans the waistline.

Schiaparelli likes violets for sports clothes, and one of her suits is in violet colored tweed. The cape is trimmed with natural lynx which makes a square yoke at the back of the shoulders and long bands down the front closing, which curve at the bottom. A long jersey blouse, draped like a basque of 1880, makes an unusual sweater top with the slim tweed skirt. A tiny dark brown felt sports hat, held on by a shirred ribbon band, is trimmed with a red feather.

There is a stunning nutria sports coat from Paquin. The fur is worked in bands, and between the bands are rows of velvet ribbon. The top one is bright green, the second violet, and the third fuchsia red. This coat goes over a fuchsia red wool crêpe dress. A high toque of nutria fur is trimmed with grosgrain ribbon.

Paris Pattern Frock Ideal "Extra" in Your Wardrobe

No. 5264—The Paris pattern for this dress is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—While the fashion season is coasting along awaiting developments, and there certainly will be some soon, I've decided that the time is just about ripe for that "extra" dress every wardrobe needs. Of course, I know that the frock must be custom-made in appearance and very easy to make, because it's a busy period right now and you don't want to spend too much time at your sewing machine. When a close friend came to tea the other day in a simple and superb little frock, I made mental notes of it and adapted it for pattern No. 5264.

The original frock, which came from one of the leading salons, is fashioned of slate blue velveteen. The neckline applique, which was the most distinguishing feature of the dress, was of deep magenta. Needless to say, the comely woman who wore the frock had accessories in magenta, too. Since the lines of the model are so plain and simple, almost any color scheme is possible, and even your wildest fancies will be in style this season. You could combine black and white, the good old conservative union; wine and teal, green and russet, mauve and raisin.

The applique pattern for the neckline is provided at no extra cost, and I know you'll like it. It's a simple job to do, and is easily applied to any fabric, whether you choose velvet, velveteen, silk crêpe, or sheer woolen.

Three Radiator Models for the New Home Owner

In modernizing or new work the home owner now has three types of radiators to choose from if he is installing a new steam or hot water system, or renovating the old system.

There is the well known type of radiator which stands out in the room, but is now much slimmer, even streamlined to follow the fashion, a unit which has 40 per cent less bulk than its older styled parent. Then there is that heating unit which is completely concealed in the wall, and is called a convector instead of a radiator, since it gives off its heat to the air which circulates around it and not by direct heat rays, as in the case of the conventional radiator.

The third type, for use with steam or hot water plants, is placed in a recess in the wall, nicely out of the way, and yet it has a "live" front. That is, the front of the radiator, filled with hot water or steam, gives off radiant heat. In addition it also heats by convection, the same as other in-the-wall types.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Smart on the slim figure and a friend to the plump one is the dirndl. It's a girlish mode, too, and I can tell you that girls on campuses the country over are not going to relinquish the style very readily, if signs on my own campus are any indication. Men like the feminine lines, and co-eds like to please the eyes of masculine beholders, so there you are!

You won't find the shirred waistline difficult to make. Use the simple ruse of elastic thread. Put it in the bobbin of your sewing machine, and stitch as you ordinarily would for shirring. You'll like the softened shoulders of the model, too, and the squared sleeves.

This design is perfect for velvet, but silk crêpes also are attractive. If you want something for knockaround wear, to the games and classes or the office, select lightweight woolen or jersey. If you're practical minded you'll see possibilities in this dress for general wear, but I call it the "date dress de luxe."

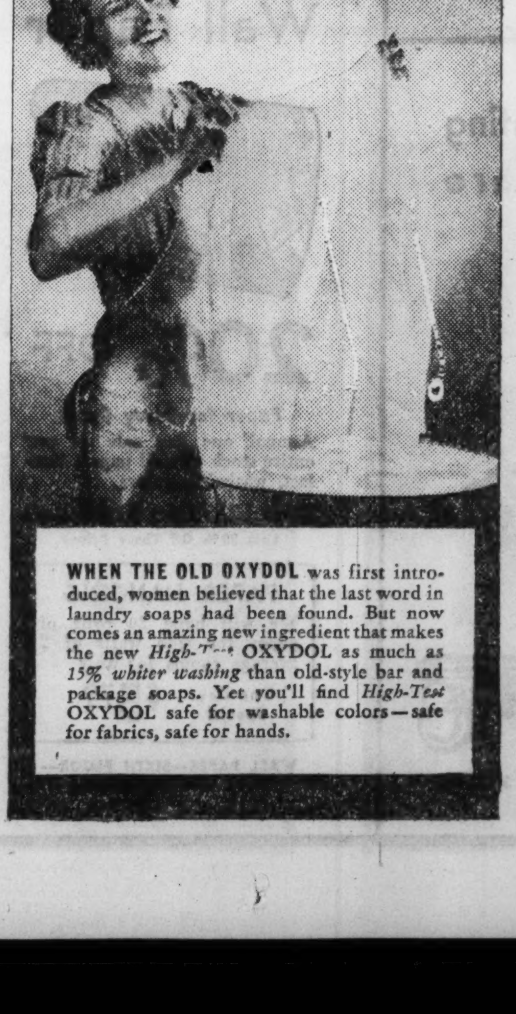
NOW—A Revolutionary Advance in "No-Scrub" Laundry Soap . . .

NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL DOES THESE 3 AMAZING THINGS:-

1—WASHES UP TO 15% WHITER in either tub or washing machine

2—GIVES UP TO TWICE THE SUDS (suds stand up 2 to 3 times longer)

3—COLORS STAY TRULY BRIGHT in washable prints and fabrics



WHEN THE OLD OXYDOL was first introduced, women believed that the last word in laundry soaps had been found. But now comes an amazing new ingredient that makes the new High-Test OXYDOL as much as 15% whiter washing than old-style bar and package soaps. Yet you'll find High-Test OXYDOL safe for washable colors—safe for fabrics, safe for hands.

SOAP'S GREATEST ADVANCE in whiter washing with safety

NOW comes a remarkable new ingredient to make America's most improved laundry soap far whiter washing than ever before. An ingredient that makes new High-Test OXYDOL wash white clothes up to 15% whiter than old-fashioned soaps, in tub or washing machines. Yet keeps it safety itself for washable colors—safe for fabrics and hands.

When first you try new High-Test Oxydol we believe it will change all the previous ideas you ever had about washdays. About whiter-washing soaps, more sparkling clothes.

What Tests Reveal

(1) Washes white clothes as much as 15% whiter. (2) Gives up to TWICE as much rich, active suds—suds that stand up two to three times longer. (3) Washable colors stay TRULY fresh and bright—wash after wash and in hard water, even. High-Test Oxydol has passed every test for safety to washable colors.

For example, tests show that sheer cotton prints washed as much as 175 times in new High-Test Oxydol showed no perceptible sign of fading—stayed amazingly brilliant, fresh!

No Scrubbing—Clothes Last Longer

In tub-washing—new High-Test Oxydol soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes, without scrubbing or boiling. Thus putting an end to the washday drudgery and washboard wear and tear chargeable to less modern soaps. Clothes last 2 to 3 times as long compared to old-fashioned ways.

NO PERCEPTIBLE COLOR FADING after 175 High-Test OXYDOL washings—tests prove it! Equivalent to more than 3 years' normal washing—yet colors stayed fresh and bright, in hard water, too.

In washing machines—new High-Test Oxydol soaks dirt loose while the washer is running—gives you DOUBLE-ACTION wash. Saves time—saves clothes.

In addition, new High-Test Oxydol is wonderfully economical. For, besides giving more suds, a single cup of it goes as much as one-fourth again as far—does up to 25% more work than the same amount of old-style package soaps.

Get A Package Today

So, no matter what laundry soap you've used in the past—get acquainted with this amazing new soap creation today! See your white clothes wash far whiter and sweeter than you ever dreamed of getting them with less modern soaps.

New High-Test OXYDOL is now on sale at all dealers in the same familiar orange and blue bull's-eye package. Ask for it today. Procter & Gamble.

MORE SUDS MEANS BETTER DISHWASHING, TOO!

NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL is far easier on clothes—for it soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes, without ruinous hard rubbing or scrubbing. Thus clothes last 2 to 3 times as long from the standpoint of washday wear and tear, compared to old-fashioned washing methods.

'Blossom Time' to Open Tonight for Three Week Revival

Miss Lansing and Marshall to Head Cast

By Cecil Smith.

"Blossom Time," one of the last pre-war distillations of Viennese sentiment and pathos, comes back to the Grand Opera house for a three week revival beginning tonight. At the head of the cast, in the rôle of the composer Franz Schubert, stands the name of Everett Marshall, onetime baritone of the Metropolitan Opera association and more recently a star greatly sought after for singing parts in musical comedies and revues. The prima donna is Charlotte Lansing, starred in past years in "The New Moon" and "The Desert Song."

The story of "Blossom Time," suggested by Schubert's short life and brilliant lyric gifts, is a compound of romanticized fact and outright invention. Going on the assumption that Schubert was a frustrated genius predestined to die in poverty because a stupid world could not understand the value of his music, the libretto of "Blossom Time" endows him with a beloved object named Mitzi, and induces him to pour out his sublimated emotions in music when his best friend, Baron von Schober, walks away with the girl.

No such girl ever existed, to be sure. But the tearfully touching libretto was evolved not in order to educate the public in the accurate data of Schubert's life, but rather to provide a convenient framework upon which to hang a considerable number of Schubert's most popular melodies. Among the favorite tunes included in the score are the "Serenade," "Hark! Hark! the Lark," "Ave Maria," and Sigmund Romberg's waltzed-up version of the second theme of the first movement of the Unfinished symphony, known in the operetta as the "Song of Love." The incidental score and the song arrangements are the work of Sigmund Romberg, one of America's most active craftsmen in the field of musical comedy.

"Blossom Time" has been a perennial smash hit in the musical theater ever since its first Vienna production in 1914. The initial London engagement lasted more than three years. Upon its first presentation in New York one company could not satisfy the demand for seats, and a second company was formed to run concurrently with the original one—a record never equaled by any subsequent musical comedy.

The old Apollo theater, now known as the United Artists, housed "Blossom Time" in Chicago when it opened here on March 14, 1923. The present engagement is the ninth in Chicago. Here is the historical record of "Blossom Time" in Chicago:

In 1923, for thirteen weeks, Apollo and Great Northern theaters—Bertram Peacock, Laurel Nemeth [later replaced by Edith Thayer], Howard Marsh, Zoe Barnett, William Danforth, Ann Milburn, Marion Barton.

The latest addition to Chicago's calendar of future plays is "On Borrowed Time," opening at the Grand Opera house Tuesday evening, Nov. 8. Dudley Digges, who created the rôle of Gramps in New York, heads the cast. The entire New York personnel and production will be brought without change. The play is a dramatization by Paul Osborn of a novel by Lawrence Edward Watkin, which tells the fable of the love of a grandfather for his little grandson. The old man keeps the child from being taken away by an ugly, unpleasant aunt by getting Death up a tree and keeping him there. Others in the cast are Frank Conroy, Tommy Lewis, and John Sheffield, who alternate in the rôle of the five year old grandson, Jean Adair and Frances Bavier. Dwight Deere Wiman is the producer and Joshua Logan the director. Jo Mielziner designed the settings.

Claire Luce, Guy Robertson, and Edward Andrews play leading parts in "Of Mice and Men," New York Drama Critics' Circle prize play which comes to the Selwyn theater Oct 24 as the second item of the American Theater society subscription series. Miss Luce has not previously been seen upon the Chicago stage. Several years before her success of last season in the New York cast of "Of Mice and Men," she appeared as Fred Astaire's vis-à-vis in the Cole Porter musical comedy, "Gay Divorce." Guy Robertson has heretofore graced the Chicago stage only in singing rôles, including the romantic leads in "The Great Waltz" and "All the King's Horses." Edward Andrews was Broderick Crawford's understudy in the New York production of "Of Mice and Men."

Charles De Sheim, director of past Chicago Repertory group productions, including "Waiting for Lefty," "The Young Go First," and "The Black Pit," is in charge of "The Cradle Will Rock," Marc Blitzstein's opera, which receives its première Friday evening at the Repertory theater, 29 East Balbo street. Associated with him as musical director is Gerhart Schild, who served as stage director of Carl Bricken's production of Weinberger's opera "Schwanda the Bagpipe Player" at the University of Chicago in 1936. Performances of "The Cradle Will Rock" are scheduled for every Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evening until mid-December.

IN HARRIS COMEDY

Cabaret Notes

● For years Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey have been wowing the movie audiences. . . . Friday night, following a week at the Palace, Wheeler opened a new show at the Hi-Hat club. . . . Frank Todd is working with him. . . . So are Francis Maloy, singer, and June Glory, dancer.

● A models' preview was being held in the Blue Fountain room at the La Salle hotel the other night. . . . The Biltmore Boys were playing "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody." . . . Betty Smith, 19, brunette, and weighing in at 100 pounds, stepped on to the floor. . . . Lou Irwin, talent scout for R. K. O., saw her. . . . Now she has a six months' film contract.

● Featured at the Palace theater last week were the Stroud twins and Dolly Kay. . . . Both acts got their start—or at least first began to attract big time attention—in Chicago. . . . Dolly Kay was at the Royale Frolics, on the near south side, for three seasons. . . . Now she's coming to be known as America's bluest blues singer. . . . The Strouds left the same nitery for radio work, and it was not long before the nation was hearing them on the Charlie McCarthy program. . . . Two years ago Sid Tomack and the Reis brothers combined their comedy talents and made their debut at the Frolics. . . . They stayed there two years. . . . Word from London has it that the trio has been playing to capacity crowds at Ciro's and smashing attendance records elsewhere in the old world.

Current Music News

Two artists familiar to radio listeners of W-G-N appear in the Medinah club at the Beaux Arts salon today at 4:30. Dorothy Foster, staf pianist of the radio station, winner of numerous scholarships and of the Society of American Musicians contest in 1933, shares the program with Bernice Rickman, frequent soprano soloist with the Northerners. Miss Foster features the "farewell" sonata of Beethoven along with pieces by Chopin, Radie Britain, and Liszt; Miss Rickman offers a group of folk songs, Micaela's air from "Carmen," and an English group.

At 3:30 this afternoon Frank Teurfs, Chicago baritone, returns after five years' study in the east to present a recital in the Studebaker theater. Listed are the monolog from Giordano's "Andrea Chenier"; classic arias by Giordani, Handel, and Gluck; lieder by Schubert, Loewe, and Kaun; and numbers by contemporary composers. Harry T. Carlson is the accompanist.

Under the auspices of the Art institute members' dance series, Katherine Dunham and her Negro dance group will appear on Oct. 27, 28, and 29 at the Goodman theater. The feature of the programs will be a new composition, "Invitation to the Dance," to the poetry of Mark Turbyfill and the music of Harold Marshman.

In the midst of their second American tour, the Dana ensemble of Poland makes its Chicago appearance today in Orchestra hall at 3. With this vocal quintet will be Hanka Brzezinska, soprano, and winner of a nation-wide radio contest in Poland.

The Chicago dance council opens its season with a tea in honor of Lincoln Kirstein and the Ballet Caravan at the Auditorium hotel this afternoon.

Vaudeville

The Chicago theater is holding over for a second week both its stage and film shows, the latter being "You Can't Take It With You." The stage show features Louise Massey and the Westerners, radio troupe; Maurice and Betty Whalen, dance team; Jean Florian, novelty act; Wayne Van Dyne, and Adrian and his orchestra.

The popular Chester Hale Girls, dance troupe, make their fourth return engagement this year at the Palace theater, heading a stage bill containing Sibyl Bowan, comedienne; Ross Wyse Jr. and June Mann, comedy and dancing duo, and Gaston Palmer, juggler. Deanna Durbin, Melvyn Douglas, and Jackie Cooper appear on the screen in "That Certain Age."

At the State-Lake theater Bobby McLean, champion ice skater, demonstrates his ability in a Sun Valley ice carnival. He is assisted by Ed Kelly and an ice skating ballet, the Three O'Connors, the Monroe and Adams sisters, Vic Hide, and Verne Buck and the State-Lake Sweethearts. "The Chaser," with Dennis O'Keefe, Ann Morris, and Lewis Stone, is the screen attraction.

Season Brings Kaufman-Hart Nostalgic Play

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The first of the new season's plays of greater promise came in this week. This would be Moss Hart's and George Kaufman's "The Fabulous Invalid," which is a romantic theatrical cavalcade of the twentieth century theater, studded with historical items and a little weighted, I fear, with the very nostalgia that it inspires.

There are two publics supporting the theater. One is that larger and older public that dates its early playgoing as far back as the 1890s and came to love the theater in the theater's golden seasons.

The other is a smaller but growing public that has come into the theater within the last twenty years, and been a little bewildered by its changing complexities; a play-conscious rather than a theater-conscious public that, like Max Beerbohm, doesn't care more than a hoot for "the" theater and is only interested in "a" theater when it is able to buy emotional satisfactions in that theater.

"The Fabulous Invalid," built on the theme that the theater that is about to die is always ready to salute you, follows the career of the Alexandria, a proud old Broadway playhouse that was dedicated shortly after the turn of the century with pomp and ceremony.

On that night its lovely leading woman [Doris Dalton] died in the midst of her great happiness of a heart attack. Her youthful and devoted husband and leading man [Stephen Courtleigh] killed himself in his grief.

Next scene these two appear as restless ghosts haunting the halls of the old theater. There they meet the ghost of the old stage doorman [Jack Norworth] and learn from him that while all actors may go to heaven if they like, most of them, like himself, prefer to hang around the theater.

Thereafter the friendly ghosts follow the fortunes of the Alexandria and its unhappy management through a series of declines and catastrophes that bring it finally into the cheaper movie house class and then to a season of Minsky burlesque and strip tease and finally to the fate of an abandoned ruin, its once proud entrance boarded up and plastered with decaying playbills.

Then, for a sentimental and eloquent finish, a troupe of new drama enthusiasts march in upon the old stage and hold their first meeting. "Here it is," their leader tells them. "It isn't much to look at, but it is a theater and it is ours. This is our stage. That is our auditorium. And here is our play."

As he turns to the manuscript the young folk lean forward, their faces flushed, their eyes shining, their bodies tense. And as he begins to read those words that have spelled magic to theaterlovers for many generations, "Act I, Scene I," the curtain falls.

The production is elaborate. There are bits from some thirty old time musical comedy and dramatic hits performed as the theatrical cavalcade moves forward. The cast is huge and contains many remembered names.

In addition to Miss Dalton, Mr. Courtleigh, and Mr. Norworth, there are Richard Gordon, playing the theater manager; Ernest Lawford, who is the shade of Shakespeare; Solly Ward, Sidney Grant, Elsa Ersi, Philip Truex, Grace Valentine, Bobbe Arnst, Walter Beck, and literally dozens of others.

Her majesty, Queen Helen, is in residence at the Martin Beck for a little while. It was here she started with "Victoria Regina" as far back as December, 1935. Since then she has toured and reconquered her empire. Some say she is today unquestionably America's greatest actress. Whether the greatest or not, and that would depend upon individual analyses of just what constitutes greatness in the theater, she could match popularity with any of her professional sisters and be pretty sure of winning.

Miss Hayes' company has been changed in some of its lesser parts and her own performance has expanded and matured since last she played here. There is a new Prince Albert named Werner Bateman, who succeeds Vincent Price, the tall young St. Louis lad who was discovered in England and accepted as a heaven sent find for the part. Mr. Bateman, already known to the west, is a more experienced player than was young Price, but there is little to choose between their performances, so alike are they in temperament and physical type.

We had seen Abraham Sofaer as Disraeli and Charles Frances as Melbourne before the tour was started. We welcomed Eva Leonard-Boyne as a new duchess of Sutherland and Izetta Jewel as a chief lady in waiting, vice Helen Trenholm, resigned.

But it is still mostly Miss Hayes' performance that gives sentimental value and appealing charm to the play. Picking up the doughty little queen on the morning of her ascension, she carries her to the day of her jubilee with great personal success. It is a characterization worked out in affectionate detail, always tender, as true as need be, and always human and warming. Helen Hayes' Victoria is, I think, one of the major achievements of our time in stage portraiture.

There was a time, a few years back, when Chester Erskin's friends were saying that one day he would take the American drama and remold it, greatly to its improvement. He was, as a young director, a flashing sort, pulsing with enthusiasm and stuffed with ideas. Thus did Mr. Erskin's friends do him a great disservice. Never since that time has he done a thing that could remotely be considered a fulfillment of the promises made in his name. And yet he still is a young man of promise.

This week Mr. Erskin came forward as both author and director of a new play called "The Good," a tragic story set in an upstate New York town that misses being an interesting and worthwhile drama largely because the author has overwritten it.

It is the story of a woman so good [by the book] that she ruins the lives of many of those with whom she comes in contact. The daughter of a similarly overzealous preacher, she marries to please her father and forever after resents her life with her husband. Her son, born into an atmosphere of hate and distrust, seeks release in the abnormal friendship of a gentleman choir leader. Her husband learns to dance the rhumba with an attractive housemaid, whom he sets up in an Albany apartment. A young boy who has "borrowed" $17 from a school fund expecting honestly to pay it back is branded as a thief when he is brought before this good woman in her capacity as head of the school board, and kills himself as the result of his disgrace.

The tragedy of her own life is pretty complete at the play's close, but nobody cares much. So there is little interest in "The Good." Too bad. Frances Starr does her best for the lady.

All Fall Revues Get Under Way at Night Clubs

All the fall revues are under way. . . . Following the Buddy Rogers opening at the College Inn last Saturday night and the Hal Kemp opening at the Gold Coast room last Sunday night, Bernie Masters moved into the Walnut room Wednesday night, and Hildegarde did the same thing at the Colony club.

● For the time being, Mary Pickford's handsome husband has his baton arm tucked in a sling. . . . But Southpaw Buddy is still pitching them over the plate. . . . Hal Kemp hails from North Carolina, but he and his team are threatening to grab off the championship of the Big Ten. . . . The collegians who storm the Drake to hear him are trying to crowd off the floor any one who admits having outgrown the adolescent age.

● With Bernie Cummins at the Bismarck hotel are his brother, Walter, and Connie Barleau, who vocalize like a couple of canaries. . . . Manno and Strafford headline the dancing routines. . . . Hildegarde, who manages to make her way through life with only one name, is attracting the ultra trade to the ultramodern Colony. . . . She comes here after having captured the honor of clown princess of song in London, but her manner doesn't show it. . . . She still has her midwestern impishness.

● Other newcomers in Chicago: The Three Bonos joined the Rogers show at the Hotel Sherman last night. . . . They are European zanies who make "risibility high," and they came here from Roxy's theater in New York. . . . Sally O'Day, toddle dancer, and Ann Suter, singing comedienne, are additions at Harry's New York cabaret. . . . Dick Stabile and his orchestra, along with a new floor show, are opening the formal season in the Edgewater Beach hotel's Marine dining room. . . . Buss Canfield's band has started up at the Château, and Louis Panico's at the Park Casino. . . . The 5100 club is having a weekly change of principals and dancing lines, with Eddie Cole's gang doing the swinging.

● Harry Richman is usually regarded as the country's leading salesman of popular songs. . . . Before the radio came along and started introducing songs simultaneously all over the land, it was the custom of Ziegfeld, George White, and other Broadway producers to insist that Richman "plug" their numbers in whatever show he was appearing. . . . This always created a national demand for those numbers. . . . But the current star at the Chez Paree also is a writer of many hit tunes, among them "Singing a Vagabond Song," "There's Danger in Your Eyes, Cherie," "Moonlight Saving Time," "C'est Vous," and "Walking My Baby Back Home." . . . Several of these have ranked right up at the front in volume of sales.

● Last February Hal Kemp's entertainers were smashed up in a train wreck. . . . Maxine Gray, warbler, came out of it with four fractured vetebrae. . . . Judy Starr took her place. . . . Last Wednesday Judy was taken to Passavant hospital for an operation. . . . Whereupon Maxine was rushed here from the Pacific coast, and Thursday night she took her old place in front of the microphone.

Vast Number of Details Are Cause of Woe

By Edward Barry.

Grand opera is the greatest headache in the world. Not for the listener—although many patient husbands will demand that the statement stand without qualification—but for the general director who is ultimately responsible for the success or failure of the season.

Opera is a headache because of the vast number of details which must be worked out and because of the many factors—some of them uncontrolable—which enter into the final result. A man who would undertake to run two wars or to rule three empires might find that the number of things with which he has to cope puts him on terms of equality—in the frequency and severity of his headaches—with an opera director. No other mortal can claim any such position.

The headaches begin long before the start of the season. A repertoire must be selected, and into this apparently simple task enter a dozen or more considerations of which the outsider never dreams. The balance of languages, for example, is important, for Italian, French, and German opera has each its fanatical following. There must be some novelties and revivals or the company's prestige will be lessened. The distinction between public domain works [which may be performed free] and works on which the copyright is still good [for which a fee is necessary] must be kept carefully in mind. And one of the director's eyes must remain fastened through all this process on the list of available artists.

It is when he shifts all of his attention to this list of artists and starts to work on the job of casting his operas that the headache shows signs of turning into nervous indigestion. Now the number of factors is multiplied almost to infinity. The manager must take care to use up the performances which he has contracted for with his staf singers, but must be sure that each cast boasts a celebrity or two as lures for the public. There must not be too many stars, or a single performance will bankrupt the company.

Vocal suitability is considered — then physical. The days are forever gone when the public would put up with a love duo by principals whose weights added up to a quarter of a ton.

Then comes the making of the schedule. Each set of subscribers must be given a fair selection of operas, varied as to type and language and with no repetitions. More important still, the stars must be equally distributed. Woe to the manager who gives the Friday subscribers a Flagstad and a Martinelli evening and who leaves the Wednesday group without a sight of either of these luminaries!

But this is only the beginning of the difficulties which the making of a schedule is likely to cause. Conflicting engagements on the part of guest artists will have the director in a frenzy long before his task is completed. Madame A cannot come until the 15th of the month, Signor B must be a thousand miles away by the 20th. Therefore the performance which is to use both of them must be fitted in somewhere with the nicest precision. And of course the subscribers on evenings other than that selected for Madame A and Signor B have to be given something equally bright as consolation.

Remember that this problem comes up not once but dozens of times. Add to each repetition of it various other complications of repertoire, cast and schedule, and you have in convincing form the reason why managers would be justified in running off somewhere to take the cure even before the first curtain of their season rises.

The various other complications here referred to may include the difficulty of assuring artists the proper rest periods between performances and of making certain that the right conductor is available for a date which on all other counts is perfectly satisfactory. Then, too, there is the desirability of retaining a certain amount of variety in any given week. A visitor who comes to town for a few days wild with the desire to see Italian operas must not be confronted with a French and German list, even though the exigencies of the schedule may occasionally make it convenient to perform several non-Italian works close together.

Another possible, or rather probable, source of trouble is the rehersal schedule. Practice must not interfere too much with the singer's necessary rest periods between operas; neither may it use orchestral musicians for so many hours that they go stale when performance time comes or earn so much overtime money that the opera company can hardly meet the bill. Rehersal difficulties must be kept in mind while the schedule is being made. Otherwise there is certain to be trouble as soon as the season actually starts.

When the schedule is as nearly complete as possible, with casts and conductors filled in and the interests of all subscribers safeguarded, various minor details begin clamoring for attention. The ballet must have a fairly good idea of what the season is to hold, for rehersals on new routines should begin early. It is the director's responsibility — and often his actual duty—to coach the ballet master in a work which he [the ballet master] has never seen. Otherwise the choreography which the ballet will use for the novelty may be grotesquely at variance with the general character of the opera.

Subscription sellers, the advertising department, the publicity men, the libretto sellers—all of these must have a good part of the schedule in hand well before performances start.

This is the merest sample of the manager's pre-season headaches. It omits, for instance, the conferences with the technical departments which are necessary if the feasibility of certain effects is to be established. But enough is enough, and we shall pass on next Sunday to an inquiry as to how it all works out when the season actually begins.

OPENS PIANO SERIES

Guiomar Novaes, one of the world's foremost woman pianists, will play the first recital in the Musical Arts piano series at Orchestra hall Tuesday evening.

Notes of Music and Musicians

To open its third Musical Arts piano series at Orchestra hall on Tuesday the Adult Education council is bringing back the celebrated Brazilian pianist, Guiomar Novaes. Mme. Novaes was the second of the ten pianists to appear under the council's auspices in the last two years and is the first to play a return engagement. The occasion marks her only Chicago appearance and her first on the North American continent for the 1938-'39 season. Prof. Hans Rosenwald will give a twenty minute discourse on the music to be heard at 7:50 in the main auditorium. The program, beginning at 8:15, follows:

La tendre Nanette....................Couperin
L'Hirondelle....................Daquin
Sonata....................Scarlatti
Fantasia con fuga in D major....................Bach
Sonata in F minor....................Brahms
Scherzo, from "Midsummer Night's Dream"....................Mendelssohn-Ritter
Il neige....................H. Oswald
The Miller's Dance, from "The Three Cornered Hat"....................de Falla

The remaining five participants in the Musical Arts piano series are Harold Bauer, Nov. 1; Simon Barer, Dec. 6; Ida Krehm, Jan. 3; Serge Prokofieff, Feb. 7, and Robert Casadesus, March 7.

Characteristically, the Illinois Symphony orchestra opens another year of Sunday afternoon concerts with a program containing two Chicago novelties. The first is a Concerto Grosso for string orchestra with piano obbligato, written in 1936 by the American composer and conductor, Albert Stoessel. The other is a suite drawn from the ballet "The Golden Age," by the young Russian, Dmitri Shostakovich. Opening the concert at 3 at the Great Northern theater Izler Solomon will conduct the overture, "Comes Autumn Time," by Chicago's own Leo Sowerby. Moskowski's brilliant piano concerto in E major, played by Elsie Alexander, completes the program.

Known to Chicagoans for performances with the Chicago City Opera company and for local recitals, Jean Fardulli, Greek baritone, presents a program of eight arias at the Civic theater on Wednesday night at 8:30. Operas by Verdi, Leoncavallo, Donizetti, Giordano, Thomas, Massenet, and Carreri are the sources of the music, while Leo Kopp will play compositions by Chopin and Dohnányi as well as accompany Mr. Fardulli.

The first of fourteen Saturday night "Pop" concerts will be played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra at the end of this week in Orchestra hall. In charge of the orchestra will be its regular conductor, Frederick Stock. "Popular" prices prevail at these concerts which begin at 8:15. The program:

March of Homage....................Wagner
Symphony No. 4, F minor....................Tschaikowsky
Ballet Suite, from "Henry VIII."....................Saint-Saëns
Three Dances, from music to "Henry VIII."....................German Bacchanale and Finale, from overture to "Tannhäuser"....................Wagner

"Tosca," "Lucia," and an English "Martha" enter the San Carlo Opera company's répertoire for the season in this, their third and final week. John Pane-Gasser, Chicago tenor, who replaced Aroldo Lindi in the performance of "Il Trovatore," last Sunday, is slated for the same opera a week away. In the event that Mr. Lindi continues to be incapacitated by laryngeal trouble Mr. Pane-Gasser will be ready to step into his rôles also. The list of operas at the Auditorium for this week is as follows:

Wednesday evening—Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," with Hizi Koyke, Bruno, Browning, Onofrei, and Valle.

Thursday evening—Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Lucille Meusel, Bruno, Gerard, Thomas, and Kravitt.

Saturday afternoon—Flotow's "Martha" [in English], with Meusel, Bruno, Gerard, and Kozakevich; followed by ballet divertissements.

Saturday evening—Verdi's "Aida," with Norina Greco, Lyuba Senderowna, Bruno, Lindi, Thomas, Kravitt, and corps de ballet.

For its final performance next Sunday night Verdi's "Il Trovatore" will be the bill, with Saroya, Senderowna, Browning, John Pane-Gasser, Thomas, and Kravitt in the cast. Carlo Peroni will conduct this as well as all other performances, and Lydia Arlova and Lucien Prideaux continue to head the corps de ballet.

Ballet Caravan Makes Bow to Chicago Today

By Cecil Smith.

An enterprising, youthful dance organization known as the Ballet Caravan makes a delayed Chicago bow at the Civic theater this afternoon. They were scheduled to visit us a year ago, but their tour was canceled at the last moment.

The director and guiding spirit of the Ballet Caravan is a young dance enthusiast, well known and widely admired for his aggressive interest in the development of American dancing, by the name of Lincoln Kerstein. The present group was largely his idea. Back in the summer of 1936 he thought it would be both a good and a workable plan to bring together a relatively small group—twenty dancers in all—and to cart them around the country into all sorts of small towns, college campuses, and out of the way spots where a big group like the Ballet Russe would be financially cut of the question.

From the beginning Mr. Kerstein and his associates had the rare good sense to refrain from trying to make the Ballet Caravan merely a pale imitation of larger and wealthier ballet companies. The répertoire is new and is the sole property of the group. Young American composers, such as Virgil Thomson, Paul Frederic Bowles, Elliott Carter Jr., and Robert McBride, were commissioned to write some of the music, and other scores were discovered in works by Mozart, Scarlatti, Chabrier, and Ravel which other choreographers had not put to use.

The subject matter of the individual ballets is chiefly made of American stuff. "Yankee Clipper" [music by Paul Frederic Bowles; choreography by Eugene Loring] derives its character from the historic period of the clipper ships, familiar to readers of Melville's "Moby Dick" and Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast." "Filling Station" [music by Virgil Thomson; choreography by Lew Christensen] is called a ballet-document, and tells in dance form the story of an exciting day in the life of a mechanic. "Pocahontas" [music by Elliott Carter Jr.; choreography by Lew Christensen] draws on early American colonial legend, introducing Indians into a choreographic scheme wholly devoid of all attempt at "Indian" dancing.

Some of the other pieces in the Ballet Caravan répertoire are less consciously national. "Show Piece" [music by Robert McBride; choreography by Erick Hawkins] is designed to show the virtuosity of the individual dancers. The music of Ravel's "Valses Nobles et Sentimentales" is used for "Promenade," in which William Dollar has made capital of the history of the waltz in the salons of Europe.

The first dancers of the present Ballet Caravan are all Americans, despite the foreign sound of some of the names—Giselle Caccilanza, Marie Jeanne, Lew Christensen, and Eugene Loring. Four prominent American artists have designed decors—Paul Cadmus, Keith Martin, Charles Rain, and Karl Free.

A brand new ballet based on the life of the notorious Billy the Kid, with music by Aaron Copland, is a feature of the specific program to be danced in the Civic theater today. Other ballets listed for today's debut appearance are "Air and Variations," a classic ballet danced to Bach's "Goldberg Variations," and the above mentioned "Filling Station."

Any composer who writes as many as fifteen symphonies is a creature out of the ordinary. Mozart and Haydn, to be sure, wrote many more, but many of their early symphonies were no more than brief chamber works, and even their greatest symphonic works are considerably shorter and terser than nineteenth and twentieth century compositions in the same form. Beethoven wrote eleven [if we count two forgotten early works]; Brahms wrote four; Sibelius has completed seven; and even the industrious Bruckner did not finish his ninth symphony.

And here comes Nicolas Miaskowsky with his fifteenth, quite finished and ready for performance by Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Orchestra hall Thursday and Friday—and he is not a year older than Beethoven was when he died. No other prominent composer since classical times has completed as many orchestral works in symphonic form.

Although he was 36 at the time of the Russian revolution of 1917, Miaskowsky did not achieve world prominence until post-revolutionary years. Since 1921 he has served on the staf of the Moscow Conservatory of Music, teaching theory and quietly composing one symphony after another, with occasional excursions into the realms of program and chamber music.

Dr. Stock has been Miaskowsky's most active protagonist on this side of the Atlantic. Since he first introduced the Fifth symphony to Orchestra hall audiences thirteen years ago, he has conducted no fewer than six later Miaskowsky symphonies, several of them for the first time in America. We have heard the Fifth symphony, in D major; the Sixth, in E-flat minor; the Seventh, in F major; the Eighth, in A major; and the Tenth, Twelfth, and Thirteenth, listed without key indications. The Sixth symphony has been played in seven seasons out of the past twelve.

As we have seen its evolution through this remarkably comprehensive survey of his scores, Miaskowsky's style has grown from an elaborate, somewhat overwrought romanticism into a pithy, almost noncommittal concentration and thinness. The Thirteenth symphony, introduced here four years ago, consisted of only a single movement, and was so boiled down that it seemed at the time to come dangerously near having nothing to say. It will be decidedly interesting to see which way Miaskowsky has turned since that time, for it is obvious that he could not go much farther in the direction of simplifying his music without having any notes left to put down on score paper. Dr. Stock is leaving the evaluation of the new symphony to his audience, contenting himself with remarking: "A man who writes fifteen symphonies must be either the world's greatest genius or a colossal egotist."

Another novelty of wholly different stripe has also been promised for the orchestra's Thursday-Friday subscription concerts. Johann Christian Bach, the one of Johann Sebastian Bach's sons who spent the major part of his career in London, will be represented in the orchestra's répertoire for the first time by an undesignated Sinfonia.

The complete program follows:

Sinfonia....................Johann Christian Bach
[First time in Chicago.]
Symphony No. 15....................Miaskowsky
[First time in America.]
Symphony No. 2, D major....................Brahms

Musical Due

Mme. Eliza Jumel, fabled creature of post-revolutionary New York, has become the subject of a play, "Great Lady," by Earle Crooker and Lowell Brentano, with music by Fritz Loewe. Norma Terris will impersonate this strange woman, who "dabbled in international affairs in a haphazard manner; married Aaron Burr on the death of her wine merchant husband, only to leave him a short time later; surrounded herself with a private army, drilling it as colonel in chief with the avowed intention of helping Napoleon to escape from Elba." Miss Terris' associates in the cast of this musical, due on Broadway in November, are Tullio Carminati, Irene Bordoni, Helen Ford, Joseph Macaulay, and Shepperd Strudwick.

Urges General Courses to Aid Future Doctor

By the Rev. John Evans.

As to what is expected of the future physician, Dr. Fred C. Zapffe, executive secretary of the Association of American Medical Colleges, 5 South Wabash avenue, asks two pointed questions in a paper prepared for his association: Is it the possession of factual knowledge or the ability to make good use of his knowledge? As a corollary to the latter query he also asks, "Is this ability to make use of knowledge dependent on a natural aptitude or on a good general education which has shaped the student's mentality rather than crammed his powers of memory to the saturation point?"

Dr. Zapffe, whose paper was first discussed in this column last week, asserts that studies made to determine answers to these questions show that regardless of what college courses the student may have had, if he has not learned to think, reason, and collate what he knows he lacks the essential needed for a successful practitioner in medicine; and that an "educated man in every sense of the word" is he who is able to make use of what he has learned, not one merely able to repeat in parrot fashion what memory has stored; briefly, he has acquired an education, not a training.

"No one will affirm that science is not educative," Mr. Zapffe says, "but our scientists all became scientists after they had acquired a good foundation of general education. Most of them are scholars of the classics, of the humanities, as well as real scientists. But, after they become good scientists and engage in teaching youth, they are apt to forget the path they themselves trod and expect youth to begin with pure science rather than with a fundamental education. But to acquire an education, professional or nonprofessional, one cannot afford to spend a lifetime in college. Therefore, there is need for careful culling of courses to determine what is fundamental, and what must be secured by later study over a period of years."

Dr. Zapffe points out that since every field of endeavor demands more and more preparation in shorter time, teachers must so lay out their courses that the available teaching time may cope capably with the extensive, and constantly increasing, store of knowledge. Also they should bear in mind that while it is impossible to make a specialist in any field in four years at college—just as it is impossible to make a good physician in four years at medical school—that it is possible, in either instance, to lay a foundation permitting of a well directed further study which may later lead to a high degree of perfection.

"What courses are the groundwork of a good general education, one which can be put to good use no matter what the student may decide later?" This is the next question considered by Dr. Zapffe, and the answer confronts an array of "precourses!"

"Nearly every arts college," continues Dr. Zapffe, "makes a supreme effort to call attention to its many varieties of 'pre-courses' included in its offerings. We find pre-medical, pre-law, pre-dental, pre-music, and pre-engineering. At a meeting of educators held recently an engineering teacher proposed even that vocational training should start with the high school. What a lot of 'educational robots' that course would produce. Every man would know much [or little?] of one subject and nothing of anything else. No need for general education in this scheme of things! Culture would be forgotten entirely. No need for the humanities, for the classics, or for literature! I am convinced that vocationalizing in education has done far more harm than good. It is, in education, the so-called 'moving belt.'"

Medical educators, according to Dr. Zapffe, have gone on record as being opposed to "pre-medical" education in any form. They do not even like the term, which was coined not by them, but by the colleges. The reason for their dislike being that the term "pre-medical" savors of restriction, of stunting the intellect in every direction but one.

"It makes it seem that medicine is not all inclusive," argues Dr. Zapffe, "that it only demands knowledge in a narrow, restricted field; that it is not real education, but only a passing track of education; it implies that one can be a good physician and not know much of anything except medicine."

Dr. Zapffe's opinion is that the only "pre-medical" advice to be given to the student who intends to study medicine is that he secure a good education which should include the minimum requirements for admission to the medical school of his choice.

[What these "minimum requirements" should be, and how they should be taught, will be considered next week.]

Hanover Festival

An annual summer festival, to be held at Hanover, Mass., has been started by Dartmouth college in collaboration with the Dramatists Guild of New York. The building to house the project, will be an auditorium seating 2,700 and convertible into a theater available for smaller audiences, while the facilities of the college will be at the festival's disposal. Robert E. Sherwood, famous playwright and head of the Dramatists guild, expects leading actors, scene designers and managers to coöperate in the enterprise.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

A young girl's "crush" on a man many years her senior furnishes the motif for Deanna Durbin's new starring venture.

It's a nice little number, combining sense, nonsense, and music into an attractive blend. . . . By no means a "musical," it still presents Universal's bebby song bird with opportunity aplenty for the warbling we all like to hear from her and furnishes a fine supporting cast with intriguing rôles. Finely sympathetic direction was contributed by Mr. Ludwig and the piece is attractively staged and brightly dialogued. [Note at the top of the column who wrote the story!]

One never knows which way the wind or an adolescent will blow next. . . . In the case of 15 year old Alice Fullerton it comes as a flabbergasting shock to her boy friend Ken, her unsuspecting parents, AND Vincent Bullitt, the aforementioned oblivious crushee, to discover that Alice has gone completely gaga over the last named.

She has confided her secret only to her diary. But Ken's small sister, a little pitcher with big ears and busy hands—a little pitcher who can READ!—sees to it that Ken doesn't go about in the darkness of ignorance. . . . He's about to dash off and join the navy, but not before he has spoken a few well chosen words to the supposed interloper, Bullitt. . . . When Vincent and Father and Mother Fullerton learn what's going on in the mind of the flower of the household—well—you just see the movie for what happens!

While the story lacks the originality of "100 Men and a Girl," it has the charming flavor of whimsy. Miss Durbin gives a delightful interpretation of Alice and sings several numbers exquisitely. Melvyn Douglas handles his scenes with sense and humor. Jackie Cooper is swell as the bewildered, heartsore, but ever lovin' Ken. And how nice to see Irene Rich and Nancy Carroll again!

All in all, "That Certain Age" is a movie that will be enjoyed by folks of practically every age.

See you tomorrow.

Worcester Fete

The seventy-nine year old Worcester Musical festival held recently at Worcester, Mass., presented six programs, at each of which the Worcester Festival orchestra appeared under the direction of Albert Stoessel. Choral works presented were Brahms' "Requiem," Rachmaninoff's "The Bells," Vaughan Williams' "Toward the Unknown Region," and R. Nathaniel Dett's "The Ordering of Moses." Vocalists for the choral works were Agatha Lewis, Agnes Davis, and Maxine Stellman, sopranos; Grace Leslis, contralto; William Hain, tenor, and Glenn Darwin and Donald Dickson, baritones. Bidu Sayao, Brazilian soprano, was the featured soloist on Artist's night; Albert Spalding, violinist, and Harold Bauer, pianist, played the Beethoven and Brahms' B Flat concertos on separate concerts. Besides an orchestral concert for young people, there was also a performance of Verdi's "Rigoletto," with Josephine Antoine, Lucille Browning, Charles Hackett, Donald Dickson, and John Gurney.

Chavez Album.

Soon to be released is an album of three recorded compositions by the Mexican, Carlos Chavez. Mr. Chavez conducts the Symphony orchestra of Mexico in these works, the "Indian Symphony," "Sinfonia di Antigona," and the transcription of the "Ciaconna," by Dietrich Buxtehude. Mr. Chavez will appear this season with several of the major eastern orchestras, playing his newly completed

Hurricane Adds Weird Thrill to Homeward Trip

By Cousin Eve.

On the whole, one wouldn't have missed the hurricane for anything. There is a theory that we live for experience, and to live through a hurricane aboard the Normandie on the far side of the Atlantic was something. When 160,000 horse power meets a gale going 150 miles an hour, it is war at sea.

Paris was a bit lugubrious the last days. Even the fact that the duke of Windsor had taken Mrs. Charles Cartwright's apartment, and would spend the winter there with his duchess, did not seem to add to the gayety of nations. Edward came to Paris and was seen about with a dispatch case under his arm, and the French lads in high society were all agitated about it. Why was the duke always carrying a dispatch case, and what was in it —certainly not papers? Mrs. Cartwright's apartment has a view of the Seine and is over Passy way. She is a New York woman; Beatrice Benjamin was her name as a debutante. When first I knew her, she was Mrs. Dallas Bache Pratt of New Rochelle, then later married Preston Gibson. Finally Charles Cartwright. At the present moment she has a house in London, this apartment in Paris, and Lloyd Osborne's old-fashioned frame villa at Cap d'Antibes.

Before signing a lease with Mrs. Cartwright, the duke of Windsor had a fancy for the lovely "hotel privé" belonging to Mme. Jacques Balsan in Paris. It was not to be a long lease, about seven months, and he wanted all the furniture carted away and the decor changed. And later he wrote saying that he would appreciate another couple of months thrown in gratis as a birthday present, inasmuch as his birthday came along just then. Mme. Balsan seems to have seen a great light. She wrote the duke that she would be unable to rent her Paris home because her son, the duke of Marlborough, wished to use it. And in regard to the royal birthday present, she wrote: "Your royal highness has my sincere good wishes for a most happy birthday."

The Normandie's fast boat trains left us at Havre and we sailed almost at once. Crossing to Southampton, many more passengers got on, and then we eased into Plymouth and took on great quantities of gold. It was dark dawn and speedy boats with no lights whatever came and went noiselessly. There were wires that a fleet of German "subs" had passed the Hook of Holland, making us all think and remember. But we went sailing safely out to sea and were enjoying ourselves no end when the hurricane appeared. Sitting upon the promenade deck, I suddenly discovered that waves were going over the top of the ship and that all but me had fled. Like the boy upon the burning deck. Only the Normandie's decks by this time were running rivers of water from waves which came crashing in. The stewards said ominously, "Wait till tomorrow." News came later that nobody was in the Grille Ritz and only ten in the lovely Lalique dining room that holds 500.

I am no Joseph Conrad to tell about a hurricane at sea. From what I heard afterwards in New York a tropical storm at sea is better than one on Long Island, for you can't have a tree land on you or find a yacht on the roof. As I lay in the chic little French bed listening to the groanings and moanings of all the metals that make the Normandie magnificent and glorious, and as we rose up on the back of mountainous seas and descended into the valleys of raging black waters, one was at least thankful not to be in a European war.

At intervals during that awful night one heard the shrieking of the furious wind. It whined, it whistled and it screamed, and finally, it piped with a certain rhythm that intrigued me. Then this crazy wind seemed to be singing a little tune and in the midst of crashings and of smashings I made out "Onward Christian Soldiers." This was a little too much, and when Henri Villars, ultra charming chief commissaire and social host of the ship, came to see how one was bearing up, one said that everything was simply wonderful. Everything. But would it be possible to move me where the hurricane didn't sing Sunday school hymns? It was. Then the sea calmed to a sheet of radiant blue satin. And were we glad?

The passengers on the Normandie are always more or less spectacular, they say, with lots of titles. Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Phipps and their girls, Audrey and Sonia, were aboard, the latter a cunning debbie who makes her debut this winter in New York. Mrs. Phipps was Gladys Mills, still in black for her brother, Ogden, who died in the spring. Harold C. Vanderbilt and his wife were among the bridge players daily and nightly in the smoke room. Mr. Vanderbilt was New York's most hardened bachelor and premier bridge player, when he married a Philadelphia spinster for her bridge, the saying goes. They also dare tc say at Palm Beach that Mrs. Vanderbilt plays better bridge than her husband, which one may believe or not. Other passengers were Mrs. Charles Chadwick and Gillian Hansard of Grasse, her young English guest, niece of the noted mural painter, Jan Juta; Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, and many Guggenheims; Edmond, Murry, Simon and their families. Diana Guest, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edge, Serge and Mme. de Koussevitsky [Boston symphony and all that], Paul Manship, eminent sculptor, and his abundant family; also Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Taylor; the Belgian ambassador at Washington, Comte Van der Straten-Ponthoz, Countess Beulah Wachtmeister, and Maj. and Mrs. Barclay Warburton. Lady Cruise, the Irwin Laughlins and Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Taft of Chicago were all the people I knew.

There was a vastly wealthy Czech aboard who with his family had owned all the coal mines in Sudetenland, and observing the way the wind was blowing, sold them out in March, placing the proceeds in safe holes and corners. He was a handsome, husky young man, and that he was running away from a call to the colors of Czechoslovakia was evident. Although, he said that some day soon he should return to Prague.

Last days at sea passed all too quickly, and between the gorgeous movie theater, all gold and crimson, and bridge with one's playmates, the nights were nothing at all. So we passed out of the gallant beautiful ship that had sailed us safely away from the threat of war, and overcome the terrors of the sea.

I was all set to make a visit at Southampton, Long Island, a place that I adore. In my mind's eye, I was already basking in the sun on the white sand of the beach, and now and then rushing into the breakers to wet my bathing suit. To be sure, my visions were somewhat marred by reading in the ship's newspaper that Westhampton had been wiped out in the storm. But calling up my hostess that night from New York, my beautiful castles in the sand, I found, were gone with the wind. There was no beach left to sit upon at Southampton—there were no trees, no fresh water, no heat, no light, no train service. Many people were houseless at this most fashionable of coast resorts. Mrs. P. A. Valentine, who is the great belle of Southampton's summer season, was marooned for ten hours in a small pavilion on her estate. My hostess had bought a house that week and it seemed to be tottering into the sea. "But," said the charming creature — "do come if you think you would enjoy it."

One entrained for Chicago, feeling somehow a wave of optimism about the winter. One felt that there were going to be lots of new and amusing things to do, see, and hear in old Chicago and that one would be so glad to be back. On the train, dinner with Mrs. Alfred Martin, the former Mabel Streator, who said gloomily, she had been through the hurricane. "Me, too," said I faintly, feeling definitly that my comfortable hurricane adventure on the Normandie was nothing to boast about, as against all of New England awash.

Mrs. Martin and her sister, Mrs. Phil Hamill, have an old stone house at Stonington, Conn., where life is calm, orderly. So figure their consternation when a streetful of houses landed on their lawn. Then a week of feeding the hungry and sheltering the destitute that was like war times and very pitiful, for many were dead cr lost in the storm.

Somehow coming home was extra cheerful and my sixth sense was telling me that it will be a gay winter in Chicago.

It took hours to read the wedding cards piled up. It seemed that every cne I knew had got married, or was about to. The first plum one pulled out of the mail was Northwestern's public lecture course for the winter, a galaxy of brilliant stars. Who wouldn't forsake any party to hear Alice Roosevelt hold forth on Nov. 2? Rumor says that she gets $2,000 for every lecture. Dorothy Thompson is another on this intellectual menu, with Prof. Phelps of Yale, Christopher Morley, Lord Strabolgi, Walter Hampden, and Andre Maurois. It sounds marvelous.

Yesterday the duchess of Atholl, member of parliament, brought the English Speaking union together for the first time at a Casino tea. She spoke yesterday also at the Council on Foreign Relations luncheon, and again was seen and heard at a Drake dinner to raise funds for the loyalist government in Spain. I stood next to the duchess at the royal jubilee garden party at Buckingham palace in 1935, and remember her to be a small woman and alert, with wisps of pepper and salt hair, nose glasses, and much earnestness.

Clifton Utley opened the foreign council luncheons with a talk on "Europe in Crisis," for which there were already three hundred and fifty reservations last June. It was my first sortie into the world and when the luncheon really got going, it looked like a mob scene in the movies. Many of my gay and charming friends had to eat out in the corridor. Laird Bell, the president, announced that the council has practically 3,000 members, and wants more. How they will be fed, he did not state, for the waiters can't circulate now in the crowd. Clifton Utley, tall athlete of the University of Chicago, spun a brilliant yarn of his summer holidays. He travels by motor, is a good linguist, and has the great gift of impartiality. One was quite dazzled by the utterances, for they make sense, and are not the ravings of a political partisan.

Across the heads of the crowd, which one could have walked upon, I suddenly saw Henry and Mrs. Field, home from their travels and settled in Delaware place. The bride has a sense of humor, is very pretty, and likes Chicago. Which was ever a passport to popularity among us. Also I attended another opening, that of the Arts club, in the Wrigley building, where its two floors look out upon our nice dark green Chicago river. Not expecting a vast company tea was served in the downstairs lounge, which was an agreeable change. Club servants poured out and served the tea English style, and the principal guest was Faggi, the sculptor who is working on the memorial to Mrs. Martin Ryerson. Mme. Archipenko, wife of another sculptor, was there. Seems they'll be here this year.

Of style excitements, Mrs. Goodspeed's plaid silk hat, perched on the very summit; Mrs. Charles Chadwick's tiny scoop filled with fuzzy little feathers of every pretty shade, like a basket of Easter eggs, and Mrs. Jacob Baur's winter suit lined with Chinese red fur, were tops.

From here the trail was blazed across to a cocktail rout at the Tavern club, in the celebrated sky parlor called "Love Through the Ages," the walls being muraled by club member artists with scenes and portraits of famous lovers.

Here, in the dusky twilight, Chicago's leading architects had forgathered with wives and friends to discuss the great forthcoming Architects' ball at the Drake Dec. 5. I saw on the way up that the club lounge has in my absence become quite divine. Somebody knocked out the north wall, which is now one wide glass window, overlooking the world. The floor and hangings are beige, very lovely.

Of plans for the Architects' ball, one heard nothing, except that costumes may be chosen from six new movie premières that happen late in November. The decor is to be giant photography. June Fairbank passed this on. John Root is chairman of the ball, and his aids are Andy Rebori, Nathaniel Owings, Walter Frazier, Alfred P. Shaw, George Senseney, Montgomery Orr, and a dozen more of our premier ball-givers.

This week, Tuesday afternoon and evening, St. Luke's fashion show. That it will be a perfect party, with the whole of our society taking part, is not mere prophecy. I lunched last week at Mrs. Jack Pitcher's with certain ladies of the board, who put me an courant with the plan, which has atmosphere. As to the special feature, it is in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Henry. Enough said—it will have charm and mayhaps music.

"What a splendid way for organizations to learn the 'ins and outs' of publicity!" A few tickets for the program Nov. 2 still may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Club Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Tickets will not be mailed out until shortly before the conference. A fuller account of the press conference appears in today's Metropolitan section.

Women Voters to Dissect the Current Issues

By Betty Browning.

What actual issues lie behind slogans or battle cries such as "Spending to Save" . . . "Playing Politics with Human Misery" . . . "Dictatorship"?

A campaign school to study the current political situation, with emphasis on the principles involved, will be sponsored by the Cook County League of Women Voters all day Saturday at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street.

"Democracy can be made to work only by working for it," Miss Marguerite M. Wells, national president of the League of Women Voters, recently declared. The school is to be held in response to her challenge.

To weigh intelligently the many issues before the country requires a more conscious understanding of American principles of government and American tradition than most citizens possess, league leaders contend. They are planning the program Saturday accordingly.

Augustus R. Hatton, professor of political science at Northwestern university, will address the morning session on "Issues and Slogans" at 10:30 o'clock. Judge William H. Holly of the federal court of the northern district of Illinois will discuss "What Is Democracy?" at the luncheon session at 12:30 o'clock.

"How to Get What We Want" will be the theme of a round table on political machinery at the afternoon session. Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, vice president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, and Dr. Martha Jean Ziegler of the department of political science at Northwestern university will speak.

Dr. Martha J. Ziegler. [Bernie Photo.]

Mrs. Ramsey led the five year long campaign of the League of Women Voters for permanent registration, and now is general chairman of the women's committee of 101 for city managership. Dr. Ziegler is the Cook county league's chairman of government and its operation.

Mrs. Walter T. Fisher of Winnetka, program chairman of the Cook county league and treasurer of the national league, has arranged the campaign school.

Another interesting meeting of the Cook county league will be the opening program of the school of government Tuesday from 10:30 to 2:30 o'clock at headquarters, 225 North Michigan avenue. Election activities will be discussed by Mrs. Will F. Lyon, chairman of nominations and elections, and Dr. Ziegler will begin a series of talks on the constitution.

The Professional Woman's League of Women Voters will hear Miss Mary Virginia Carey discuss "The City Manager Plan" at a meeting at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at headquarters. Miss Carey is vice chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Chicago city manager committee. The department of government and child welfare and the department of government and the legal status of women both will meet at 10:30 o'clock Friday at headquarters.

City managership for Chicago also will claim the attention of the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago at a dinner meeting Tuesday evening at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. Robert McKinlay, director of the speakers' bureau of the Chicago city manager committee, will speak. A film, "Yankee Doodle Goes to Town," showing the rôle of advertising in the development of America, will be given its first Chicago showing.

Mrs. Ramsey and Miss Edith Ellsworth of Philadelphia, Pa., vice president of the Advertising Federation of America, will be guests.

The annual president's tea and open house of the Women's Advertising club will be held from 3:30 to 6 o'clock today at the Chicago College club, 196 East Delaware place. Mrs. Consuela H. Miller, recently elected president, will be a guest. The Playwrights' theater will present a one act play, "Mother Rôle." Shirley Grant Dahl has charge of arrangements.

Two of the Chicago Woman's club programs this week will be devoted to political discussions. Herbert Agar, journalist and author of the Pulitzer prize winning book, "The People's Choice," will discuss "Americanism and What It Represents" at 2 o'clock Wednesday. Mr. Agar's newest book is a history of the Democratic party. Harry W. Knight will address the civics committee at 11 o'clock Thursday on "How the City Manager Plan Functions in Winnetka." He is Winnetka's former assistant village manager and present office manager.

The proposed equal rights amendment will be among the topics under consideration at a midwest regional conference of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women this week-end at Cedar Rapids, Ia. The five day meeting closes tomorrow. Mrs. Gertrude Alden Neely, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Chicago, is representing her organization at the conference.

Mrs. Gertrude Alden Neely.

"Women in Government and Politics" will be the topic of a talk by Leslie P. Volz before the Independent German American Woman's club Wednesday at the Auditorium hotel. The address will follow a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock. Master Roger Bruce Facinato will give a piano recital. Mrs. Arthur R. Webber will be in charge. Mrs. Harry E. Hoff is president of the club, which is celebrating its silver anniversary this year.

Season Continues in Full Stride at Hot Springs, Va., Spa

HOT SPRINGS, VA.

The high season at The Homestead continues in full stride, in spite of the fact that the program of organized sports activity concluded last week with the playing of the annual fall golf championships and the Bath County Field trials.

The horsey element of the colony is now looking forward to the activities of the Bath County Hounds. This is a private pack supported by the residents of the Warm Springs valley. Mrs. Fay Ingalls is the master, and she also hunts the drag hounds. Cecil Tuke hunts the foxhounds. The whippers-in are [Honorary] Cecil Tuke, Walter Phillips, and Miss Susie Ingalls. The season is unusually long [from October until April], with two drags and one live fox or vice versa, each week. The new season was inaugurated yesterday with a live fox chase meeting at Fassifern farm. On Tuesday a drag will meet at The Yard, home of the master; on Tuesday, Oct. 25, a drag will meet at Mount Hope church, and on Saturday, Oct. 29, there will be a fox hunt, meeting at Candy Run. Strangers or visitors are permitted to hunt on invitation of the master.

Climaxing the qualifying round of the fall golf championship last Monday there was a golf dinner in the Virginia room, honoring the medalist, George A. Poole Jr., of Chicago, who shot an 87.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. High, Mr. and Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted, Mrs. Wyndham Hasler, Farwell Winston, of Lake Forest, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Butz, of Winnetka, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. David M. Yates, of Oak Park, Ill., are at the spa now.

After a wedding trip through Canada and the east Mr. Bradley and his bride will make their home in Des Moines.

Varied Events Setting Swift Social Tempo

By Judith Cass.

The warm weather Chicagoland has been enjoying isn't conducive to making one as energetic as it is necessary to be in this year of 1938 in this busy city. Sun and breezes as warm as if it were July instead of October make every one feel more like wielding a golf club or a tennis racquet or cantering on country bridle paths than doing any of the thousand and one things that there are to be done in town at this time of year. But those who must, withstand the temptation to be lured into the country, and life goes on at the merry, mad tempo that sets the pace nowadays.

The symphony orchestra season started last week, which means that Orchestra hall will be the destination of music lovers every Thursday evening, Friday afternoon, and every other Tuesday afternoon for the next twenty-eight weeks. Two weeks from last night the Chicago City Opera company opens its seven week season. Several loop theaters are housing real Broadway successes now, and when they move on more are coming. Chicago has several smart new restaurants and the popular Yar, which always is dark all summer, is open again, so there is no derth of places to go. The problem now is to find time for doing and seeing all there is of interest, not to discover an interesting place in which to spend an evening, which is the wail of some blasé ones during the in-between season.

Tuesday brings the long heralded St. Luke's fashion show. If there breathes a woman in Chicagoland who does not know all that there is to know about this benefit before it actually happens it is not the fault of the efficient publicity committee, headed by Mrs. John C. Pitcher, for no benefit is more widely publicized than the annual St. Luke's fashion show. The showing will be given in the afternoon in the ballroom of the Stevens hotel and repeated that evening in the same place. Tea will be served during the intermission in the afternoon and there will be dinner during the evening show, followed by dancing. The doors will be open at 1:30 for those who have unreserved seats for the first showing.

Judy and Gege Lane, Suzanne Skahen, Jacqueline Wanzer, Daphne Hersey, Gloria Ten Hoor, Johnny and Mickey Gingrich, and the Baackes sisters will be the youthful models who will appear in a children's fashion show tomorrow. The show will be given at a North Michigan avenue restaurant during the luncheon hour.

The Antiquarians, the Musicians' Club for Women, the Arché club, the Renaissance club, the Drama league, the Chicago Woman's club, the Art Institute Alumni, the Municipal Art league, the Arts, Friday and Contemporaries clubs will have members at the opening reception of the annual American exhibition of paintings and sculpture at the Art Institute on Thursday to act as hostesses. Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Philip Miller, Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt, Mrs. William E. Vogelback, Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. William S. Monroe, Mrs. William B. Hale, Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill, Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter, Mrs. Edward H. Brewer, Mrs. Grant H. Laing, and Mrs. Solomon B. Smith are among those who will be there that afternoon.

Wednesday afternoon the first open meeting of the American Opera society will be held at 3 o'clock at Mrs. Frank G. Logan's, 1150 Lake Shore drive. The society will award its 1937 David Bispham Memorial medal to Julius Ozier of St. Louis and the 1938 medal to Dr. P. Marinus Paulsen of Chicago that afternoon.

The first of three lectures by John Palmer on the programs of the Chicago Woman's Symphony orchestra concerts will be given Friday morning at 11 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club. The first concert will be the following Tuesday night in the Auditorium theater.

The first concert of the season to be given by the Russian trio on Nov. 1 at the Arts club will be dedicated to Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, who died last June. Mrs. McCormick was the president of the Lake Shore Chamber Music society, which sponsors the programs of the trio.

The dates for the other concerts to be given this winter by the trio are Nov. 15, Dec. 6, Jan. 17, March 7, and March 21. All of the concerts will be given at the Arts club.

Mrs. George B. Dryden again is giving the use of the ballroom of her Evanston home to the Evanston and North Shore Wells college group for a lecture series by Clifton Utley beginning Oct. 26. The lectures will be given on Wednesday mornings at 10:30 o'clock, the other dates being Nov. 2, 9, and 16.

Mrs. Theodore Rockwell is president of the group. Mrs. Charles T. McCormick and Mrs. Clyde Bedell are in charge of tickets. Ushering will be Mrs. Davis G. Kirby, Mrs. William Scott Lucas, Miss Jane Miller, Mrs. Robert Stockton, Miss Carol Allison, Mrs. Charles Kerr, and Miss Mary Rawlins.

It is interesting to note that the presidents of the Evanston and Chicago Junior leagues are Wells graduates. Mrs. Stockton heads the Evanston league and Mrs. Gordon Lang the Chicago league.

AT HOME AFTER NOV. 1

Mrs. Arthur Henry Jens was Evelyn Marie Heckendorf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heckendorf of Madison, Wis., before her marriage on Oct. 1. Mr. Jens and his bride will be at home in Evanston after Nov. 1.

Gay Season in Store for the Myopia Club

BEVERLY, MASS.

The Myopia Hunt club, oldest hunt club in New England and one of the oldest in America, is away to what promises to be the gayest social fall and winter season in its long career.

Founded as a hunt club in days when the horsemen followed the trail of the fox over farm lands of Essex county, the club in its long years has done much to promote the sport, and Myopia colors and its pack are well known throughout the country.

Many Chicagoans have been and many still are members of the club.

With the passing of years this club became the possessor of one of the first golf courses of America, and for years it was known as the St. Andrews of America.

Polo was taken on and Myopia's fours have won international honors.

Tennis is popular at the club and its courts are among the finest on the north shore.

The skeet shooting season recently opened and the range is well patronized. For cool days there is a glass inclosed stand from which spectators may watch the contest in comfort.

The winter skiing will be popular on the Myopia hills and skating a favorite sport on the ponds on the club property.

For years Myopia was a club for men only, but the hunts, golf, polo, and tennis soon developed the social set. Today the women have alluring quarters of their own and the club is a gay place twelve months of the year.

The famous old club will be the scene of many parties this autumn, dinner parties, dances, and several balls. The club is ideal for such affairs, and there will be a rapid succession of such events this season.

The north shore is interested in the prospect of a visit next summer from King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth, who will be the first reigning British rulers to visit America. The news that the British king and queen would visit Canada and probably America next year created much discussion here as to the probability of a north shore sojourn.

Miss Nancy Leiter has returned to Edgewater, her Beverly farms home, after a visit to Washington. Miss Leiter has been making the most of her late stay on the north shore and has been a follower of the Myopia hounds on many of its October runs.

Mrs. William H. Moore of Chicago and New York entertained members of the executive committee of the Beverly Farms Improvement society at her Rockmarge home at Pride's Crossing yesterday. Mrs. Moore gave an interesting talk on her trip to Africa last winter. As usual, she is planning to stay late at Pride's and expects to winter abroad in the Mediterranean countries.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Crane, who have been at Castle Hill in Ipswich, are to make a late season stay at the home of Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. of Chicago, mother of Mr. Crane. The younger Cranes recently entertained at a family dinner party. Mrs. William A. Robinson [Florence Crane] will be at Ipswich until the early winter.

Miss Evelyn Lilly, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett of Chicago, has gone from her Beverly Cove home for a visit with relatives in Indianapolis. Miss Lilly has been the honor guest at several affairs, including a dinner-dance given by her aunt, Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge, at Selwood, her home at Beverly farms. Miss Lilly is returning next week for a late season stay at the Cove.

The intangible but most precious attribute of a fashion chosen by Stanley Korshak is its good taste. Exclusively presented is this vin rouge gown vibrant with electric blue sequins.

East and West Friends Gather at Wolfe Ranch

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wolfe [Ethel Ashley], formerly of Evanston, met their Chicago and Pasadena friends half way this week-end for one of the jolliest roundups in many a day upon their Wyoming ranch, "Robbers' Roost," near Medicine Bow [just under 1,000 miles from either point].

The one hundred and twenty-five guests hail from several states and at least three went on from Chicago for the event: Harold Crary, who flew out; Justin Dart, and John Clay.

"Robbers' Roost" covers 60,000 acres and got its name from its steep grades, crossed by the old Union Pacific railroad, where robbers flagged down trains as they slowed for the grade.

The Wolfes planned everything with a touch of cowboy glamor, and each guest received an invitation in roundup lingo. They arranged a rodeo and all the trimmings.

With Gigli's concert here in the Civic auditorium Monday night, Pasadena was launched upon the new season in royal style. Society, hardly home from its vacationing, filled the auditorium; and besides the glamor that always attends opening night, here was an added incentive this season for festivity. Gigli's concert in Pasadena was the first he has given since returning to this country after six years in Italy. His only previous appearances were his radio broadcast and his operatic appearances in San Francisco. Friends and patrons are congratulating Pasadena's impresario, Elmer Wilson, who with L. E. Behmyer will also bring Gigli and other "Met" stars south, with the San Francisco Opera company, next month.

Kreisler comes Oct. 31, another gala evening. In the lecture field is the opening of Town Hall of Pasadena in the auditorium Nov. 7 with Alexander Kerensky. Burton K. Wheeler, Countess of Listowel, John Gunther, Burns Mantle, and Bertita Harding will follow in succession through March. The Globe-Trotter Lecture series, the Coleman Chamber concerts, the Pasadena Civic orchestra series are just around the corner, and, of course, Los Angeles' metropolitan winter programs are already well under way.

Last night marked the resumption of the World Affairs assemblies in Pasadena which draw heavily from Los Angeles and surrounding cities for their patronage. The meeting followed dinner at the Vista del Arroyo. Dr. Rufus B. Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California, presided and the speakers were Dr. Syud Hossain, former editor of the Bombay Chronicle, and Chester Rowell. Among those who took tables were Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, the Jerrold Franklyn Waltons, and Mrs. Willoughby Rodman.

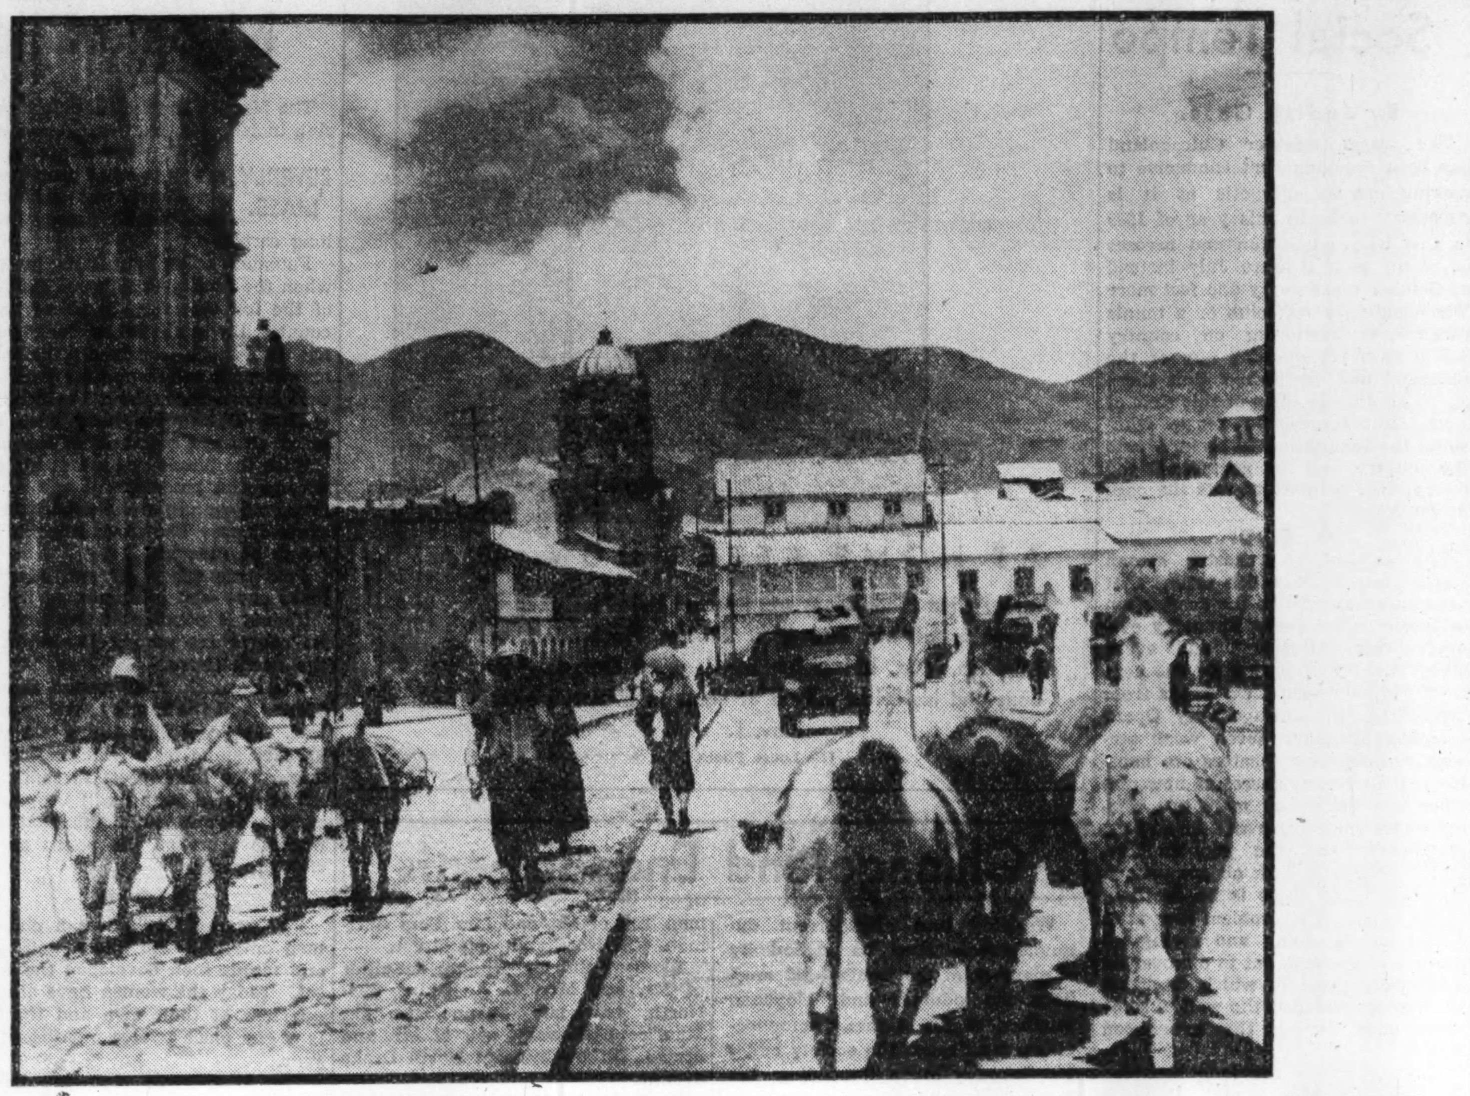
Mrs. Iris Masters Rogers is back in her Wistaria cottage on the hotel grounds after three months' tour of Europe and a stay in her Baltimore home. She went to the North Cape before sailing back to this country on the Ile de France.

Shades are up again, too, in the Vista cottage of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Cox, who have returned here after summering at their lodge, "Pleasant Hill" at Walworth, Wis. Their daughter, Mrs. J. R. Atwater, came with them. The P. C. Danglers registered at the Vista from Chicago, too, and the Walter R. Kirks are back.

Visiting the family of her son's fiancée, Mrs. Samuel Spellman Holmes and her daughter, Miss Alice Holmes, were in the vicinity of Santa Barbara this week. Their hosts are, of course, Mr. and Mrs. Sellar Bullard, whose daughter, Jean, will become Mrs. Russell Holmes. The Bullards reside at Far Horizons in Goleta valley.

Word comes down from San Francisco, too, that there will be a wedding next spring of interest to Chicagoans, when Miss Martha Eloise Segerstrom, daughter of the Charles H. Segerstroms of Sonora, becomes the bride of Edward C. Cornwall Jr. of Chicago and Sonora.

Arrivals from back Chicago-way include the daughter of Vice Admiral and Mrs. Adolphus Andrews, who has arrived from Lake Forest to spend the winter with her parents at the Villa Riviera in Long Beach; Mrs. E. R. Corbett of Oak Park, who is the house guest in San Diego of the Ralph Corbetts; and the J. Wier Elliotts [Thelma Ellis of Jacksonville, Ill.], who are visiting Mr. Elliott's mother in Pasadena, Mrs. Howard Elliott. The young couple was married Oct. 1 in Jacksonville.



STOP AND GO SIGNS NEEDED IN THE INCA CAPITAL

Trafic jams in Cuzco, Peru, are apt to involve everything from llamas and donkeys to flivvers and Indians. For Cuzco is a strange town which has taken on modern customs while still remaining loyal to the old.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

On the Champlain's cruise to the Mediterranean last spring and on the Normandie's to Rio, Guy A. Bingham acted as photographer. He brought back color films covering both fields. The two have been combined into one travelogue, and this will be shown, under Raymond-Whitcomb auspices, at a number of clubs and hotels around Chicago. Two of the showings are scheduled for this week. Mr. Bingham and his pictures will be at the Edgewater Beach hotel Wednesday evening and at the Georgian hotel in Evanston Thursday evening.

"The Old World in Color" is the subject of this week's travelogue at the Fair store. Harvey S. Olson will present his color films at 11 a. m. Friday.

After having been connected with Raymond-Whitcomb's Chicago office for the last four years R. E. Balbiano has established himself as a travel counselor. Last week he joined A. C. E. Schmidt in the latter's steamship and travel bureau at 8 South Michigan avenue.

L. W. King of the American Airlines relates that Chicago football fans are taking to the air while following the games in the east. A large number flew to yesterday's Purdue-Fordham game in New York and the Yale-Navy contest in New Haven.

An indication of the popularity the tropics and semi-tropics will have among travelers this season was seen in the fact that the Kungsholm sailed on a cruise to Bermuda a week ago with a capacity load. Thorsten Hanson, Chicago manager of the Swedish-American Line, says two other cruises this month will have full passenger lists, and the advance bookings for the winter journeys show a decided increase over last year's.

Harvey S. Olson, president of Campus Tours, Inc. of Chicago, yesterday announced the appointment of Martin A. Ceder as vice president in charge of national sales. Mr. Ceder has been a member of the staf for the last three years. Prior to that he was with the Matson Steam Navigation company and the Southern Pacific railway. Next summer he will conduct a six weeks' tour of Scandinavia.

Martin A. Ceder.

November in Europe has been changed by the modern tourist more than any other month in the year. It has been transformed from a period of hugging firesides, fighting colds, and fearing fogs to one of active preparation for winter sports. The tourist has brought about the change. Toboggans and skis are made ready, skates are oiled and cleaned, and committees everywhere meet to settle the "fixtures" of programs from the highlands of Scotland to the tatras of Poland, and from the ski lands of Norway and Sweden to the fashionable resorts of Switzerland and the Tyrol. The month is full of celebrations beginning with the religious festivals of All Saints' and All Souls' day. Continental countries observe the hunting season, and England has its Guy Fawkes shows and the Lord Mayor's show of London. Most widely celebrated and most hilarious of all is St. Martin's day, when processions and feasts of roast goose occupy eyes and digestions in almost every land.

So Goes the Nose.

In Brittany, France, there is a statue of St. Guirec which has had to have its nose replaced several times since it was first erected in the 13th century. It is an old custom for girls who want an early marriage to prick the nose with a pin; and since American young ladies have discovered the statue even the granite nose it now has is rapidly being worn away.

DETOUR

By FREDERIC BABCOCK

Wishful thinkers are always talking about getting away from it all. . . . If they were sincere in their wish to the point of acting upon it, they couldn't do much better than go to Tristan da Cunha, loneliest spot in the British empire, and probably in the inhabited world. . . . Sometimes more than a year passes without a ship calling there. . . . This winter at least one of the ships assigned to cruise service will carry a load of Americans there.

Tristan da Cunha is an extinct volcano whose crater is filled with fresh water. . . . It is the largest, and only inhabited, island of a group of three in the middle of the South Atlantic. . . . St. Helena, where Napoleon died, lies 1,320 miles to the north; Cape Town is 1,400 miles to the east. . . . The rock rises 8,000 feet above the sea, and the strip of land around it is nine miles long and less than two miles wide. . . . The entire population is only about 150.

● The island is named for the Portuguese admiral, Tristao da Cunha, who discovered it in 1506. . . . Edinburgh, the only settlement, is named for the duke of Edinburgh, who visited there in 1867. . . . Until the middle of the nineteenth century the neighboring waters were frequented by American whalers, but these vanished with the decline of the whaling industry.

Great sea birds, among them albatrosses hover overhead. . . . Some of them measure 15 feet from tip to tip. . . . The only lights come from lamps filled with oil made from the blubber of sea elephants. . . . Fertile soil is scant; it is continuously washed away by rain. . . . Rodents poach upon the carefully tended gardens. . . . So there are only the barest means of sustenance. . . . The fish supply is adequate except in stormy weather, when it is dangerous to venture out on the rolling sea.

● The inhabitants sometimes grow depressed over the scarcity of food and the long waits between ships, but they refuse to leave. . . . Several times the British government has offered to find homes for them in South Africa, but they shake their heads. . . . They say they prefer the peace of their remote mountain to the turmoil of modern civilization.

A system of barter prevails; there is no money. . . . The island boasts of five nationalities: English, Scotch, Irish, American, and Italian. . . . They have been intermarrying ever since the settlement was founded 120 years ago, but they have not deteriorated to any marked degree. . . . There are few family names. . . . There are five families named Glass, nine Green, five Rogers, three Hagen, eight Swain, and six Laverello.

● Tristan da Cunha societies in London and other large cities in the empire make a practice of sending food, clothing, and reading matter to the islanders. . . . The Tristanites like poetry; nearly every ship putting in at their port leaves several volumes. . . . If the weather permits, the cruise liner calling there this winter will send ashore quantities of foodstuffs and wearing apparel.

When a ship arrived there two years ago the natives said they still had plenty of sardines, Epsom salts, and Bibles. . . . They let it be known that they would welcome anything else.

Football Like War Is Played in New Guinea

CANBERRA, Australia.—[U. P.]—A commonwealth decree forbidding tribal warfare left the natives with no other sport except football, with the result that casualties have been so great that a governmental investigation has been ordered.

It is in the Australian territory of New Guinea that football has been developed to such an extent that the government is wondering whether it is really football or just camouflage for tribal warfare.

In one match played at Rabaual with the orthodox number of players 30 minutes of play resulted in 12 warriors being stretched out on the field and 57 others being treated for minor injuries.

A cursory search of the players by police revealed several armed with knives, 17 broken bottles, nine razor blades, stone club heads, six inch nails, and a hardwood stick resembling a policeman's club.

Although the natives insisted the trouble was merely the result of an old football grudge, the report which the government inspector prepared showed that casualties in a football game are usually greater than in tribal warfare.

The government, on the basis of the report, will decide which is safer for the natives, football or warfare.

Miami Will Build Modern Airport

Miami, Fla., Oct. 15.—A $2,500,000 airport, hailed as the world's largest and most modern, will be the latest addition to accommodations for the 50,000 or more vacationists who travel to Miami annually by way of the skies.

The expansion of landing facilities has been made necessary by the growing volume of air trafic from northern cities to this resort and the air travel from South American points. There are now 27 Clipper ships and a large fleet of 21 passenger Douglas planes operating out of Miami.

The new field, which has been approved by three federal agencies, not only will facilitate transportation of the 3,000,000 annual winter vacationists, but will provide more adequate space for the 1,500 or more planes that use Miami's landing fields each year.

The Brazilian Venice.

Pernambuco is called the Brazilian Venice because of its canals, deepened to obtain filler for low lands. The city is the easternmost in South America, and the white crested surf of the Atlantic never ceases beating upon its shores. In the old part of the city the streets are narrow and the houses tall, the idea being to obtain the maximum of shade.

Roziene, 4316 North Kildare avenue. Mrs. Zoa Pearl Park, contralto and reader, will give a musical program, with Arlen Alt, 4 year old pupil, assisting her.

HARSHE'S "BALLET GIRL"

Robert B. Harshe, late director of the Art institute, will be very much in our minds these next weeks as we look through the 49th annual American Paintings and Sculpture exhibit at the institute. Some forty of the works are his choice, so even in death his taste is still influencing us. The "Ballet Girl" was painted by Mr. Harshe and, if the plans of last spring were fulfilled, is now a permanent acquisition of the institute.

Chateaux Back to Normalcy as Tension Eases

By May Birkhead.

PARIS The reactions to the threat of imminent war and the preparations made for evacuating the population of Paris if, as it was feared last week, the dread specter should suddenly come to life were brought home to Americans, resident and transient, in the capital. We were reminded of the tension that preceded, in early September, the first battle of the Marne.

A bright, charming and handsome young Chicago woman, Miss Cherry Sue Orr, whose father is THE TRIBUNE cartoonist, had arrived in Paris with her aunt and several girl friends, and Miss Orr was making her preparations to enroll as an art student. She kept calm during the excitement and telephoned to us that she bore a letter of introduction. We heard no further from her during the time when nearly half the population of the city, fearing the worst, hurried from town in taxis piled high with trunks and baby carriages. For years there had been so much talk of air raids that Parisians were determined to get their children away, and it had been arranged that they could be billeted in places all around the capital. After the reports of the Munich meeting, and as soon as peace was assured, at least for the time being, the tension lessened. We then had the pleasure of meeting Miss Orr and her aunt, who had decided to risk, in Paris, whatever might be in store for them. Now that the excitement has died down she is to go on with her studies.

A number of Americans who own châteaux near Paris received notice, in the days when the crisis became acute, that they would be expected to place their spare rooms at the disposition of the authorities. Arthur Moulton, whose Château de la Verriere is near Herman Gade's Château du Mesnil St. Denis, both of them not far from Versailles, was notified to have his place in readiness. He let it be known that he had arranged for a number of friends to take refuge with him. One of his guests was the Archduchess Leopold of Austria, of Canadian birth, whose husband was kept in Germany pending the outcome of threatened hostilities. Others invited were Russian, along with Henry K. S. Williams, nearing his 79th birthday, and Mrs. Williams, Mme. Eide Norena, the diva; Harry Blackmer, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Graves, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grey, who had sent to La Verriere the bed for their baby son of 2 years.

Mr. Moulton had garnered a quantity of sugar and flour, and his guests all brought such supplies as they could hastily assemble. It so happened that none of the automobiles belonging to the guests had been requisitioned, so that they were able to arrive promptly. Mr. Moulton had promised the government to provide for twenty persons. He had his potatoes dug up and transferred to the storehouse, and each of the guests had instructions, in view of the partly mobilized servants, to do their share of the housework.

He also had instructions typed and put in each room. There was to be no talk of politics. There was to be no serving of cocktails or other drinks before 6 in the evening, and it was set out that the barrel of whisky in his cellar could not last forever, if the time of tension was prolonged. When the news came that there would be peace the entire party celebrated Mr. Williams' birthday.

Miss Viola Rodgers, who has the Château Coin-sur-Juigne at Lardy, some thirty miles south of Paris, on the road to Orleans, had been notified to hold her residence at the disposal of the authorities. She would be expected to provide for twelve refugees, she learned on the fateful Wednesday, and that they would arrive on the following Friday night or Saturday morning, Oct. 1.

The Chateau de Haut-Buc, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McCune, was requisitioned by the government for military purposes. It lies a few miles from Versailles, and adjoins two air fields, one of them the training ground for airmen at Buc, and the other the old terrain where Bleriot arranged for flyers to learn their art. For years there has been constant flying in this region. On one of the fields there was for years an airmen's clubhouse. When it looked as if war was bound to come in a few days the French government took possession of the McCune château, allowing the chatelains to stay there, but also billeting about twenty officers in the main house, while scores of soldiers occupied the gardener's house and grounds.

This property, with its fine old vases and garden statuary, once the shooting ground of kings, was long known as Petit Versailles. Anti-aircraft and other guns were planted on the handsome lawns. A few days ago the McCunes were notified that, within a short time, probably this week, they could again take full possession of Haut-Buc.

American Art Show to Open Here Thursday

By Eleanor Jewett.

The 49th annual exhibition of American Paintings and Sculpture will open Thursday in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. A statement given out by the Art institute to whet our appetite says: "A preview of the show indicates that American artists continue to reach out vigorously for new and vital things in design, color, form, composition, and in their choice of subjects." This may mean anything or nothing but one infers that the season for precocious juveniles is still open and anything goes.

Of the total number of works to be shown, one hundred were invited, following a custom established several years ago by the trustees. Between thirty and forty of the invited paintings were selected by the late Dr. Robert B. Harshe, then director of the Art institute. The remainder are the selections of the present director of fine arts, Daniel Caton Rich.

Two of the paintings which promise to afford a sensation are the recent portraits of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh by Robert Brackman of New York. They were painted during the famous flyer's last visit to this country. This is the first time the portraits have been seen in an American exhibit, although they were hung in a Paris exhibition of American art recently.

The Ninth International Salon of Photography, sponsored by the Chicago Camera club, is hanging through Oct. 31 in Blackstone hall, Art institute. It is extraordinary how close to the effects of lithography and etching the camera can come. There are several prints in the show one would swear had been made by other than the shutter's art.

The exhibit is rather extensive in scope with 241 entries from twenty countries. Some of the prints are extremely fine, others less well handled. The choice of subject is unlimited. Among the pictures are studies of dogs, horses, children, men and women, sports, landscapes, and boats. One might truthfully say, something for every one.

An extremely interesting announcement made by the University of Chicago is to the effect that Miss Lucy Driscoll of the department of art will discuss "Psychology and Modern Art" in a course of ten lectures, beginning Oct. 11 in the university's downtown University college. Miss Driscoll will present an approach to contemporary art in the light of current theories of psychology. Last year she was awarded a Guggenheim fellowship to study art in China. Japanese aggression in China stopped her in Moscow and she finally spent the year studying in Berlin and Paris. During her stay Miss Driscoll saw all the latest developments in art and it is these recent tendencies noted on the spot that she will discuss in her university lectures.

Mrs. C. Warner Williams, wife of the Chicago sculptor and a delightful speaker, opened a series of lectures last Friday morning in the studio, 207 East Chestnut street. The lectures will be given on six Friday mornings from 11 to 12 o'clock. The next dates are Nov. 18 and Dec. 2. Mrs. Williams has taken for her general theme the widening and deepening of our enjoyment of the art of America of today.

Charles Fabens Kelly, genial and talented critic [and curator of oriental art at the Art institute] will discuss the summer work of members of the North Shore Art league, Wednesday evening, Oct. 19, at the studio, Community house, Winnetka.

Last Tuesday saw the formal opening of the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive, with an exhibit of still life and portraits by John King and of landscapes by W. Karl Steele.

One of the loveliest exhibitions the All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts has ever hung in the West Mezzanine gallery, Drake hotel, is the current exhibition of flower paintings and landscapes by Berenice Newman, an exhibit which will continue to Nov. 1. Mrs. Newman has made strides in her painting; she has developed amazingly both in her sense of composition and her use of color. There are many perfectly delightful canvases in the present show, decorative in character and fine in quality. A remarkably well handled landscape, "Rhododendrum in the Smokies," is a great success and something of a surprise for Mrs. Newman has not painted many landscapes. In this her distances, sky, valleys, and peaks are well judged, balanced, forcefully presented, and richly painted.

Among the intriguing flower arrangements, those which make a special appeal to this writer are "Blue Vase," "Against the Tapestry," "Poppies and Mock Orange Blossoms," "The Pale Gray Curtain," "Her Majesty Rose," "August Bouquet," "The Amber Vase," "October Flowers and Fruit," and "Fresia and Bridal Wreath."

Another thoroughly pleasurable show sponsored this month by the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts is the exhibit of recent work by Dale Nichols in the third floor corridor gallery, Stevens hotel. Dale Nichols works in an individual manner which, unfortunately, is so distinctive it lends itself easily to the copyist. However, when, as here, we see Mr. Nichols himself alone and at his best, we are seeing something hard to duplicate. The reserve of his technique, its chill and picturesque perfection, make of his work sharp-cut verse. Terse, tense, complete—like copper plate, these data of Mr. Nichols enchant us.

Tunis Ponsen, who, by the way, paints in an entirely different technique from that of Dale Nichols, is showing a group of paintings at the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, to the end of the month. They are freshly painted, delightful in pattern and interesting in content. Mr. Ponsen has gone ahead remarkably in his painting these last few years.

An exhibition of Irish landscapes and religious subjects, with, too, a few attractive portraits of Irish girls, by Power O'Malley opened yesterday in the O'Brien galleries, 820 North Michigan avenue, to continue to Nov. 6. This is the first exhibit of the new season in the gallery.

An exhibition of flower and fruit prints of the 18th and 19th centuries, from the collection of Gordon Dunthorne, is current in the Lakeside Press galleries, 350 East 22d street, to Jan. 31, 1939. There are nearly 200 individual prints and fourteen books containing prints. The opening of the exhibition immediately precedes the publication of Mr. Dunthorne's monumental book on flower and fruit prints. Both the exhibit and the prospective book furnish a rich field for those who enjoy gorgeous and colorful decorative effects.

When Chicago Was Young: Claflin Sisters Were Center of a Society Row

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd, of New York.

Chicago, March 23, 1890.

Dear Julia: Chicago today is the storm center of an international scandal. Perhaps you have heard something of the case. No less than six British detectives are in town, investigating the past of Victoria Woodhull [now Mrs. Martin] and her sister, Tennessee Claflin [now Lady Cook].

The point to be brought out is whether Lady Cook and Mrs. Martin are proper persons for the wife of Gen. Taylor and other spouses of members of the London Athletic club to be associated with. On this issue thousands of pounds and much detective work are being spent.

Eight months ago, there was a dinner given by the Athletic Club of London of which John Biddulph Martin [husband of Victoria Woodhull] is president. To this repast, his wife and her sister, Lady Cook, were invited. The organization, one of the most aristocratic in England, numbers among its members half a dozen lords and a number of right honorables.

Feminine London had resolved to show its disapproval of Lady Cook and Mrs. Martin, and this dinner was seized upon as the time to snub them. The other ladies, under the leadership of Mrs. Taylor, wife of a British army officer, refused to sit at the table with them and the two sisters were left entirely to themselves.

This must have been dreadful for them, at the moment, and though I have not liked what I have heard of them, I think the snub was almost too pointed. Well, then, the scandal became public. Some of the London society papers took it up, printing accounts of the banquet, with comments, and legal action was promptly brought by the husbands.

The charge was made by Mrs. Taylor and echoed by other London ladies that the sisters had conducted themselves improperly in America and were not suitable persons to associate with the elite of London. Sir Francis Cook, a Portuguese viscount, and John Biddulph Martin are both rich men, and they are spending money freely in an attempt to avenge the insult to their wives. The inquiry has led them to Chicago, and it is here that the final work on the case has been done. Mrs. Taylor, on the other hand, has been conducting an equally bitter campaign to show that her snub was entirely justified.

Part of the charges against the sisters concerns the newspaper, "Woodhull's and Claflin's Weekly," in which the marriage question was discussed in what Will tactfully refers to as "a broad-gauge" manner. Free love was advocated, one of the statements often quoted being: "A woman has a right to take a new lover every day if she chooses." The thing that I disliked most about them was that, by an article in their weekly, they precipitated the Beecher-Tilton divorce case. I never did believe Henry Ward Beecher was guilty. The sisters were charged with libel and arrested several times. They have spent some time in jail, but have never been convicted.

The reason the detectives are here is that at one time Mrs. Woodhull and Tennessee Claflin had a sort of faith-cure establishment and fortune telling center in Ottawa, Ill., and were often in Chicago. Their brother, Dr. Claflin, lives on Calumet avenue in Chicago, and he is to be questioned.

Mrs. Taylor, their nemesis, has issued a leaflet, in which are reprinted some of the selections from the weekly. From what Will says, they are just terrible! ! !

O, well, you probably know all about these women, because New York was their home for some time, and there was a good deal in the papers there, I remember, when Cornelius Vanderbilt died, and his will was contested by his children. He had become interested in the sisters because of his belief in spiritualism and by taking his advice they made a good deal of money in stocks.

What a dreadfully gossipy letter this is! I'm ashamed of it.

Lovingly,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND

FOOTNOTES.

Victoria Claflin Woodhull Martin [1838-1927] was born in Homer, O., one of a family of ten children. This family traveled about the country, offering a medical and fortune telling show and selling a remedy, "Elixir of Life." In 1870 the sisters, Victoria and Tennessee, launched "Woodhull's and Claflin's Weekly," which advocated equal rights for women, a single standard of morality and free love. Going to London in 1877, the sisters, both divorced, made brilliant marriages. In later years, they were received by many members of exclusive London society.

OLD CHICAGO HARTHSTONES.
2121 Hudson Avenue.

In the summer of 1871, a young police officer, Capt. Bellinger, presented a newly built house to his bride as a wedding gift. The first few months in the new house, surrounded by trees and flowers, were happy ones for the young couple. Then came the October day when Chicago was devastated by the flames and even the north side was destroyed. THE TRIBUNE of Oct. 12, 1871, tells the story of the little cottage, on Lincoln place, now Hudson avenue:

"The line of destruction ran northeast from the Newberry school, striking Webster avenue near Lincoln place and continuing thence to the lake. . . . A few solitary houses stand. One of these, on Lincoln place, is a small white cottage, which remains unscathed in the midst of the dreary waste surrounding it. A policeman named Bellinger, an invalid, was the occupant when the fire raged. He hauled up the sidewalk, as far as possible isolating his home. Then he poured water over the building until none was left and when the water was gone, he took his cider out of the cellar and used it in the same way."

The little white honeymoon cottage still stands, prettier than ever. Flanked by towering American linden trees, surrounded by flowers, well-kept shrubbery and hedges, and embellished with a rock garden, in which are stones from many historical spots, 2121 Hudson avenue stands as a symbol of the earlier and the present stage of Chicago's undaunted spirit . . . "I Will."

[The story of the cottage that escaped the fire of 1871 is sent us by Mary Anne Kirschten, who lives at 2121 Hudson avenue.]

Heavy Iron No Advantage.

A heavy iron has little, if any, advantage over a lightweight one, since pressing is done mostly through the evaporation of moisture and the movement of the iron.

WOMEN WATCH, AND MEN DO ALL THE PRAYING

A curious sight in the 400 year old church at Chichicastenango, in the highlands of Guatemala. Here the head of the house prays for the rest of the family. Note the apparent indifference of the women, as compared with the fervor of the men. The Quiche-Mayan Indians beseech their saints intensely, burning small candles before them, and spreading rose petals for the dead and corn as offerings. Much of their religion is tinged with Mayan mysticism.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

THE ISLE OF DREAMS.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 10.—To the Travel Editor: If you want to go to a place that is entirely different, where love is real, where nature is good, where worry and care are forgotten, where you can live in peace and contentment, enjoying each day, forgetting about the tomorrow, and letting the rest of the world go by, then go to the Isle of Eden, the Garden of Paradise, the Island of Enchantment in the Souths Seas: Tahiti.

Many writers have attempted to describe Tahiti, but words are inadequate. One must live among the good natured Polynesians, bathe in the crystal clear waters of the lagoon, smell the sweet fragrance of the tiare [the island flower], be fanned by the soft, balmy breezes, listen to the strains of the guitars and the clear musical voices of the natives, or sit on the beach at night as waves break out on the reef, and watch moonbeams dance through the coconut palms.

Are you tired of the talk of war, politics, murder, and gangsters, and of the never ending streams of automobiles, the hustle, bustle, noise, dirt, and commotion of the big cities?

Would you like to go where time means nothing, where you can live like a king on $25 a month, where there is sunshine every day, where there are many beautiful girls, where no one works, where you can swim, fish, and paddle an outrigger all day long?

I shall never forget the thrill of first sighting the island. It was at dawn. In the distance could be seen mountains towering to a great height and standing like sentinels. Drifting from the island was the sweet odor of overripe fruits and decayed vegetation.

Going ashore at Papeete, I noticed that the streets were unpaved, there were no "stop" and "go" signs, no newspaper, no billboards, no telephones, no taxicabs, no radio, nothing commercial. I bought a green coconut and drank the juice. It was cool and delicious. Dogs were sleeping in the street. I walked past the market, where I saw large stalks of bananas for 2 francs [10 cents]; oranges, large and juicy, about two dozen on a string for 3 francs [15 cents]; pineapples very large, 3 cents apiece; mangoes, limes, papayas, breadfruit, and small fish of every color. I noticed every one—even the French officials and the propietor of the hotel—went barefooted. All the merchants were Chinese.

I was in love with this quaint French town. I stayed six months and now I am sorry I ever left. Although I have been to the car corners of the earth, I have never found a place to compare with Tahiti.

In Papeete a small house with a shower can be rented for $8 to $10 a month. If you prefer to live at the hotel, you can get a room and meals for $20 a month. American cigarets are 10 cents a pack. If you'd rather live out in the district [country] you can rent a small hut for $3 a month. And, as fruits and vegetables grow wild in the valleys, all you have to do is go and pick them. Of course, if you live in Papeete you buy your food at the markets, for it is quite a distance to the valleys. The lagoon is full of fish, and every native hut has a few pigs and chickens that you can buy very cheaply. There is not a snake nor a poisonous reptile nor a wild animal on the island.

The natives are Polynesians. They have no resemblance to the Negro race, as they have light complexions, small features, and thin lips. Both men and women have perfect figures. They are the best natured race in the world. All day long they sing and dance. It is a single man's paradise.

Tahiti is 100 miles in circumference and in the center are mountains rising to a height of 7,000 feet. There is a road running around the island, and every one lives near the road or on the beach. Papeete has a population of between 4,000 and 5,000 while the entire island has a population of about 10,000.

Tahiti is 1,000 miles south of the equator and 3,750 miles southwest of San Francisco. It is a ten day voyage from California.

You must have a round trip ticket, a passport, and a certificate of character in order to land. Do not be afraid to travel third class, as the staterooms are comfortable, the meals delicious, and it is nice enough for any one regardless of the amount of money he has. A passport costs $10; your certificate of character may be obtained from your local police department. When you reach the island you will make a vow that you will never leave.

If your readers wish any more information on "The Isle of Dreams," I shall be glad to supply it. Please ask them to enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope. My address is 2320 Carlton terrace, Louisville. BRENT ALFORD.

NO MORE SUFFERING FOR HIM.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—To the Travel Editor: Recently you published a letter asking your readers to write my son, Clarence Johnson. Many of them have responded. I now ask you to let them know that Clarence has passed away since the appeal was first made.

MRS. E. JOHNSON.

THANK YOU DEPARTMENT.

Anderson, Ind., May 8.—To the Travel Editor: My name, sent in by W. B. B., appeared in your column recently, and since then I have received more than a hundred cards and letters.

No one knows, without the actual experience, how much greetings mean to a shut-in. I wish I were able to thank every one who has remembered me. THE TRIBUNE and its readers are doing a wonderful work in bringing cheer to those of us unable to travel.

MRS. JOHN BURKE.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—To the Travel Editor: Just a note of thanks for the kindly words of greeting sent to Mrs. Lucy Cunningham by your readers, following publication of my letter last Sunday. I wish all of you could have seen her little Irish face light up with pleasure as she read and re-read the many cards and letters.

A TRIBUNE READER.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—To the Travel Editor: Your kindness in publishing by appeal for cards and letters was instrumental in giving me courage to carry on, despite my handicaps, and in bringing me many new friendships. Through that letter I have had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Bade, who is doing such marvelous work in visiting the cripples and invalids and bringing them peace and happiness. She has obtained for me a much needed wheel chair. Would that there were more people like Mrs. Bade and all the others who responded so splendidly. I thank you and them from the bottom of my heart. E. F. L.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Palatine, Ill., Oct. 1.—To the Travel Editor: Please place the name of my niece on your list to receive cards and letters from travelers. She has been ill with tuberculosis for two years. As she is a bed patient, all she can do is read; so time passes slowly for her. Her name and address: Miss Evelyn Wall, Oak Forest sanitarium, Onalaska, Wis.

A TRIBUNE READER.

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 4.—To the Travel Editor: Kindly ask your readers to place the name of Karl Rockstroh Jr., 812 Derby lane, Green Bay, on their shut-in list. Karl is 14 years old and, because of a physical disability, is confined to his home. You are assured that any cards or letters would be greatly appreciated. M. R.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—To the Travel Editor: Kindly put the name of my niece on your list to receive mail from travelers. She is 15 years old and has been in the sanatorium for a year. Her name and address: Miss Eleanor M. Johnson, River Pines Sanatorium, Stevens Point, Wis. MRS. EDWARD J. LOUGHREY.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 23.—To the Travel Editor: Please add the name of Miss Betty Harting, 455 Brainard N. E., Grand Rapids, to your list. She is a young woman who has been ill for three years. She must live in a darkened room where all beauties of life and nature are shut out—and she loves nature so much. Cards, letters, or travel folders would be deeply appreciated. Many thanks for "The Voice of the Traveler."

Norway's Huge Sculptural Park Nearly Finished

By E. M. Halliday.

Norway's annual exhibition of art, at the Kunstnernes Hus in Oslo throughout October, depicts the work of Norwegian painters, sculptors, and craftsmen who have attracted world-wide attention. But the most interesting fact about it is that Norway's greatest artistic genius has none of his works on display there.

It would almost seem as if a conspiracy of silence has been in operation against Gustav Vigeland in the last twenty years. More than one leading critic has called him the world's foremost living artist, and yet the average American scarcely recognizes the name. The truth is that this genius—who will be 70 years old next April—for more than a quarter of a century has been engaged on a gigantic sculptural project which, when completed, will stand as the greatest single artistic achievement of the twentieth century. It is called "The Fountain," and, although any Norwegian can tell you proudly what it is in general, only a few are familiar with the details.

For, in order to insure ideal working conditions and freedom from interruption, the municipality of Oslo years ago erected a palatial studio near Frogner park, at the site where "The Fountain" is now receiving its finishing touches, and in this perfectly equipped building Vigeland and his assistants have worked incessantly and almost in secret. At rare intervals individuals have obtained permission to go through the studio and view the finished groups of statuary, photographs have been taken of some of the work, and the general ground plan of "The Fountain" has been released. This is not much, but it is enough to indicate the colossal scale of the project and to suggest the exquisite beauty which will characterize the work.

"The Fountain" comprises more than 100 distinct sculptural compositions, about half of them in bronze and the rest in granite. Although each is complete in itself, the entire group has an artistic unity of theme. Vigeland's realistic technique has always been employed to express the deepest and most significant experiences of human life; he is passionately interested in human values. Although he has created many magnificent portrait busts of famous Norwegians from Ibsen to Björnsen, his reputation is the result of his imaginative sculpture, and in "The Fountain" his genius finds expression in a representation of the cycle of human existence.

Entering Frogner park, through enormous wrought iron gates ornamented with writhing dragons in curious designs, the visitor sees a terrace of sweeping marble steps rising in concentric semi-circles to a towering granite monolith. From this monument, which is a sculptural interpretation of a Norse saga, twelve rows of granite statuary groups radiate down the steps toward the gates. Each depicts some typical experience of daily living—the joys and sorrows common to mankind everywhere. Vigeland is not concerned with temporal glory; the warrior, king, and dictator find no place in his creation.

Beyond the monolith, which is the dominating piece of this series of sculptures, more steps rise to a beautiful walled inclosure, somewhat resembling the open court of a Greek or Roman palace. In the center of this space stands the great fountain itself—a huge bowl supported by six bronze giants. Around the octagonal basin which catches the flow of water are spaced twenty bronze groups known as the "tree sculptures." Here the various phases of life are depicted in poignant figures, perfectly modeled and giving an astonishing illusion of flesh and blood. Boys and girls play beneath the branches of bronze trees; lovers whisper in the shadows; a father leads his little daughter by the hand; an old man tremulously watches a baby in its mother's arms.

It is impossible to give any adequate idea of the total effect of "The Fountain," for even if—as it soon will be—it were now finished and open to public inspection, words could not describe such a significant work of art. But the words of Gunnar Heiberg, the Norwegian dramatist, echo the feeling of all who have seen it. "His work," Heiberg wrote, "will make Oslo known as the city of the fountain."

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I understand that in Jamaica there is a sport known as "rafting down the Rio Grande." What is the nature of it? V. D. M.

In the northeastern part of the island there are rapids on the river of that name, and they are used in giving the tourist a tropical thrill. The visitor starts his rafting expedition at Berrydale, about a half hour's drive from Port Antonio. The raft is made of bamboo poles, securely lashed together with withes, and is manned by a stalwart native crew. The pilot does his piloting with a long bamboo pole. And he does a great job, taking the raft with its complement of two passengers down through the swirling rapids to Burlington on the sea, six miles from the start. It takes about two hours for the trip. The captain of the fleet is named Nimshi. He is supported by a corps of dusky lieutenants who aspire eventually to the captaincy. It's all quite military.

What can you tell me about the flowering trees of Jamaica? S. G.

Huge trees bloom as profusely as small plants down there. Among the showier specimens are the lignum vitæ, the mountain pride, the cordia, and the Spanish elm. Most of them are in full flower in the winter months.

Is it possible to find horseback riding in any of Indiana's state parks? L. R. A.

Yes. Riding stables are maintained in six of the parks: Pokagon, Mounds, Turkey Run, Brown County, McCormick's Creek, and Clifty Falls. There are more than 150 miles of bridle paths.

Notes on My Operation

The Crisis That Came in One Woman's Life

"YOU MEAN I've got to have an operation?"

I stared hard at the doctor. Our family doctor. A man I have known for years, and whose judgment I have never doubted. I sat almost speechless. It was a blow for which I wasn't prepared.

"I mean just that," he replied. "You have a number of fibroids. You may also have some cysts. I'm not sure. The fibroids are not in themselves any reason for an immediate operation, but in your case there are adhesions and a good deal of pressure. All that causes the pain you complain of and makes the condition a serious menace. You also need some repair work badly. You can have that done at the same time."

"But I can't have an operation now," I gasped. "You surely know that. Junior isn't well. I've no one to leave him with. Help costs money. And the way things are I can't ask my husband to pay out——"

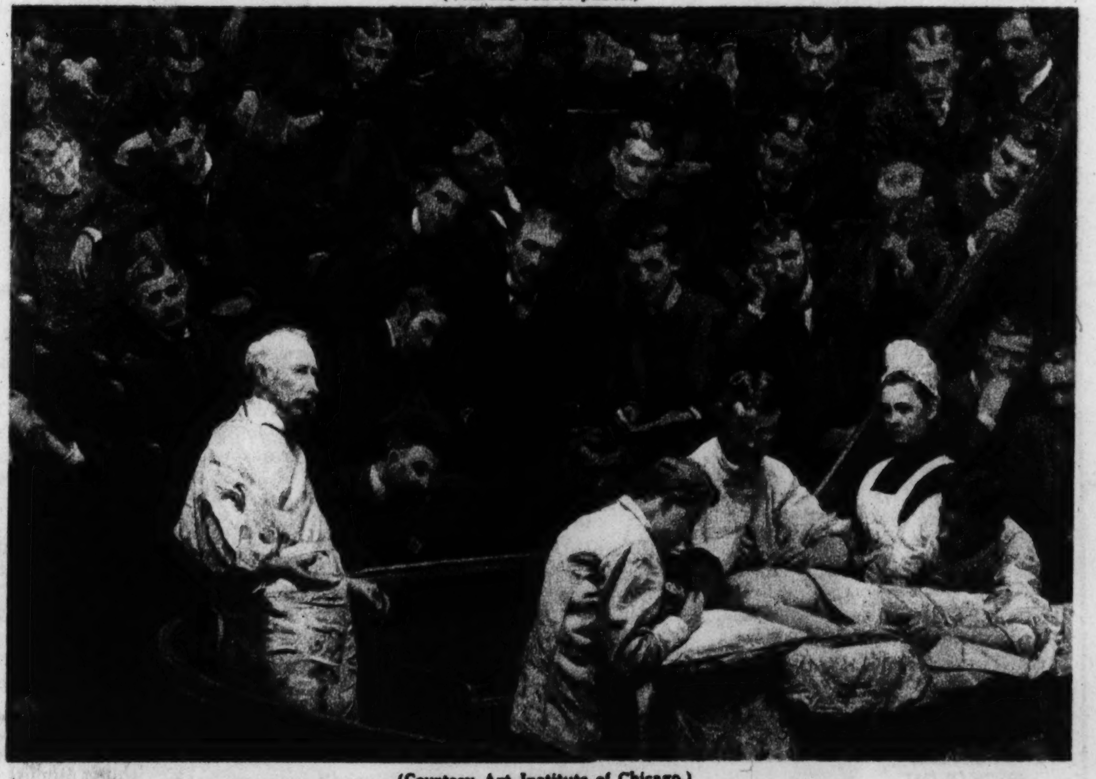
"Look at it another way," he interrupted firmly. "The way things are you should think only of yourself right now. For Junior's sake—and your husband's sake—and your own," he said gravely. His kind eyes were very sober.

"But isn't there some medicine you can give me? Or treatments, or something? Then in six months or so, if I'm not better——"

"You can't wait that long. And there is no medicine or treatments that would be effective. You should plan to go to the hospital in a week or ten days at the most."

"But why the rush?" I cried desperately. The very word "operation" was enough to throw me into a blue funk. And in a week!

"You told me to think of myself," I went on bitterly. "Tell me this—what are my chances of coming through this operation alive?"



(Courtesy Art Institute of Chicago.)

"You have every chance in the world. You are in fairly good condition for an operation now. If you wait a month or two no one can say what shape you will be in."

"What can happen?"

"There is too much pressure on your bladder and surrounding structure from the enlarged fibroids. There is apt to be a shutting off of circulation. I will make an appointment for you with one of the best gynecologists in the city. He is on the staf at X—— hospital. I want you to see him right away. Or you may know some other good surgeon whom you prefer."

I rose and slipped into my coat.

She Learned About Doctors and Hospitals

"You can make the appointment for tomorrow afternoon," I said. My voice sounded dull and small and far away. I hoped he couldn't see how frightened I was.

I waited until he had telephoned for the appointment.

"Dr. S—— will see you at 3 o'clock."

"I'll go there," I said as I left. "I'll let him examine me and listen to what he has to say. But I'm not promising anything."

I had hard work to keep from telling my husband everything that night. But I didn't want to worry him until I heard what the surgeon had to say.

While I was putting Junior to bed the thought occurred to me that I might have cancer. Probably I had—only the doctor wouldn't tell me. He called it tumors.

I lay awake most of the night. I dressed and got breakfast next morning feeling more dead than alive. I could hardly wait until my appointment with Dr. S—— at 3 o'clock. I was in a fever of excitement. The idea of cancer was with me in grim earnest now. That must be the reason I had so much pain. And pain often didn't come in cancer cases till the last stages, I remembered. When I waved good-by to Junior from the front steps I wondered how I could stand it if Dr. S—— were frank and told me that those growths inside of me were malignant.

From this time on events moved fast with me. I was grateful that I did not have to wait long before I was admitted to Dr. S——. He gave me a thorough examination which lasted over an hour. I liked him from the first. He seemed to me to be an unusually fine type of scientific man—skilful, and surprisingly informal, in spite of his gravity and poise.

Later, when I came to know him better at the hospital and to see more of his methods of work, I knew my first impressions of him were correct.

Deanna Steps Out, with Mickey Close Behind

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood.

IF THERE were an Academy award offered to the youngster who had made the greatest strides in this industry in the last two years the judges would have Deanna Durbin and Mickey Rooney as the finalists in any poll. These two have spread-eagled the juvenile field in the last two years, but the decision might well go to 15-year-old Miss Durbin, because she has just completed her fourth starring picture in a row. Not even Mickey Rooney, redoubtable son of a vaudeville family, would be strong enough to carry four pictures in a starring assignment. And from the box office angle Deanna's probable four-picture gross of $10,000,000 puts her far in front.

Shirley Temple, of course, remains as the No. 1 kid star of the business. Not since the days of Jackie Coogan has a youngster come along to match the 9-year-old Temple lass. Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville, Freddie Bartholomew, Bobby Breen, Jane Withers, Juanita Quigley, Tommy Kelley, and others have tried with varying success, but Shirley remains in a class by herself.

The success story of Deanna Durbin has few parallels in this town. Just two and a half years ago the family was broke, dead broke. The Winnipeg lass went from one studio to another, offering to sing for the casting offices, but they turned her aside impatiently. The woods were full of prodigies, and the impatience of the casting experts was a compound of weariness, indignation, and exasperation. The exasperation was directed at the mothers of the children, those incredibly persistent amazons (in stage parlance they're dubbed stage mothers) who battered at the studio gates all day long.

Deanna, nothing daunted, then started a one-girl picket of the Trocadero, the night club on Sunset boulevard, where hopeful youngsters and veterans perform each Sunday night, parading their wares before possible purchasers. Sunday after Sunday Deanna showed up at the Trocadero, and just as regularly they made excuses. The show was too long. They had too many singers. It would have fazed any one less resolute, but Deanna kept coming back, and one night they needed a singer to split up two comedy acts, and The Durbin got her big chance.

What she did in that one appearance is Hollywood history. Neatly dressed, appealing in appearance, she stepped out on the Troc floor and tore off the roof. Ringsiders, who had settled back resignedly to hear another kid performer, suddenly found themselves leaning forward spellbound at the youngster's magnificent tones.

It was a great night for the Canadian youngster. The next day was even a greater thrill, because M-G-M signed her to a contract. Weeks passed along light-footed. Then the weeks went into months, and Deanna's family and her agent, Jack Sherrill, started to smell a mouse. It seemed that the master minds, after careful reflection, had determined that, while she was talented, young Judy Garland, also on the Metro pay roll, was the greater of the two.

I suppose that Deanna Durbin at that moment was as close to complete discouragement as she ever was to be again. Perhaps not. Rufus Le Maire and Charlie Rogers signed her at Universal. Assigned to her first picture, "Three Smart Girls," she was to experience another sinking spell. Director Henry Koster threatened to resign his job if he had to have Deanna in the picture. Producer Joe Pasternak calmed down Koster and persuaded him to go ahead with it and forget his artistic ire. The result made Miss Durbin a star, and it made Koster one of the most respected directors in the business.

Eddie Cantor should not be omitted in any summation of the factors that influenced the Durbin success. Cantor put her on his radio program, and the circulation he gave her voice was a positive aid. The Cantor program introduced her to the country.

Mickey Rooney's phenomenal spurt to cinema importance can be traced to the "Judge Hardy" series. Before then he'd been a fine young actor, and his tousled hair and pug nose were a perfect expression of young America on the loose. However, Mickey needed a setting to expose all of his facets, and the Hardy series provided an eighteen-carat setting for him. He took advantage of it.

The most difficult thing for any actor to learn is to be himself. Mickey's characterization of Andy Hardy is great because Mickey is Andy in real life. He talks that way, he acts that way in everyday life. His fondness for the girls is not an exaggeration. Offscreen Mickey is the No. 1 Romeo of the town, and he woos them vigorously, if not tenderly. The girl who would care for Mickey would care for a cave man technique, because he mows them down with all the subtlety of a Notre Dame guard charging at an Army tackle.

Another youngster, older than Deanna or Mickey, who has clicked this year is Priscilla Lane. This graduate of the Fred Waring band, in which she vocalized with Sister Rosemary, came up with one of the fine performances of the season in "Four Daughters." Young Ellen Drew, Chicago-bred, scored in "If I Were King." Nancy Kelly, a New York girl, who achieved a Broadway success in "Susan and God," has yet to be seen in "Jesse James" opposite Tyrone Power, but the word has gone out that this 18-year-old is one of the real discoveries of the season.

If I write often about the youngsters of Hollywood it is because I get a great kick out of them and like to encourage them in their careers. I think that I was the first to single out Mickey Rooney as a sure bet for stardom, and when he vindicated that judgment Rooney gave me as much satisfaction as he gave the family. Hollywood needs new faces, needs youngsters to pick up the load and carry it along. From time to time we'll take a look-see at the juveniles who are coming along to replace the current crop of stars.

Navy's Flying Problems

The Sikorsky pocket battleship of the air. This naval plane has a top speed said to be more than 225 miles an hour, can fly for 3,500 miles, and carries bombs and torpedoes in its wings.

(Acme photo.)

A Vought SBU-1 type torpedo bomber and reconnaissance plane. The motor is a twin-row Wasp Jr. of 750 horsepower. Top speed, 230. A belly fuel tank that may be dropped in the air increases its range from a normal of about 500 miles to a maximum of 700 miles.

By WAYNE THOMIS

THOSE unfamiliar with naval flying often do not understand the peculiar problems that are solved by the designers and manufacturers of aircraft for the United States navy and by the naval aviators who fly these machines.

The naval designer must consider that his plane either will be nested on the deck of an aircraft carrier or that it will take off from and alight on the water.

Automatically certain limitations are imposed by these conditions. If the airplane is to be a carrier craft its takeoff must be exceptionally good—that means that it begins flying after only a short run—and its landing speed must be relatively slow, for an aircraft carrier's deck is only about 700 feet long—a very short distance for the landing run of a modern high-speed airplane.

The combination of these two characteristics means that the plane must have a relatively large wing area and a very powerful motor. The large wing means that its top speed cannot be high unless the machine is unusually "clean" and its lines perfectly streamlined. Yet speed is one of the first requirements for military planes.

The deck-based plane also must be sturdily built to withstand the pounding it will receive in making landings on heaving carriers in rough weather. All in all the resultant plane is one that cannot carry much of a military load and fuel. So it must be a short-range plane.

(Official photograph, U. S. Navy.)

A Grumman single-seat fighter. This little biplane has a top speed of 250 miles an hour and climbs 2,500 feet a minute from a carrier deck.

If the designer chooses to make his craft a seaplane he must supply even more power to drag through the air at high speeds the huge floats that enable the craft to land and take off from the water's surface. Again the range and cruising speeds of such a plane are strictly limited.

Finally, if the designer chooses to build a large flying boat he must construct it sturdily enough so that it is seaworthy, yet give it enormous fuel tanks for long-distance flights. And withal he must make it fast.

The single-motored machines shown here are typical of the newest craft built for carrier operation. They are highly streamlined, equipped with flaps for slow landing, retractile landing gear for high cruising speeds. They all have powerful motors, ranging from 750 to 1,000 horsepower.

But the most important trend in naval aviation is depicted in the pocket battleship of the air that is the four-engined Sikorsky flying boat. This machine combines long range with high speeds, seaworthiness, an enormous bomb and torpedo load—all carried within the wings, and guns with which to defend itself from aerial attack.

Like the army air corps, the navy is graduating from medium-sized airplanes into very large aircraft. The reliability of the plane is increased by its multiple engines. The great power provided—this boat has four 1,200-horsepower twin-row Wasps—gives it great carrying capacity. Its size means comfort for its crew and therefore efficiency in its use.

At this time it appears that the larger the airplane the more efficient it can be and the more nearly it approaches the ideal navy aircraft. The evidence is that the smaller naval plane is doomed to a secondary rôle by its larger brothers.

A Northrop BT-1 dive bomber in mid-takeoff. The retractile wheels are just coming off the runway. Note the hook and the arresting gear for landings on the decks of aircraft carriers.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Mae Tinée: I saw Virginia Weidler play in "Scandal Street" and "Mother Carey's Chickens." I think they should let her play in more pictures and have the leading part, because she is a good actress and very cute.

Thank you.

FRANCES NICKOLOU.

Editor's note: I could. You're welcome.

VIRGINIA WEIDLER
Called cute in parts in two pictures.

Dear Mae: Of all the prison and gangster films that have been released, I say with regret that my favorite movie player, John Emmett O'Connor, is not in any of them. There is a man who can portray a police officer, warden, detective, or sergeant far better than any of those hams that got the preference.

There are many characteristics about him that I miss. His Irish accent, the twitch of his neck in his tight collar, his actions and ways—he has the LAW written all over him. Good luck to you, John, and hope to see you back in pictures soon.

It would be interesting to know if "Silence" was ever filmed. I saw it on the stage, featuring John Halliday, and raved about it for weeks.

I am faithfully waiting for Jimmy Cagney's sister to make her film debut. Saw her picture once and believe that she will be a future favorite star among the movie fans.

Whew! I said a mouthful, and hope to hear from you soon. Closing with a bouquet of good wishes for your column, I am, cordially, WALLACE BATCHELOR.

Editor's note: "Silence" was screened in 1931, starring Clive Brook and Marjorie Rambeau. Thanks for your interesting letter—and the bouquet.

Dear Miss Tinée: I just saw "Little Tough Guy," with the "Dead End" boys. Their acting is superb. I saw it twice and am going to see it again. Would you please tell me who played the part of Johnny and give me his address? Thank you.

M. L. S.

Editor's note: Billy Halop played the rôle of Johnny in "Little Tough Guy." You can write to him in care of Warners, First National studio, Burbank, Cal. You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: I want to give three cheers for Tyrone Power! The reason: In all his career "Ty" has never been in a B picture, and he has made straight in a row four $2,500,000 pictures.

I must say he's carrying on the good work of his father and grandfather.

Would you kindly print something about Tyrone? Sincerely,

BARBARA N.

Editor's note: Yes, the boy's been doing right well. And here in print is the "something about Tyrone" that you request. He was born in Cincinnati, O., May 5, 1914. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 155 pounds, and has dark brown hair and big brown eyes. Hobbies are tennis, swimming, horseback riding, and amateur photography. He is not married.

TYRONE POWER

Dear Miss Tinée: I have just finished reading your review on "We're Going to Be Rich," and although I have never written a letter to a newspaper before, I am so burned up at your account of this "interesting" little production I have to get this off my chest.

Just let me know one thing: Is one of the stars some relative of yours—Gracie Fields or Brian Donlevy or Victor McLaglen? One of them must be, or otherwise you would have given a correct analysis of this picture and would have told the readers that it was absolutely punk.

Gracie Fields will never make a hit over here until she realizes she is anything but the romantic type, and the idea of those two heroes fighting over her was positively ludicrous. As for the child actor, I think he was the most revolting kid I have ever seen.

Now, Mae, why don't you wake up? Quit giving a good writeup to pictures just because they are made in England. They can't compare with the films made here at home. Of course, you say this is an American-made picture made abroad, but even so, give us our own stars, or at least cast foreign importations in something suitable. Be yourself. Let us depend on your reviews. If you say it's good we'd like to be able to take your word for it, but, between you and me, my confidence in your opinion has gotten an awful jolt.

Sincerely, RUTH DONAHUE.

KLIPP STREET had gone suddenly insane. Paving stones crashed through windows. Men were howling their curses. Picks and shovels were flying. Householders ran for safety. Then the air was filled with police sirens. Patrols and armed cars came to a stop. Policemen poured out of their doors. Tear gas went flying. The riot was ended.

A police lieutenant looked angrily about him. "What's going on here?"

No one answered. The lieutenant glanced severely from one to another of the men who now stood meekly in a semicircle about the police.

"Who are you fellows?"

No one spoke. The lieutenant repeated his question.

Finally a modest little man answered. "WBA workers," he said.

"What were you fighting about?"

The little man stared helplessly. He didn't know.

Ten minutes before all had been quiet, but within the house before which the crowd was now standing a strange scene was unfolding. A telephone rang. It was answered by a girl. She was prettily molded, and her eyes flashed when she spoke.

"Yes," she said, "this is Sonya."

"You are foolish," came a man's voice. "You must never give your name on a telephone."

"What does it matter? I shall not be here long."

"That depends upon how quickly you act. The police have been stationed at every street. You will be seen going away."

"Where shall I find you?" Sonya seemed not the slightest interested in the warnings of danger.

"In the house at Union square."

"I shall be there in a half hour." Sonya replaced the receiver. Without hesitating to take either hat or coat, she ran to the door, threw it open, and went to the street. Before her was the group of WBA workers placidly going about the movements of mending a pavement.

Sonya put her arm to her eyes and sobbed pitifully. A young workman paused in his lethargic efforts and gazed with open mouth. Sonya's sobs became more pitiful. She staggered toward the workers in a state of uncontrolable grief. Several men ran toward her. She raised her tear-stained face.

"I was beaten," she sobbed. She pointed toward the house she had left. "I was beaten and robbed."

The whole crew stopped and gathered about her. "Quick!" she called. Her grief was less violent now. "Quick! Before they come after me. Stones! Your shovels! Anything!"

Her magnetism impelled them. She seized a stone and threw it. Then the whole gathering went wild. Without stopping to offer the least question men and boys snatched up missils and hurled them. Klipp street was in a turmoil. A police call was made. Sonya watched a convenient moment. Then she slipped quietly away.

II.

Comrade Petrovich was waiting for her in the house in Union square. "How did you manage?" he asked her.

"It was easy. I walked."

"But the police were watching."

"They were watching a workmen's brawl which happened to spring up as I was coming away."

Petrovich studied the beautiful face of the young woman. She held his eyes with her own. "You are asking me if I love you," she said. "And I am answering you that I do."

"Yes," said Petrovich, "but I am also asking you if you are paying attention to the orders of the Red Circle."

"To the Red Circle and to you, Comrade Petrovich. I love you both."

"Of course. But if you were to expose me you would not be sentenced to death."

"And if I were to expose the Red Circle——"

"O, quite by accident, I mean."

"I see," said Sonya quietly. "I should lose my life. Well, comrade, and if you deceive me the same thing will happen to you."

"Are you jealous, Sonya?" Petrovich took her hand and caressed it.

"There is no fury like my jealousy." The girl's breast rose and fell in swift emotional breathing. "I saw her."

"Saw her? Whom did you see?"

Petrovich stared. "Then that is why the police are hunting you. Because you went to the bureau. You went there while the inquiry was in progress. You went there when Ivan Molokoff was——"

"Yes," said Sonya coldly, "when Molokoff was killed."

"Sonya!" Petrovich was struck by a sudden suspicion.

"Don't worry," said the girl. "I told you I went to see Maida Travers. I followed you and Molokoff. I knew she was there. Keep away from her, Comrade Petrovich."

"But Molokoff?"

"Molokoff was a fool."

Comrade Petrovich made a thoughtful tour of the room, hands behind his back, his brow furrowed. "The unfortunate accident to Comrade Molokoff need not be discussed at this moment," he observed. Then he brightened. "Moreover," he added, "it is a matter for the American secret bureau."

Sonya laughed. "A service which is becoming increasingly interested in the movements of Peter Quill," she said.

Petrovich glanced up curiously. "How do you know that?"

"Because," said the girl, "I think he is beginning to discover that his ghastly invention of an electrical ray which can destroy forts and battleships may be of more use in Moscow than in America."

Petrovich whistled softly. "So you know that?" he said questioningly. "Well, then, Sonya, you will also know the value of remaining in hiding. Mr. Tyler is aware that the Firefly is in America.

Sonya smiled. "How do you suppose he could have found that out?"

"A little paper firefly was found in the corridor of the secret service bureau." Petrovich regarded her closely.

Sonya snapped her fingers contemptuously. "Go," she said. "I know you have many things to do. Perhaps I shall remain here. Perhaps not."

"The little paper firefly?" Petrovich began.

"Run along, comrade darling," Sonya commanded gayly.

Petrovich kissed her and went. When she was alone she hummed a little snatch of a gay old folk song. She walked about the room, scanning each object with apparent indifference. Her eye caught a folded paper on the table. She took it up negligently. Her eye suddenly was held fast. It was a passenger list of the Atlantic liner Gigantic. Sonya's glance ran down the row of names. Then her eyes were caught again. She saw the name of Maida Travers.

The paper fell slowly from her hands. She closed her eyes and stood a few moments in deep study. She again snapped her fingers in a gesture of quick resolve and ran to the window. All was clear. When she had closed the door behind her she set off quickly, turned the first corner, and made her way down a back street.

III.

Comrade Petrovich had no sooner got out of sight than he entered a taxicab and was driven to the airport. In an hour he was in New York City. A taxi carried him to a small restaurant in an obscure quarter of the city. Michael Raclov was waiting for him.

Petrovich grinned. "You change costumes so often, Michael," he said, "that I hardly know what to expect when I come to meet you. Not the gypsy violinist today, eh?"

Michael Raclov laughed in turn. "Today I am the European tourist in America," he said. "A tourist preparing to sail for England."

"The baggage?" said Petrovich.

"It is on board the Gigantic. Rather nice, I think, to make a maiden voyage on such a beautiful ship." He added with a sage expression, "And with Maida Travers a fellow passenger."

"You will have four days to win her confidence, Michael."

"And if I don't?"

"If you do not," said Petrovich, "we stand a chance of the firing squad in Moscow. Maida Travers may recognize me. She will remember that she nearly killed us both in that—shall I say peculiar?—automobile accident in Washington. Well, that is all the more reason why my plan will work."

"Plan?" asked Michael.

"Yes, a plan I shall tell you as we go to the pier. Everything seems to rest on plans, Michael. We of the Red Circle have a plan. Peter Quill has a plan—and what a horrible plan, and a horrible little ape. And Eric Lambert, that charming naval architect. . . . By the way, Michael, you have his plans, of course?"

"Every blueprint, you may be sure." Michael jerked his shoulders. "They are all in the lining of this overcoat, which I shall carry and hope to escape the customs. A little heavy, but then a heavy coat is a convenience aboard ship. When shall we go?"

"At once," said Petrovich, glancing at his watch. "I have thought it a good idea to be the last passengers aboard. Too many things can happen in the tiresome wait while the ship is casting off. Well, then, Michael, we are off."

Petrovich and Michael strolled casually along the streets leading to the piers, Petrovich examining his watch from time to time as if to regulate their movements with the utmost precision. They entered a taxicab. Soon they were in the midst of the excited throng which had gathered to wave farewell to the Gigantic on its maiden voyage.

A shout burst from Petrovich. "The ship is moving!" he cried. "They're casting off. Hurry, Michael! How could I have made such a mistake?"

Comrade Petrovich was quite right. The last gangplank had been withdrawn. The seamen were stowing the derricks. Small trucks were trundling luggage along the decks. Only two last hawsers remained to be cast off from the bitts on the pier.

Petrovich made his decision in a split second. "Put on your overcoat," he called to Michael. Raclov did so as he ran. They reached the edge of the pier.

"Quick! Take a hawser," Petrovich cried. He seized one of the huge ropes. Michael caught the other. Both men swung against the side of the towering liner. A chorus of shouts from the spectators. To strike the side of the ship was suicide. To be knocked from their slight hold on the ropes was to be drowned. Neither of these things happened. Petrovich and Raclov met the ship feet first. The seamen on the forward deck leaned over the rail to watch the queer embarkation. Then without further disturbance the seamen hauled away. Petrovich and Raclov had caught their ship. As Petrovich had proposed, they were the last aboard.

IV.

Maida Travers was able for the first time to understand "Alice in Wonderland." The train journey to New York with Eric Lambert had been one of regret at leaving her fiancé, but also one of dazzling expectation. She was living in panorama. The train, the turmoil of the Pennsylvania station, the ever-changing scenes as the taxicab flew to the pier, and then the bewildering excitement as the Gigantic slipped its moorings—all these things kept her perpetually in ecstasy.

"Good-by, darling," Eric had said as he ran for the gangplank. "Keep me tightly with you. Watch everything you do. Watch every one you meet."

Maida had been too emotional to reply except to wave her hand. She had heard his last warning, a warning which had been repeated over and over; heard it, but the constantly changing the

I Go to the Hospital for an Operation

True Story of Crisis in One Life

He took what seemed to me to be my life history. He went very much into detail and asked many questions which I thought were irrelevant at the time. Afterward I realized they were all part of an expert routine.

As the examination went on my confidence in him increased. An assistant doctor and a nurse worked with him. When it was over I went back into his consulting office.

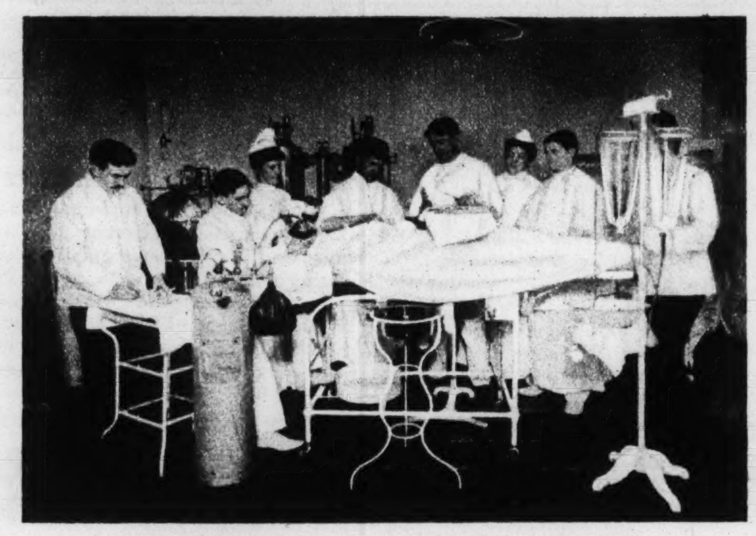
His diagnosis was virtually the same as that of my family doctor. I had fibroids and bad adhesions and a serious condition of pressure. He also stated defintly I had two cysts and needed some repair work. He advised that I have an operation as soon as possible.

I felt suddenly faint. Sick all over. Finally, when I felt I could speak and keep my voice steady, I came out with my dread fear—the fear that every woman entertains.

"You can tell me the truth," I said. "I want the truth. Are those fibroids and cysts malignant? I mean, have I got cancer?"

He said something then which earned him his fee ten times over!

"You've no signs of cancer. Nor do your tumors show any such indications. You aren't the type. However, that doesn't mean the situation is any less serious. I advise an operation and urge you to make it a matter of days, not weeks."



The operating room of a hospital in the late 1880s.

I couldn't speak for a moment. I felt as if a weight had been lifted from my shoulders at what he had said about cancer. But another weight was swiftly descending. Every hour I was getting closer and closer to a hospital. To a hospital, and an operation, and all that went with it. All that was painful and dreadful, I thought.

A couple of moments and I was speaking again in a natural tone. I asked him what the operation would cost. Would it be terribly expensive?

He asked me what my husband's salary was, and how large a family we had, and then told me what he would charge for the operation.

"Is that satisfactory?" he inquired.

I said yes. It seemed reasonable. He also suggested that I go into a two-bed room. It would cut the cost of my hospital expenses a little. And later, when I was recovering, it might be pleasant to have some one in the room with me.

"Will I need private nurses?" I asked.

It was not necessary at all to have private nurses, he said. That depended entirely on one's budget. He did suggest, however, that I have my own nurses for two days, or perhaps three. After that he was sure that I could get along nicely with floor care.

"How about going to the hospital next Sunday?" he said. "I will reserve a room for you. Better go in about 3 o'clock. I will schedule the operation for the next morning."

A fresh wave of terror came over me. Sunday! This was Tuesday. And so far I had said nothing of all this to my husband. I had to talk to him first. And, besides, I felt I wanted to consult one more surgeon. Get one more opinion at least.

I sparred for time. "I will let you know by Thursday," I promised.

I told my husband everything that night.

"I've known for weeks that you weren't well," he said slowly. "But every time I asked you you always insisted you were fit as a fiddle."

We discussed all sorts of details then. He has always had a lot of faith in our family doctor. And he knew of Dr. S—— by reputation. If both men felt the same there couldn't be any question that it was the best thing to do. He convinced me that everything could be arranged. Like our family doctor, he insisted that I should think only of myself now. And do everything possible to get well and healthy.

And I mustn't worry about anything or be afraid! I promised I wouldn't, but I'll admit that from then on until the afternoon I went into the hospital about the only emotion I experienced was fear. Just plain fear.

I kept this bottled up inside of me. And I learned later that this might have had a damaging effect on me. That it would have hurt me in more ways than one if it had not been for the treatment I received from the first hour I went into the hospital. There everything possible was done to deaden the harm that all my worry and fear might have caused me.

This treatment is called a "psychic buffering." It is a marvelous machinery modern medical science has set up to offset the effect of fear and worry on tense, keyed-up persons. It is simple in itself. It is merely a matter of the wise use of sedative drugs, the grouping of quieting nursing and intern care. And also nerve blocking, and potent but harmless anesthetics. I was to find out for myself just how much of a help this psychic buffering can be—the most wonderful help in the world to those who need it.

But before I went into the hospital I had no knowledge of all this. When people tried to tell me I had nothing to be afraid of, that operations weren't what they were years ago, I felt a secret scorn of their attempts.

The Sunday my husband drove me to the hospital we stopped at a little French restaurant for dinner. He thought it would cheer me up. I hadn't slept more than three or four hours a night for the last week and had eaten practically nothing.

I had felt miserable physically, too. I hadn't even had the strength to consult another surgeon. My husband felt that wasn't necessary and had telephoned Dr. S—— that I would be at the hospital by 3 the following Sunday.

The sunny, cheerful looking reception hall and lounge were filled with people when we went in. This was a visiting hour. The clerk at the admission desk informed us pleasantly that room 338 was ready for me.

A bright-eyed nurse greeted us when we left the elevator and led us to my room. I gave a gasp when I saw it. Flooded with the west sun, its walls freshly painted, and on the table by the bed a vase of carnations and ferns my husband had sent me.

I looked at the two beds.

"Is there any one else in the room?"

"Not right now," the nurse told me. "A patient who has been here for two weeks just left this morning. You should have seen her! She hated to go, and said so to every one."

"Yes, I imagine," I said.

Various tests were made that afternoon, and a check-up of my general condition. Time passed rather quickly. My husband left shortly before I had my supper. I made him go. I was worried over Junior. I wasn't sure just how reliable the new woman was whom we had engaged to take charge of him.

I hated to see him go and clung to him a moment at the last. After he went, I thought—what? But I held on to myself. I tried to read, but couldn't keep my mind on what I was reading. My old fears were coming back, magnified now by the strange sounds and sights around me. I wished I had let my husband remain with me.

Outside my door I could hear visitors passing. I rang the bell for some water. I didn't want the water, but I wanted to see some one. While the nurse was getting it the intern who had made most of the tests that afternoon came in. He was young and good looking and appeared to be entirely care-free, without a worry or responsibility in the world. He had, moreover, a competent manner.

He seated himself comfortably in a chair and discussed casually the various happenings at the hospital that day. Dr. S—— had had two emergency operations in the morning, but the patients were all resting comfortably now.

All the time he was talking he was watching me rather closely. In about ten minutes he rang for the nurse and ordered two powders for me. He had seen the state of mind I was in. I had tried to seem cool, but I guess when you are in a blue funk you show it.

It wasn't fifteen minutes after I had taken the powders that a new, strange peace began to steal over me. The pretty room with its shaded lights, the pleasant doctor, the flowers my husband had given me, all seemed to have a soothing effect. The world didn't seem such a bad place after all—and I decided that even if I were going to die this wouldn't be a half bad place to die in!

It was the medicine beginning to take effect. Only I didn't know it.

Dr. B——, the intern, looked at the books I had piled up on the table beside my bed.

"Not planning to sit up and read all night, are you?" he inquired politely.

"I'm planning to do just that," I informed him a little defiantly. If he thought I was going to admit I was scared, he was mistaken. "I haven't been sleeping much this week," I explained. "Tonight I won't sleep at all."

He looked interested.

"That so? Why not?"

"How can I—with what's ahead of me in the morning?"

"We'll take care of that," he smiled. And before he left he repeated: "You'll go to sleep shortly. Better undress now and get into bed. The floor nurse will be on hand to answer any call. Your own nurse will be here at 7 in the morning. Read for a while if you like. You'll get two more powders in an hour if necessary."

I obeyed orders. I undressed and climbed into bed. Some climb! The bed seemed atrociously high and hard, but those powders were doing wonders for me. The bed actually felt a haven of comfort!

I read for a few minutes. I didn't go right to sleep, but a drowsiness was coming over me. Those fears which had been swarming about in my mind for days were leaving me. I tried to conjure up pictures of what was ahead of me, of stories I had heard in teacup circles. Of torture-filled hours after the operation, in a reeking, whirling, nausea-filled world—of what would happen to Junior if I died—and to my husband . . .

But the pictures wouldn't stay with me.

I fell into a deeper and deeper peace. If this was the effect a hospital could have on one it was certainly a grand place to come to. No doubt about it, I was really going to sleep! I remember putting my book back on the table and fumbling around to switch off my light.

I was no longer even interested in tomorrow. Let tomorrow take care of itself.

I fell into a sound and dreamless sleep—the most merciful sleep I have ever had.

When Quebec Was Saved

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

IN THE OLD lower town of the city of Quebec there stands today, among other ancient landmarks, a quaint and unpretentious little church.

It was erected in 1688, and in 1690 it was named Notre Dame de la Victoire, in commemoration of the defeat by the French of the British admiral, Sir William Phipps, who had tried in vain that year to conquer the city.

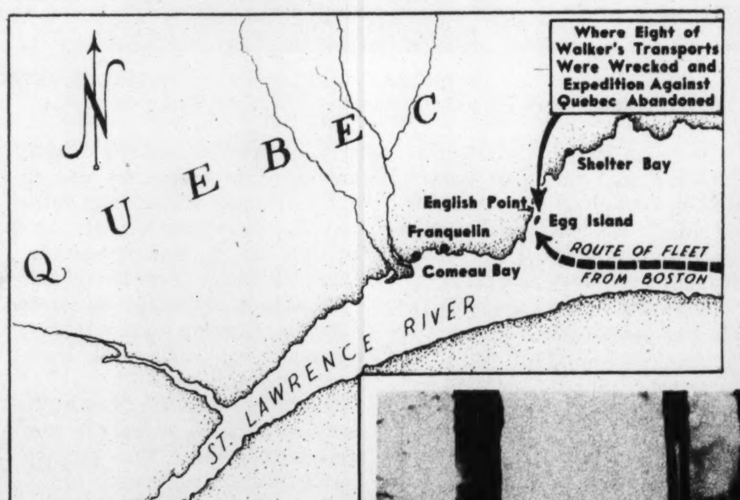
More than a score of years later the little church was rededicated and renamed Notre Dame des Victoires. This was after the French had occasion the second time to deem themselves thankful to the Blessed Virgin for having saved them from the British—after a storm in the Gulf of St. Lawrence had wrought havoc in 1711 with the expedition under Sir Hovenden Walker, which was on its way to attack Quebec.

The man who inspired the Walker expedition against the French city was Col. Francis Nicholson, a British settler in New England. It had been his lifelong dream to expel the French from Canada.

In 1709 he appeared in London with four or five Mohawk Indians, members of the Five Nations, a federation of aborigines friendly to the British. His purpose in this was to awaken British interest in America, and the Indians actually accomplished it for him. They were entertained by nobility, presented to the court of Queen Anne, and made much of by all London.

As a result Nicholson was entrusted with the task of capturing Port Royal in Nova Scotia. In May, 1710, his expedition sailed from England, and five months later Port Royal was seized and its name was changed to Annapolis in honor of the British queen.

Nicholson was elated. He went back to England, his brain aflame with a still more ambitious plan. Henry St. John, the new secretary of state, fell in with this plan, which consisted in the main of an expedition against Quebec. He chose as a leader of this expedition Sir Hovenden Walker, who only recently had been elevated from captain to rear admiral of the royal navy.



Map showing where Walker's expedition met with disaster.

Walker had served in the navy more than twenty years, was the second son of Col. William Walker of Tankardstown, Queen's county, and an elder brother of Sir Chamberlen Walker, described in his day as "the celebrated man midwife."

On May 4, 1711, Walker's fleet of ten ships of the line set sail from Plymouth. Accompanying the fleet were thirty transports filled with soldiers and a number of supply vessels. The troops, which numbered upwards of 5,000 and which had been withdrawn from the duke of Marlborough's command in the Netherlands, much to that gentleman's displeasure, were under the leadership of Brig. Gen. John Hill, the notorious ne'er-do-well Jack Hill, who was the brother of the queen's favorite, Lady Masham, and a distant poor relation of the duchess of Marlborough. It appears that Hill was given the command as an affront to Marlborough, who had little regard for him.

Despite Walker's long service in the navy, it turned out that he was not well fitted to lead the expedition.

The fleet under Walker and the transports and supply ships put in at Boston on June 24. It was there that the expedition was to make its final preparations for the descent upon Quebec, and there also that a colonial army was to be waiting to march overland against the Canadian city. But the colonial army had not yet been organized. Virtually nothing was ready for the bold project. There arose a great deal of quarreling, and Walker, it appears, disregarded the advice of every one who was in a position to help him. Particularly was he scornful of Americans who knew the St. Lawrence river and could have piloted his ships through and around its many dangers. Instead he chose as his pilot a French sea captain who only a short while before had been captured on his way to Quebec.

The vessels under the command of Walker, war craft and transports, departed from Boston on July 30, and not many days later a land force under the aforementioned Colonel Nicholson began its march toward Quebec by a route that would have led through Albany and Montreal. Nicholson's army consisted of about 5,000 men, of whom 1,000 were Indians, tagging along on the promise of loot.

Quebec at this time was poorly defended. Only a few hundred local militia were stationed there. Even Nicholson's army, without the help of the troops of Hill or the war vessels of Walker, easily could have taken it. Its defenses in no way compared with those of the Marquis de Montcalm, who with 15,000 soldiers forty-eight years later vainly tried to repulse the British Gen. James Wolfe.

Three weeks after sailing from Boston, and while Nicholson's army was floundering through the forests many miles to the south, the fleet entered the mouth of the St. Lawrence in safety and sailed bravely in the direction of Quebec. And then disaster overtook it. First a dense fog settled upon the broad waters of the gulf. Then a violent storm came on. High winds, fog, and the swift current of the river caused the ships to lose their way. Walker believed, as his vessels, stripped of their canvas, rode before the gale, that he was close to the southern shore of the river. Instead he was being swiftly driven toward the north shore. He gave orders that were wrong.

On the night of Aug. 22-23 eight of the transports of his fleet were wrecked on the rocks in the vicinity of Egg Island. Historians vary as to how many lives were lost. Their estimates range from 700 to more than 1,000. They generally agree, however, that the loss of life would have been greater had not Admiral Walker in the critical hour proved himself something of a sailor after all. He managed to save all of the war vessels and most of the transports by rising to the occasion with skill and courage.

Egg Island, upon the rocks of which the transports were battered to pieces, lies just off the north shore of the river, to the north of where it widens out to form the gulf. It is a very short distance from English point, on the mainland, which lies south of the mouth of the Pentecote river, in the vicinity of The Chicago Tribune's (Ontario Paper company's) settlement at Shelter Bay. The Egg Island rocks upon which the vessels were wrecked are just out from English point, and from the waters here two small cannon have been recovered, which now stand as sentinels near the door of the presbytery in Shelter Bay.

After the disaster Walker and Hill held a council of war to determine what should be done. They ascertained that the expedition was short of supplies and decided that the wisest course would be to abandon the project and return to England as swiftly as possible. It should be pointed out here, however, that historians agree that the war vessels, which still were intact, and the troops, of which there still were sufficient in number, could have continued on and taken Quebec with ease.

At any rate they turned away from their goal and set sail for England, the fleet arriving at Spithead about the middle of October. A week after the arrival Walker's flagship, the Edgar, a vessel of seventy guns, was mysteriously blown up in Spithead harbor. Every one aboard perished, but the admiral was ashore at the time and consequently escaped with his life.

When the news of the destruction of Hill's transports in the St. Lawrence filtered through the wilderness to Colonel Nicholson he immediately abandoned his march on Quebec, although most authorities are of the opinion that he could have kept on and taken the city without much trouble.

Quebec remained in French hands until 1759, when Wolfe's army captured it four days after the general himself had been slain.

Shocking in 1889

● Thomas Eakins' famous masterpiece, "Agnew Clinic," which is reproduced on page one of this section, created a storm of protests when it was completed in 1889. Polite people of Philadelphia, where it was first exhibited, shuddered at the trace of blood on the surgeon's hands. Even surgeons shuddered. "Eakins is a butcher," they said. Yet the work was true in every detail—true to life, and a great painting.

● Eakins had been commissioned to paint Dr. D. Hayes Agnew of the University of Pennsylvania, who was about to retire. He consented to accept the task on condition that he might create on canvas not only the famous doctor but his clinic as well. The result, "Agnew Clinic," was far different from a painting made by Eakins a decade before. In that earlier painting, "Gross Clinic," surgeons were attired in everyday business suits, and a relative wept on the sidelines. In the newer canvas the cleanliness of the modern (for 1889) hospital was portrayed. Surgeons wore white, a nurse hovered near the operating table, and there was no weeping relative. But people thought the painting brutal. People of 1889 were squeamish.

● Eakins died in 1916. His painting "Agnew Clinic," which was his most ambitious masterpiece, today is in possession of the University of Pennsylvania. During A Century of Progress Exposition it was exhibited in the Art Institute of Chicago.

Word has gone 'round that physical fitness contributes much to the type of beauty the camera glorifies and the public adores. Wan Camilles are out; the girls with splendid verve and beautifully rounded silhouettes are in.

Daily gym workouts are compulsory for many of the youngsters who will be the stars of tomorrow. Wearing abrupt play suits, they cavort each day under the expert eye of a physical culture director, who sees to it that the too-plump exercise their way to slenderness and the pencil-slim acquire the rounded lines that meet the requirements of the new fashion in figures.

And the moral of this is: Do as the starlets do. EXERCISE!

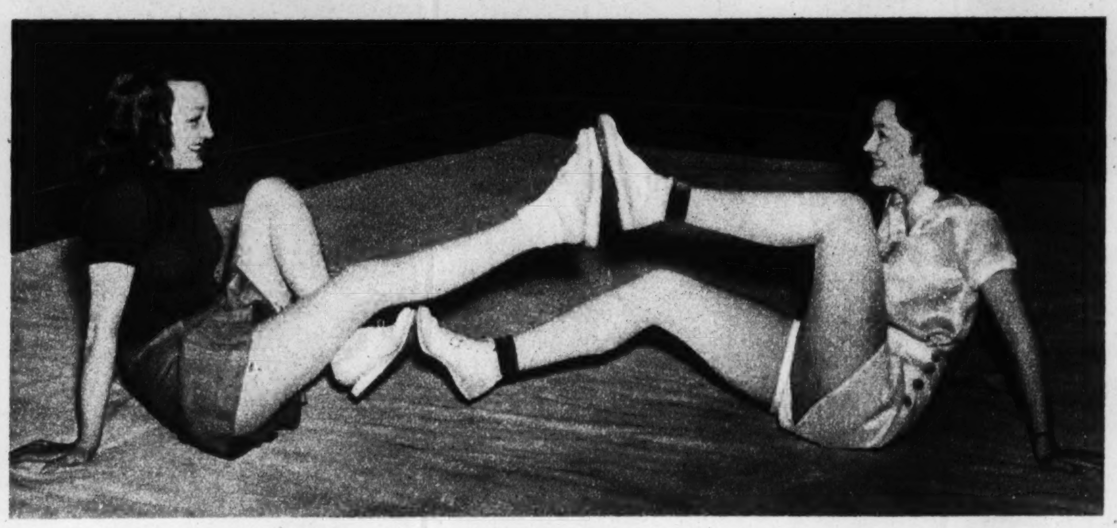
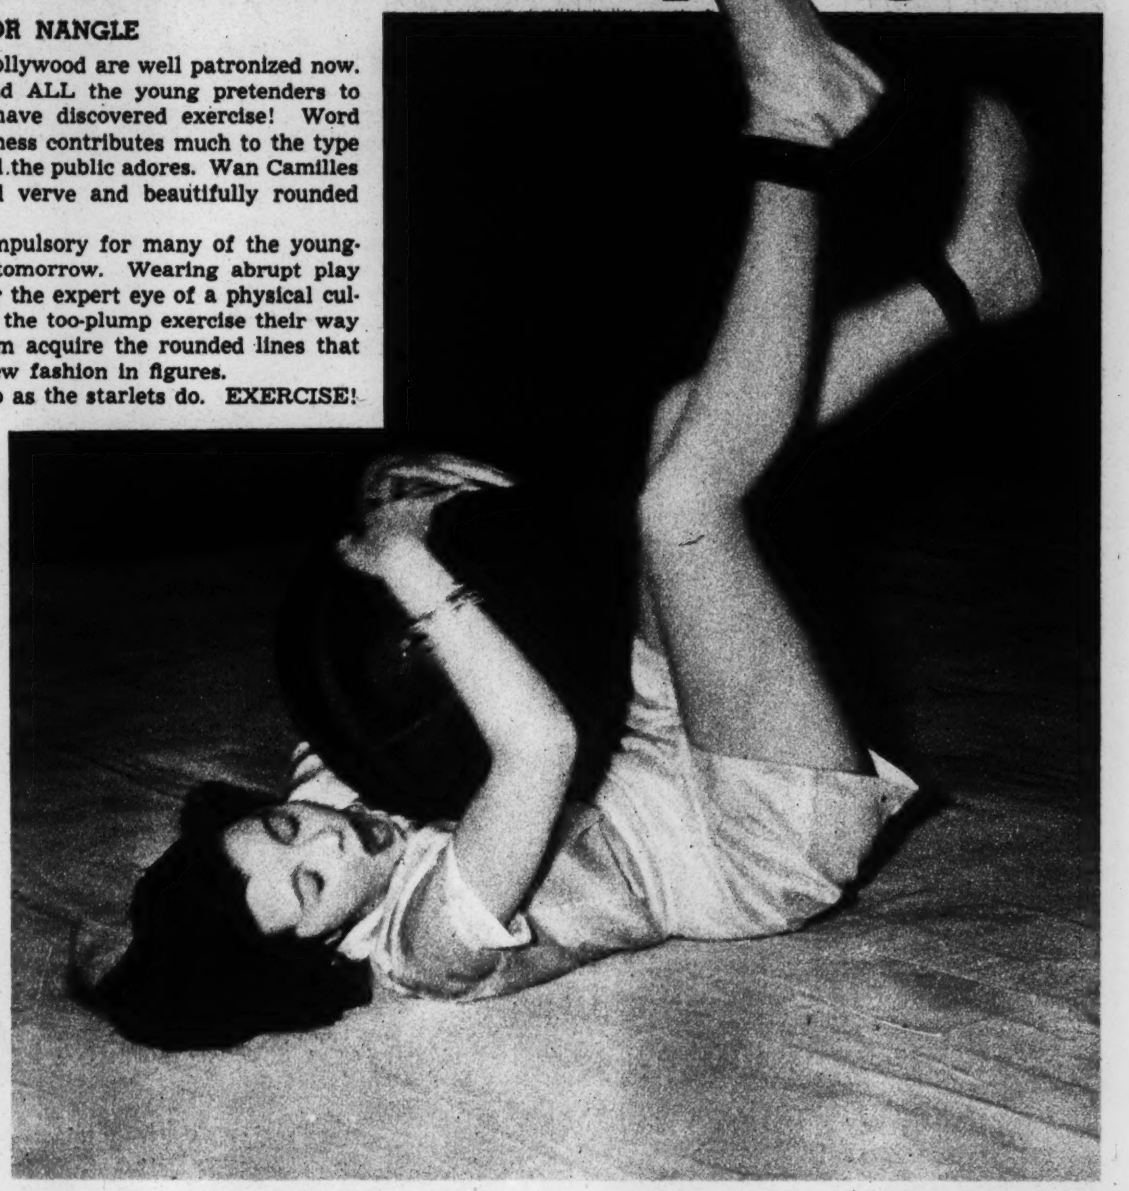
At left: Jumping over the gym horse looks easy, but Virginia Grey knows it's every bit as strenuous as it is good for her. If you want to keep youthful, limber, and slim, try it half a dozen times a day. This is a gymnasium sport designed to improve balance, grace, and breath control. It's particularly good, too, for slimming the thickened waistline.





At left: All types of resistance exercises are valuable if properly done, because they involve rhythmic stretching that tones muscles but does not make them knotty. Here Miss Rutherford and Miss Grey are not in combat, but doing what gym teachers call the "locomotive," an amusing and efficient workout that streamlines the legs. This also tones the abdominal muscles.

A large, heavy medicine ball lends itself to all sorts of exercises that are good for the figure. Tossing one will slim heavy arms and develop pencil-thin ones. In this picture Ann Rutherford appears to have been caught off balance, but it's a good general exercise, involving a reversal of circulation and some high kicking.

Humble Hominy Comes Into Its Own

By MARY MEADE

A GLANCE will assure you that spaghetti, link sausages, pineapple slices, and prunes make up one of these platters of dinner. But you probably won't be able to guess what's in the veal stuffing. So I'm going to break down and admit that there's hominy in that there dressing. Furthermore, there's celery and raisins and even ripe olives mixed into it.

It doesn't take much skill to cook spaghetti properly. You simply poke the ends into rapidly boiling salted water, and as the long sticks soften let the rest of the spaghetti slide in, too. Then you cook it rapidly until tender, drain well, and add butter if, as in this case, the spaghetti is pinch-hitting for potatoes.

The veal roast is the square-cut cushion shoulder, boned and sewed to form a pocket. The pocket is filled with stuffing and the open end is skewered or sewed together. Then the roast is slid into a 300-degree oven. A 4½-pound roast will require about 3½ hours to cook.

This is the stuffing used to fill the roast in the picture: 2 cups cooked or canned, drained whole-kernel hominy, 2 cups sliced celery, ⅛ cup seedless raisins, ½ cup sliced ripe olives, salt, a little pepper, and ½ teaspoon sage. Combine the ingredients and fill the veal roast pocket.

Delicious sour cream gravy made from the drippings left in the roasting pan plus sour cream and a little extra seasoning is all that's needed to make this unusual roast a dish fit for the fussiest gourmet.

If you'd like to know how to prepare other veal dishes, such as paprika schnitzel and veal loaf, there are recipes for them in "Modern Meat Lore," 23 cents by mail. All types of meat cookery are included in the book.

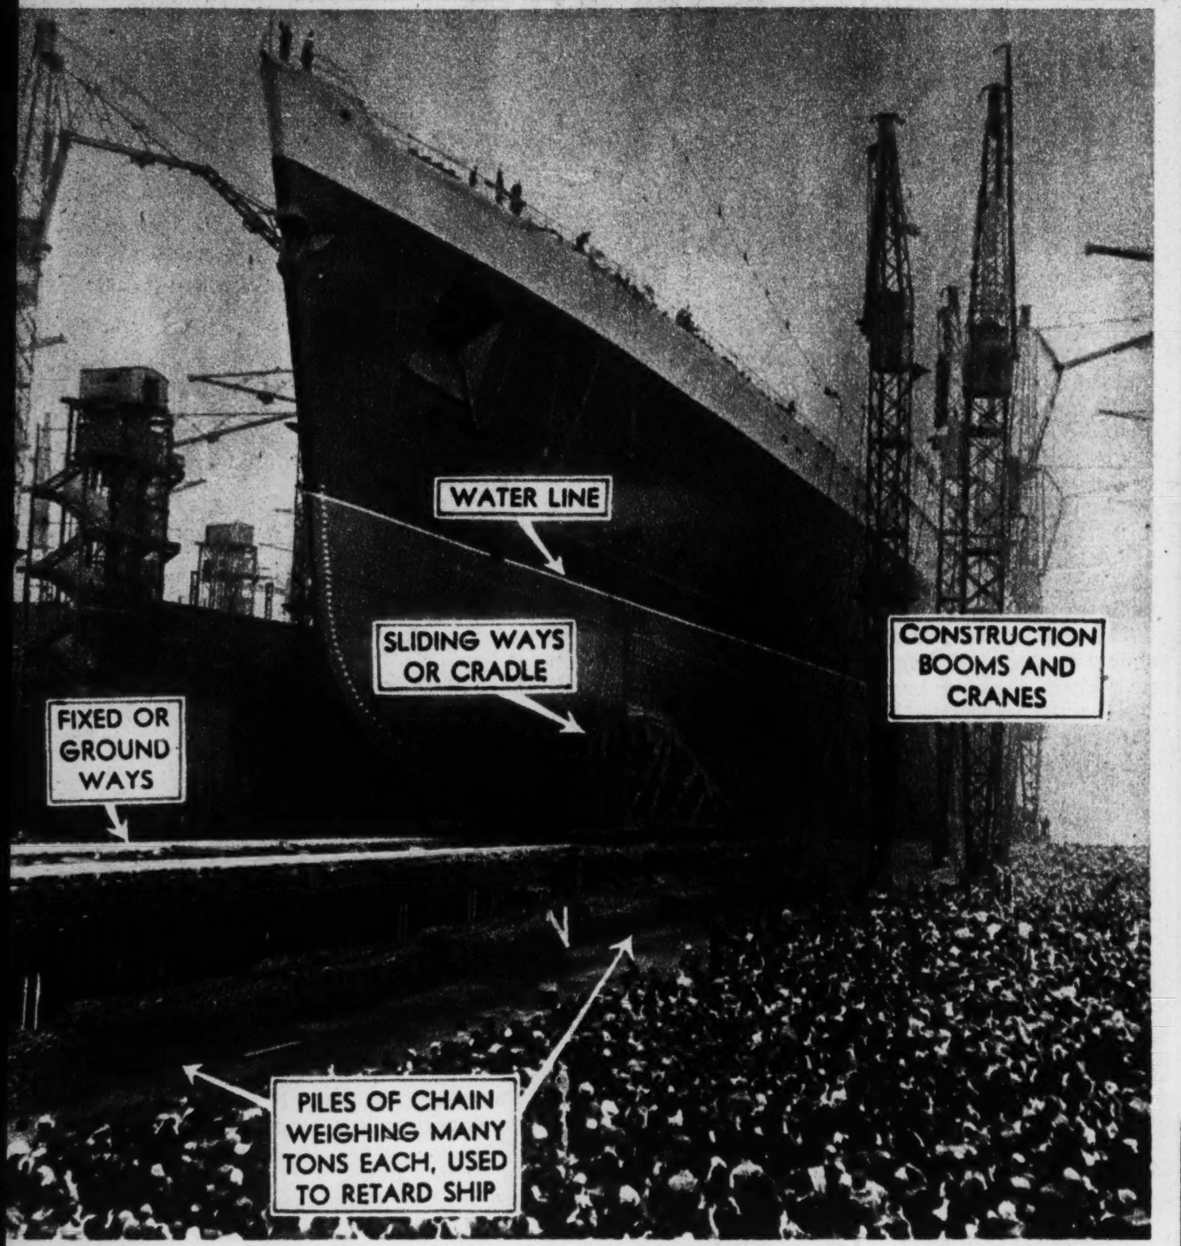
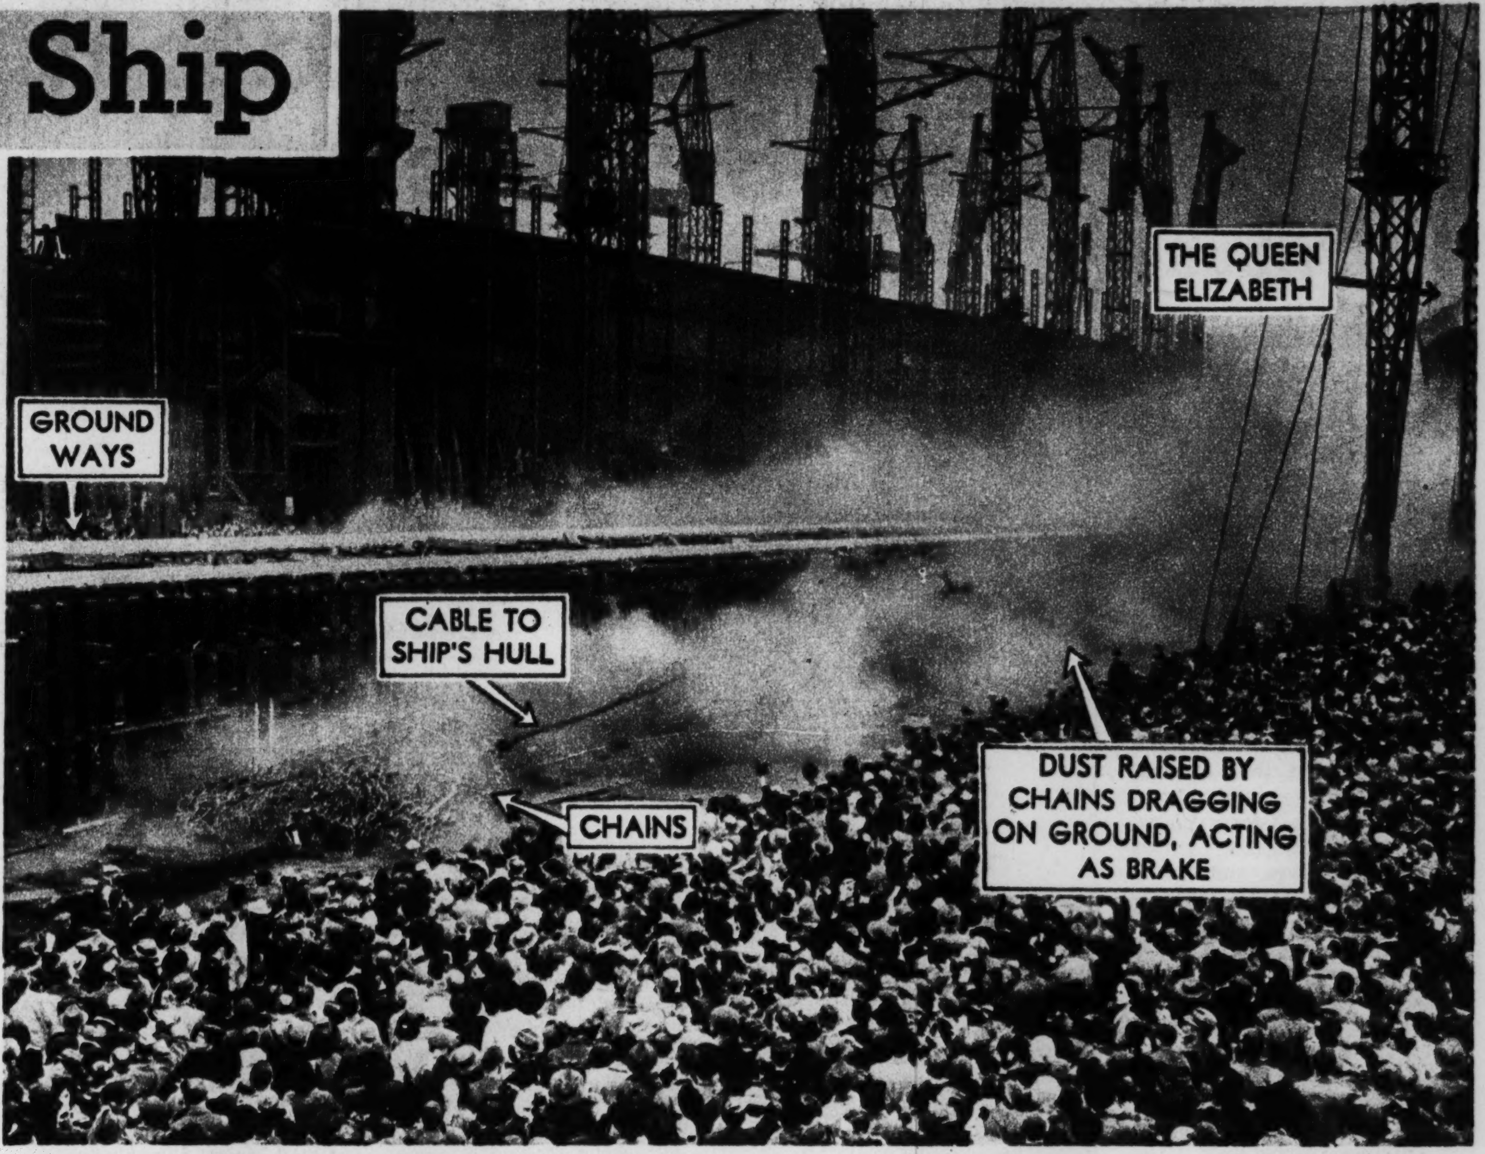
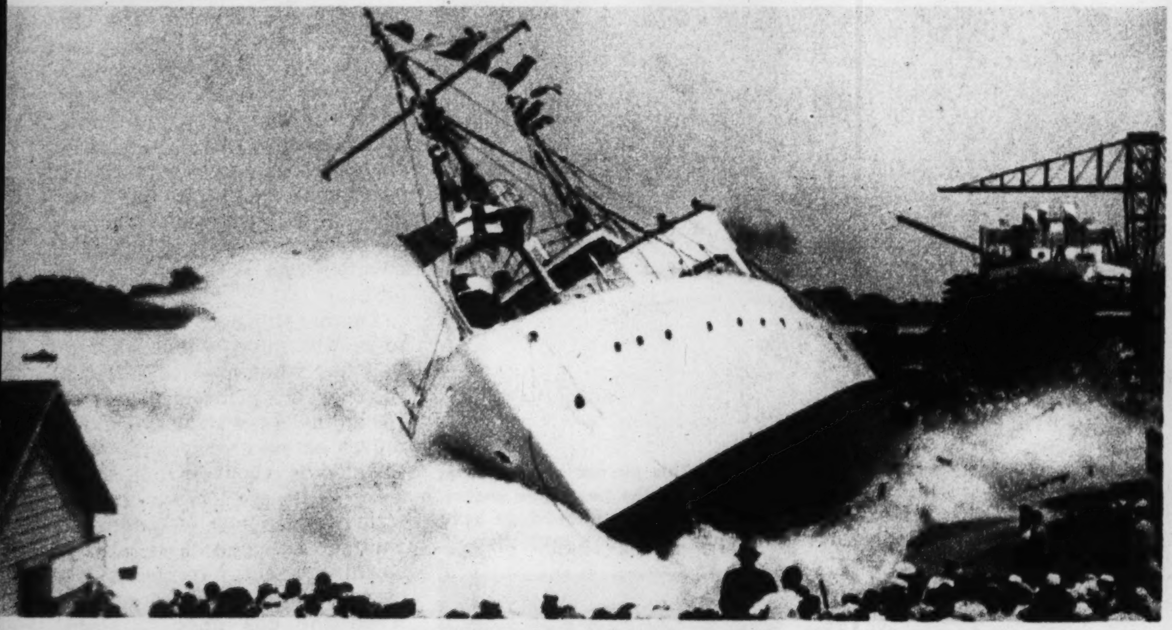
Britain Launches a Ship



1 The Queen Elizabeth—England's 85,000-ton superliner—slips down the ways at Clydebank, Scotland, after being christened by the monarch for whom it was named. Behind the color of a launching lie years of planning and building: the launching itself is no small mechanical feat. The ship is built on the ground ways and sliding ways or cradles, and when the hull and most of the superstructure are completed the props holding the cradles are released.



2 The Queen Elizabeth reaches the water. Because the River Clyde is barely wide enough to accommodate the 1,030-foot ship, piles of heavy chain are fastened to the hull and drag along the ground as the ship slides down the ways, acting as a brake. In the water the ship rides with water line high until engines and interior equipment are installed.



3 Not a catastrophe—a different type of launching. In the case of smaller vessels of less draft launching is sometimes done sidewise. This coast guard cutter rolls with decks awash as it slides down short ways into the waters of Saginaw bay, Michigan. Lake freighters are now launched this way. (Acme photos.)

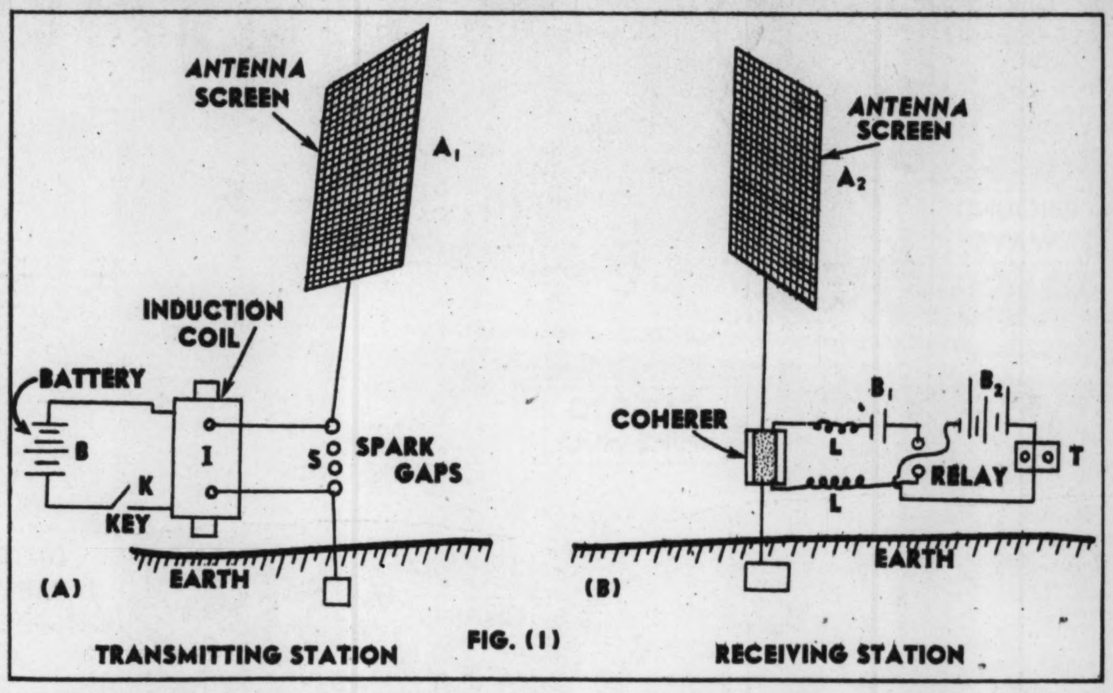
The Tribune Pioneers in Wireless



Diagrammatic explanation of early Marconi wireless apparatus, discussed in accompanying article.

A STORY which appeared in The Chicago Tribune on April 23, 1899, is reprinted in part here because of its unusual historical interest. The phenomenal development of wireless communication from the crude apparatus of Marconi to the modern station of 100,000 watts power has taken place within easy memory of many. A contrast between the transmitter of 1899 and that of 1938 would be really breath-taking. See Figures 1 to 3 for explanation of early wireless apparatus and of radio waves, and a map showing where Chicago test was made thirty-nine years ago.

A diagrammatic sketch of the early Marconi apparatus discussed in the accompanying news story is shown in Figure 1 a, b. The strips of wire netting A1 A2, together with their connections to earth, constitute the sending antenna and the receiving antenna respectively. The transmitting antenna is connected to earth through a series of short spark gaps S, and its electric oscillations are excited by the induction coil I by closing the key K. The electric waves emitted by the sending antenna, Figure 2, produce electrical oscillations in the receiving antenna, and the slight amount of electric current which surges to and fro through the coherer causes the coherer to become conducting, so that battery B1 may send a current through the relay, which actuates a telegraph sounder T. Such was the first practical radio transmitter and receiver of dots and dashes.

The success of this apparatus made scientists of that day wildly excited, for they undoubtedly envisioned a fundamentally new and powerful means of communication. The story follows:

TELEGRAPHIC MESSAGES SENT WITHOUT WIRES FROM TRIBUNE TO MARQUETTE BUILDING

First Proof That the System Can Be Used in Large City Among Steel Structures

MARKS NEW ERA IN SCIENCE

The dawning art of wireless telegraphy was put yesterday to perhaps the severest test it has yet known either in America or in Europe. Prof. Jerome J. Green of Notre Dame university, who came to Chicago at the request of The Chicago Tribune to experiment under the trying urban conditions, was able after six hours of trial to prove the Marconi system practicable. And this in streets under which miles of electric light, telegraph, and telephone wires are laid, and over which trolley wires are suspended, and in buildings of steel construction.

For half an hour last evening, beginning at 7 o'clock, Morse dots and dashes were flashed by invisible electric waves through the smoky atmosphere of Dearborn street between the Tribune building and the Marquette building, 650 feet distant. The electricians and engineers who witnessed the marvelous experiment went away feeling that a new era in electric transmission was in view and that the Marconi apparatus had been brought to a higher point of effectiveness than ever before.

In the earlier afternoon, before this successful test was made, an assemblage of college professors and electrical and engineering experts sat impatiently in a room in the Tribune building waiting for Professor Green and his assistant to remedy a supposed defect in his apparatus, while in reality the electrical impulse that should have been flashed from the Dearborn station at Polk street to the Tribune building was leaking away in an adjoining room in the form of sparks. At least that is the reason for the first failure ascribed by electrical experts who saw the later test. The apparatus was tried afterward between the

Tribune and the Hartford buildings, the Tribune and Marquette buildings, and between distant rooms in the Tribune building itself, with doors closed between, and was found to work almost perfectly. The Marquette and Hartford buildings are both steel frame structures, while the Tribune building is constructed largely of iron, and the wonder of the test, to the electrical experts, is in the fact that the steel structures apparently offered not the slightest impediment.

What the laity saw was the Morse dots and dashes rattled off by the telegraph sounder in the Marquette building. The only apparatus to receive the mysterious electric waves from the air was a piece of common insulated electric wire tied to a pine board protruding from a sixteenth story window of the Marquette building and connected with the coherer on the eighth floor. That was all there was of the receiving apparatus besides an ordinary telegraph relay. At the Tribune building a zinc ball ten inches in diameter hanging over the sidewalk, an ordinary eight-inch induction coil, and a five-ampere-hour battery comprised the sending apparatus. It was all so simple that even the electrical engineers, accustomed to seeing wonderful things performed with electricity, could scarcely believe their eyes.

At exactly 7 p. m. the word was telephoned to the assistant in charge of the sender to begin. The little group of spectators and experts at the coherer in the Marquette building listened and watched breathlessly. An instant later and the vibrator of the coherer gave a vigorous rap against the glass tube, and the watchers knew that a Morse dot had been flashed invisibly through space and caught up by the piece of wire outside the window. Then the vibrator beat on the glass several times close together, and it was evident that in the Tribune building a telegraphic dash had been flashed out.

Then for a half hour dots and dashes followed each other at stated intervals of five seconds, and the electricians shook hands with each other over the success of the experiment. By means of a telephone it was discovered that before the man at the sending end could say "Yes," putting down the switch at the same time, the coherer gave the signal at the receiving end. This was in accord with the experiment at the Hartford building, where the electric spark at the sending end could be seen across the street in the Tribune building while the vibrator was striking at the receiving end.

During the test at the Marquette building the loose receiving wire was blown against the outside wall of the building, and every condition, apparently, was unfavorable to a test. Not one of the men who helped prepare the apparatus for this last test believed it would work in a steel constructed building, in the neighborhood of defectively insulated electric light wires and in close proximity to a trolley wire and electric power circuits. The conviction began to be forced on the experts that steel buildings were no hindrance to the Marconi apparatus and that they were dealing with a sort of electric wave that threatened to upset some of their theories.

Guglielmo Marconi.

"I am convinced that the defect which prevented the Dearborn station test was due to conditions local to the building and not to any defect in the apparatus," Professor Green said last night. "The fact that as soon as the receiving apparatus was removed to another building it worked satisfactorily is sufficient proof. The test at the Marquette building was as severe as the apparatus could have been put to. The apparatus was arranged there in a few minutes and without our paying any attention to the location of the building. When it is remembered this whole apparatus was put together in a college laboratory within the last week I feel I have no reason to be disappointed."

B. J. Arnold, consulting electrical engineer, who witnessed the final and most satisfactory test from the Tribune office to the Marquette building, said after it was over:

"I am delighted with the results. I felt confident of success in some measure all along, but feared there were too many obstacles in the way for its perfect operation in this neighborhood. The perfect working of the receiving instrument as I heard it in the Marquette building surprised me. It is a great triumph for Professor Green and a step forward for electricity. It proves that the big steel buildings which surround us here will not make the use of this system impossible."

Mostly About Dogs

Dogs' Eyes Have It, Too

Great Dane Champion Allure, bred by the Brae Tarn kennels in Connecticut. She won her championship in four shows and is owned by Mrs. Harriet Hagerty of Milwaukee. (Tauskey photo.)

THE EYES of a dog are quite apt to be irritated more frequently than those of a human for the reason that the dog has its head so close to the ground during the course of its life. This means that the dog owner may find it necessary to devote a little time to the care of his pet's eyes if the animal is to be kept in the best of health, although it is surprising how most of our dogs manage to avoid serious trouble.

The eyes of the healthy dog should be clear and bright, with no redness showing around the lids or the eyeballs. When a puppy or grown dog is not well the eyes usually reflect this condition. In fact, the eye is a pretty good indicator of a dog's health and general condition. A normal dog with good health has eyes that sparkle and show much expression. An ailing dog (one with a temperature) will show it in his eyes, which will be heavy and devoid of luster. Thus we can depend on a dog's eyes for a number of clews related to the condition of our pets.

A dog may be bothered by a simple irritation of the eye, as, for example, the type that may develop because it has been allowed to keep its head out of a car during the course of a drive across country. When a dog leans out of a car window and the automobile is going at a fairly high rate of speed many dust particles are bound to enter the animal's eyes. An irritation may result. Then there may be more serious and complicated eye troubles which should be treated by veterinarians for this reason: The condition may be a symptom of another trouble.

For example, this may happen: You wake up some morning and notice that your pet isn't quite normal. One of the first things you observe is that something is wrong with its eyes. There is a discharge coming from the corner of each one. This condition can be a symptom of some internal disorder. There may be an infection, which only can be determined by a veterinarian. Distemper may be just getting under way. Therefore the wise dog owner will take his pet to a veterinarian if he feels that some trouble other than a simple irritation is responsible for the condition.

If a hunting breed, such as a pointer, setter, springer spaniel, cocker, Labrador, Chesapeake Bay retriever, or other breed that works in weedy thickets, brush, marshes, and other cover, develops a reddening of the eye membranes after a day in the field, the owner needn't be surprised. It's obvious that these dogs are bound to pick up much dust, weed seeds, and other foreign particles in their eyes when working ahead of the guns. One may help such dogs by putting a simple wash in their eyes. We administer a patented eye preparation which we use on our own eyes. Simple boric acid also is good. (Warm this before using.) Use an eye dropper and put several drops of the solution in each eye and then wipe them with a clean piece of absorbent cotton. This should be done at the end of the day before the dog is put up at night.

One of the more common kinds of eye trouble among dogs is called conjunctivitis. This is really an irritation of the membrane under the eyelid. A simple inflammation of this type results in red membranes. Tears come from the eyes of the dogs. Sometimes it clears up quickly. Sometimes it continues until there is quite a heavy discharge from the eyes. There are many causes for this trouble, as your veterinarian will tell you. In simple cases one must wash out the eyes of the dog four or five times a day with some kind of soothing solution. (Boric acid is all right.) In the case of one of our hunting dogs that had trouble like this near the end of a hunting season we applied not only boric acid but also a remedy which we have used in our own eyes for irritations of the lids. It was a 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment. It comes in very small tubes.

A white German shepherd, Prince of Lindenholt.

Simple conjunctivitis will clear up in a few days unless it is associated with some other disorder. That is why the dog owner often saves time and trouble by consulting a veterinarian, so that the latter may make a thorough examination of the animal and discover if some internal disturbance is behind the eye trouble. The big point to remember about eye troubles in your dog is this: Your pet's eyes are sensitive to internal influences. We know of a number of cases where owners have been very careful about treating an eye irritation in their pets, but without success, for the simple reason that an internal disorder had to be cleared up first.

Another thing for a dog owner to keep in mind is that the animal has what may be called a third eyelid. This is a part of the animal's eye structure which moves across the eyeball when the dog is about to get something in its eye. We might describe it as a sort of automatic shutter, although it is also a cleaning agent. It cleans the cornea and is reflected over it when the dog goes to sleep. Some breeds of dogs may have trouble with an irritation of this third eyelid—another thing for dog owners to keep in mind.

DOG NOTES

It looks as if one comparatively little known hunting breed were going to get a big boost during 1938. We refer to the golden retriever. Several made their mark in field trials last fall. Now several new goldens, brought in from England and reported to be dandy field trialers, are being primed for the fall trials.

Every automobile driver in Connecticut has been issued a card entitled "A Dog Has a Right." This card, which is sent out with auto licenses, tells motorists what to do in case of injury to dogs on streets or highways.

Many people have wondered why setters and spaniels are not trained to guide the blind. Elliott Humphrey, chief trainer of the Seeing Eye institute, says the reason is that the long hair (feathering) on the legs of these breeds would throw water on the blind person on a rainy day.

HEAVY TRAFFIC FACES

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1938, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

Curious. These people never mind being held up in a traffic jam, because the car alongside always interests them. They have a swell time giving the occupants' faces, clothes and bundles a thorough once over.

Showoff. Some proud parent's darling little girl making very interesting faces at people in passing cars.

Repressed. The tough traffic cop called him a "dimwit," and he can think of plenty to say in return, and as good as was got, but he doesn't dare. Just curses to himself.

Solid comfort. Showing Alfred, the truckman's right hand man, enjoying a midday snooze en route.

Very bored. Rover has been waiting quite some time in the parked car. It gets pretty monotonous just waiting.

Mad through and through. It's a bumped fender. Just that. But when he saw it was a woman driver he had plenty to say about, "All one can expect from a woman driver!"

Flustered. They took the wrong turning and are miles away from Ye Olde Spinning Wheel. But an obliging farmer's wife has stepped out of her doorway to help. They are getting all mixed up with right and left turns.

Winning smile. Bestowed gratis on any one who will give her a push. Her battery has gone dead.

Discouraged. This is the fifth time this morning that Eleanor has had a terrible ordeal getting out of a parking space. Either she's at the wrong angle or the other cars are all at the wrong angles.

Placid. She drives calmly along in not quite the center of the road (about twenty miles per) and is never upset by the honking of cars trying to pass her.

THE CRIMSON WIZARD

Raclov paused as strangers do when trying to make up their minds to speak. Then he said: "You are Maida Travers, of course? I am Michael Raclov. I hope you won't mind. I know Eric Lambert."

The excitement was great. Maida did not resent the frankness of the strange young man. Instead she smiled radiantly and said, as if it were the cheeriest coincidence: "There he is. He is on the pier, waving."

And so he was. Raclov waved. Lambert waved. Maida felt that these mutual exchanges reëstablished an old friendship. As the Gigantic glided into midsteam and turned for the bay Maida and Raclov were moving toward the main salon. Music and dancing had already started.

They paused to talk. Maida was in the high thrill of a thousand new experiences. She could not see enough of this interesting new world. Then suddenly all was changed. A weaving figure began to approach her. It was Petrovich, and he seemed intoxicated. The smirk he bore suddenly snatched Maida out of her happiness. She drew back.

"I should like to dance with you," said Petrovich. He moved even closer.

"Please go away," exclaimed Maida. Raclov thrust himself forward. "You are offensive," he said to Petrovich. "Go, before I call a steward."

Petrovich drew back his arm as if to strike. Raclov's hand came up. There was a pistol in it. Petrovich recoiled, but he was too late. Raclov fired. Petrovich turned and ran for the deck. The dancers and the passersby instantly began to cluster. Raclov drew Maida away. The crowd, being a crowd, stared in all directions, seeking the cause of their having clustered and the reason for their staring.

Maida and Raclov gained the deck. "The man is not hurt," Raclov was saying. "I saw to that. But I could not endure his insulting manner to you. Let me take you to the afterdeck, where we shall have the best view of the harbor as we make the ocean."

"But the pistol?" Maida shuddered.

"I threw it under a divan," said Raclov.

V.

There was a violent new interest on the afterdeck. Pilots, mechanics, seamen, and passengers were intent upon an airplane perched there. The plane was on the runway of a catapult, and the catapult was being prepared to launch it. Homer Swift, the chief pilot, was having a few last words with one of the ship's officers.

"We've plenty of gas," he was saying. "I know we can make London. I think we could make Berlin if we had to. And there's plenty of food."

And the officer: "The company will be happy, Homer. We're trying to make this maiden trip of the Gigantic a great event in ocean history. There's a world-wide radio broadcast going on. And now you're taking off for Europe. From ship to Europe. That will be a great adventure."

Raclov turned to Maida. "Did you hear that? This airplane is taking off from the ship for Europe. How I should like to be the pilot!"

"You a pilot?" Maida's startling life in the last hour was throwing her into a succession of wonderments. And here was a man who shot people on the smallest pretext and who now proposed to fly an airplane. She was too bewildered to remain with him, too bewildered not to remain; in fact, too bewildered to speak.

"I was a pilot in Spain," Raclov was saying. "Don't be nervous. Nothing is going to happen. I couldn't help it if I protected you. Suppose you had been alone?"

Maida involuntarily moved a little closer to this strange person. She pondered a hundred things. What would Eric Lambert have done? Would there be a scandal?

VI.

There was no scandal. The flurry in the main salon had vanished as quickly as it began.

In the excitement Raclov and Maida entered the plane, and almost before Raclov could take his place at the controls Petrovich released the catapult mechanism.

Some one had heard the sound of a shot, but no victim had been found. The music had not faltered and the happiness of the maiden voyage was uninterrupted. In order to make sure of this Michael Raclov had excused himself from Maida, promising to return to her instantly. Raclov had only started for the salon when a small hand held him.

"I hoped to find you exactly at this moment," said a girl's voice.

"Sonya!" Raclov almost shouted the name. "You were to remain in hiding."

"Don't attract attention." Sonya walked with him to the ship's rail. "Do as I tell you and lose no time. There is no need of asking questions. I shall not answer. Go to my stateroom. Here is the key. You will find a suitcase. It is rather heavy. Take it to the cabin to which this second key will admit you. Lock that door. That is all."

Raclov opened his lips questioningly. Sonya stopped him. "Immediately," she said. "The Firefly did not earn that name for nothing."

Raclov went. In ten minutes he had rejoined Maida Travers on the afterdeck. This time he was flushed and irritated. Only Maida's mental confusion prevented her noticing it.

VII.

Sonya watched Raclov as he disappeared down the companionway. She moved slowly along the deck until she came to a shadowy space in the foredeck. Here she paused and gazed out upon the bay.

"Good evening, Comrade Petrovich," she said, and continued to gaze at the water.

Petrovich moved slowly out of the shadow. "You are very unexpected in your movements, aren't you, Sonya?"

"As unexpected as you are expected. I expected you would be sailing on the same ship with Maida Travers. But you are not going to sail with Maida Travers."

"You are very foolish, Sonya. I am only following orders."

"Orders, my darling comrade? Did you have orders to carry out that absurd melodrama in the main salon? And was that done to impress Maida Travers with some excellent plan?"

Petrovich tried hard to maintain a serious front. "Absurd melodrama?" he said. "Is it absurd to be shot at?"

Sonya stopped him with an impatient gesture. "Yes," she retorted, "it is absurd to be shot at. Especially when one is shot at with a toy pistol."

Petrovich would have interrupted her, but she prevented him again. "I found this under a divan in the salon," she said, and gave him the toy. "Perhaps you may want to throw it overboard. But you are not going to follow Miss Travers in this ship."

"If you will notice, Sonya, the ship is moving."

Sonya's smile was cool and sure. "Have you a watch?" she asked. "Will you look and see if the time is twenty-eight minutes after nine?"

"Exactly," said Petrovich, glancing at his wrist watch.

"Well, then," said the girl with a malicious twinkle, "in one minute you will know that you are not sailing. O, don't trouble to turn pale. I am not going to harm you. I love you too much. This is why I am telling you that in the cabin next the place containing the ship's electrical control apparatus I have just placed a suitcase filled with an excellent time explosive."

"You are insane, Sonya! Where is——"

"You will be too late, beloved."

VIII.

Petrovich was gone. But he did not descend to the cabin which contained the explosive. Instead, just as he turned the deck to the starboard, he was thrown flat by a terrific blast that rocked the liner. As he regained his feet he was conscious of many running feet and of shouts and screams of terror. Petrovich ran up the companionway to the afterdeck.

Raclov had anticipated him. The explosion had created its remote consternation in the group of spectators about the airplane. All ran aft and gained the descending stairs. The last to go was Homer Swift, the pilot. A compelling curiosity drew him from his post. The propeller blades were roaring. Raclov decided.

"The ship has exploded!" he cried to Maida. "We shall be killed in the crush if we attempt to go below. I have it! The airplane."

Maida's bewilderment arose to a new high. The impulse of the moment and the impelling direction given by Raclov sent her forward before she knew it. They entered the cabin of the plane and Raclov ran to the controls. Then he turned in consternation. "The catapult!" he called. "I can't release it."

A shout came from below. "Take off!" Almost before Raclov could resume his place at the controls the plane was in the air. Petrovich stood still holding the release lever of the catapult. He was waving a farewell.

Within an hour's journey from New York lie the Jersey flats. These are vast low areas in which nothing lives save screeching birds. The vegetation is weedy. The soil is endless sand and swamp. The wind from the sea drones drearily through the reed growth.

A small automobile wound its way on a wretched path through this melancholy desert. When the driver had reached a place suitable to him the car stopped. A small man emerged. He was crouched and disfigured. One deformed leg was shorter than the other. He was hideously hunched. His head was much too large for his distorted frame. His face was a perpetual grimace—mingled hate, fear, and sadness. Peter Quill.

He laboriously removed some packages from the luggage compartment. His every action was one of painful effort. He took up one of the packages and carried it through the wild vegetation. When he had reached a point a quarter of a mile distant he paused. He buried the package in the sand with slow effort. All the afternoon he struggled. One after another he carried his packages from his automobile, burying them, then retraced his steps to the automobile. When he had ended his task he had buried twenty packages in a radius of a quarter mile. His automobile stood at the center of the crescent of packages. Peter Quill sat down to rest.

When he had rested he turned to a curious cabinet fitted in the rear seat of his car. With infinite care he made a series of swift adjustments. When he had done this he clambered to the roof of his car. This required great effort. He stood there silhouetted against the gray and wind-blown sky and scanned the horizon with an eager eye. When he had verified his cautious study of the landscape he descended. Then he resumed his delicate attentions to the cabinet. He again passed his fingers over twoscore wires and tiny levers and radium tubes.

Now his look became alert and determined. His jaw was fixed and hard-set. He laid his hand on one of the shining little levers and looked intently in the direction of the package he had buried farthest to his right. He drew the lever. Instantly there was a slight shudder of the earth. Then came a volcanic burst of earthy sand and weeds. An explosion sent a gust of air whistling past the little car. Peter Quill smiled—a hard, cruel smile of satisfaction.

He pressed another lever. Another shudder; another volcanic burst; another roar of explosive. Peter Quill smiled again. One after another he touched his levers. One after another the remaining eighteen explosions occurred with sinister precision. Peter Quill carefully closed his cabinet. He resumed his place at the wheel. With infinite effort he turned his car about and drove back along the tortuous path.

When he disappeared from view there was a movement in a heavy clump of weeds. A girl emerged from her hiding place. She was beautiful, with flashing, intelligent eyes. She was Sonya Danilo.

"Invisible lightning!" she said softly. "The little man is a devil."

The Saxon-weave Suit ... $35

In British Lounge* Models

In the photograph above you see the new single-breasted edition of the British Lounge* Model with 3 buttons.

This model makes you look taller, fuller chested and slimmer at the hips. The details of design that produce this impression are the broader shoulders, in contrast to the narrower hipline, the extra folds of fabric at the chest, the higher gorge, the lower waistline, the lower collar and the tapered sleeves.

In the photograph you can see at a glance the fine quality of the fabric, and you can observe from the perfect fit and general air of refinement that it embodies every essential detail of fine tailoring.

Saxon-weave is made in three fabric finishes—one a worsted cheviot (picture above), another a regular fine quality worsted and the third the famous Saxon-weave Wearlong worsted.

You have a wide variety to choose from in colors, patterns and models, from the most conservative to the British Lounge* type.

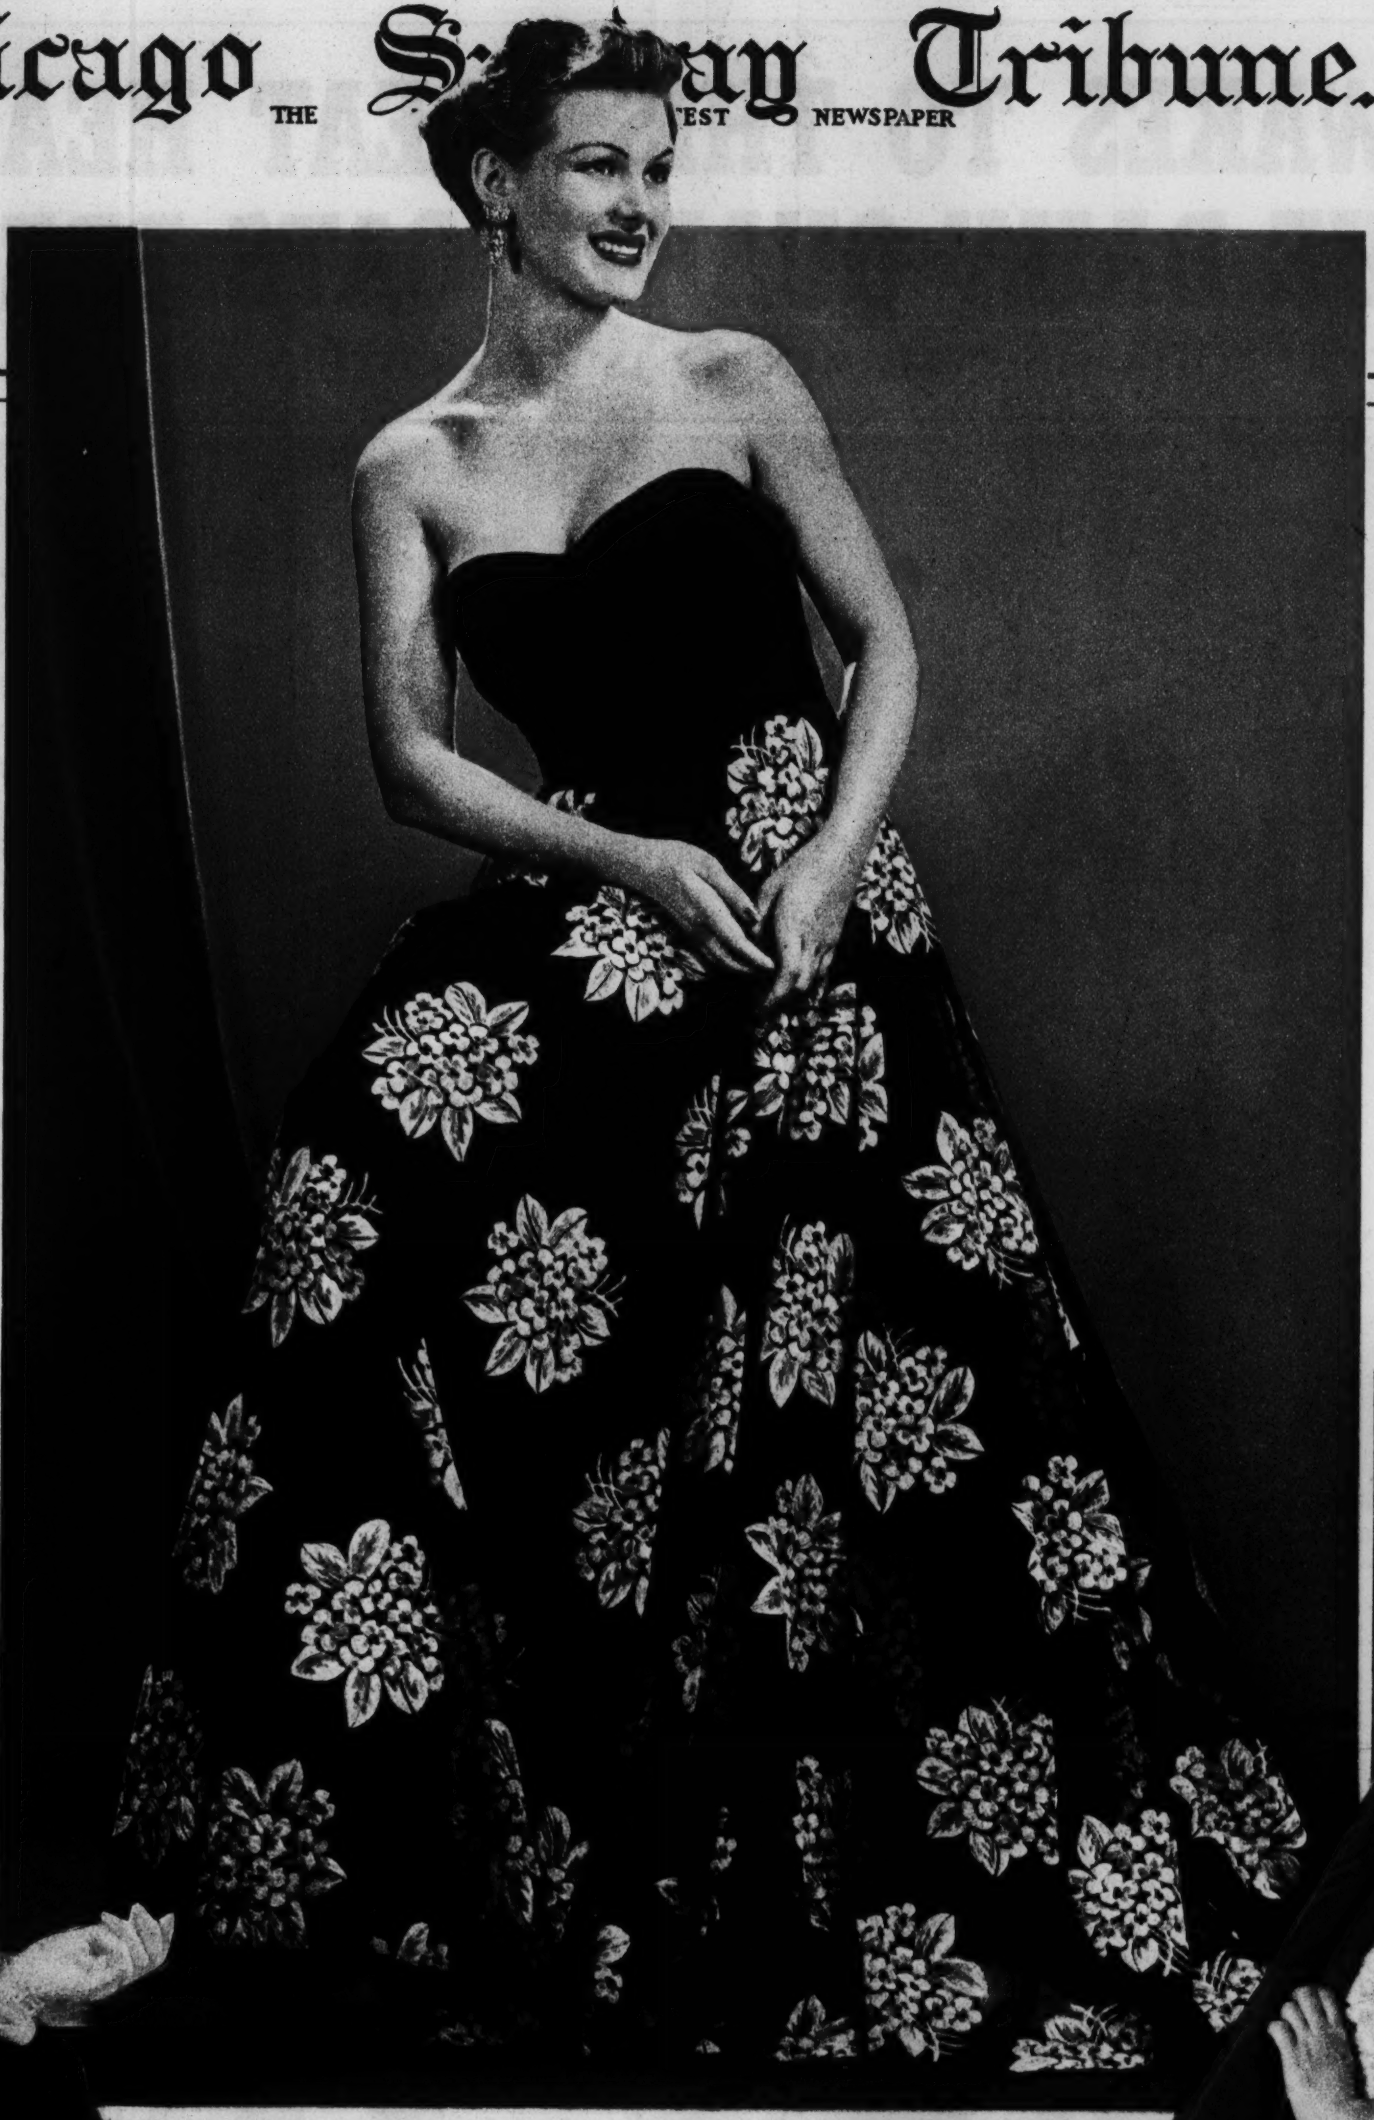
New Paris Fashions

ROMANTIC is the waltz gown at the right, made by Balanciaga with a wide, billowing skirt and a fitted, strapless bodice.



DULL BLACK, the long and clinging cocktail dress below is dramatized by Molyneux with a wide, jeweled belt and long, flesh colored suede gloves. It is worn with a baum marten coat and an exciting cocktail hat made of paradise feathers.

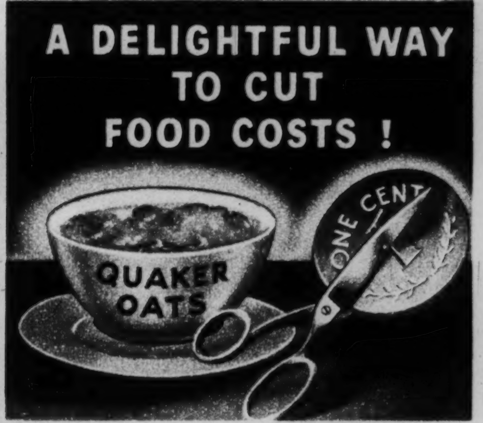
AS SCIENTISTS REVEAL THIAMIN (VITAMIN B_1) IS ABSOLUTELY ESSENTIAL FOR PERFECT HEALTH

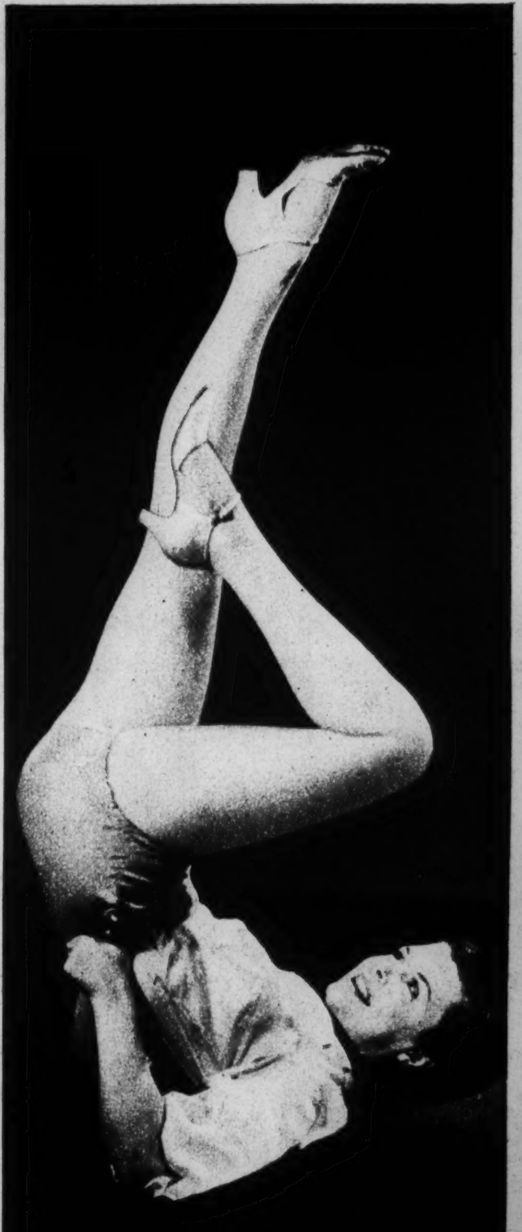
NATION HEARS NEWS OF VITAL HEALTH FOOD, THIAMIN. Readers of leading national magazines recently had their attention drawn to the dramatic story of Thiamin, nerve-nourishing food element. Thiamin is now known to be absolutely essential to the health of all, young and old. Oatmeal is the richest thrifty source of Thiamin.

THIAMIN IS NEEDED DAILY BY EVERYBODY. Strangely enough, while Thiamin is absolutely essential to health, it cannot be stored up in the body. New supplies should constantly be obtained from the daily diet. Since Thiamin nourishes nerves, which in turn control most bodily functions, Thiamin deficiency surely leads to poor health. It is of prime importance, therefore, to include Thiamin-rich foods such as Quaker Oats in meals every day.

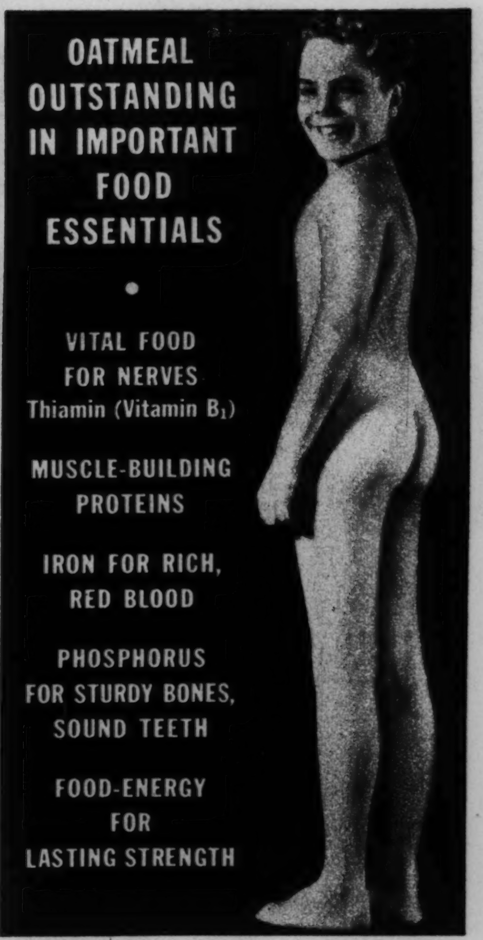
"WHAT A BLESSING THAT DELICIOUS QUAKER OATS IS SO RICH IN THIAMIN." These words might well be echoed by the millions of lovers of America's popular thrifty breakfast. Without Thiamin, this young lady would lose her glowing health, clear complexion and shapely figure.



OATMEAL IS RICHEST ECONOMICAL SOURCE OF THIAMIN. Your penny buys more Thiamin when invested in oatmeal than in any other whole-grain food. Oatmeal also offers the biggest money's worth among all whole-grain foods of other important elements: protein, food-energy, iron and phosphorus. For a real bargain in nutrition, as well as in delicious flavor, buy Quaker Oats.

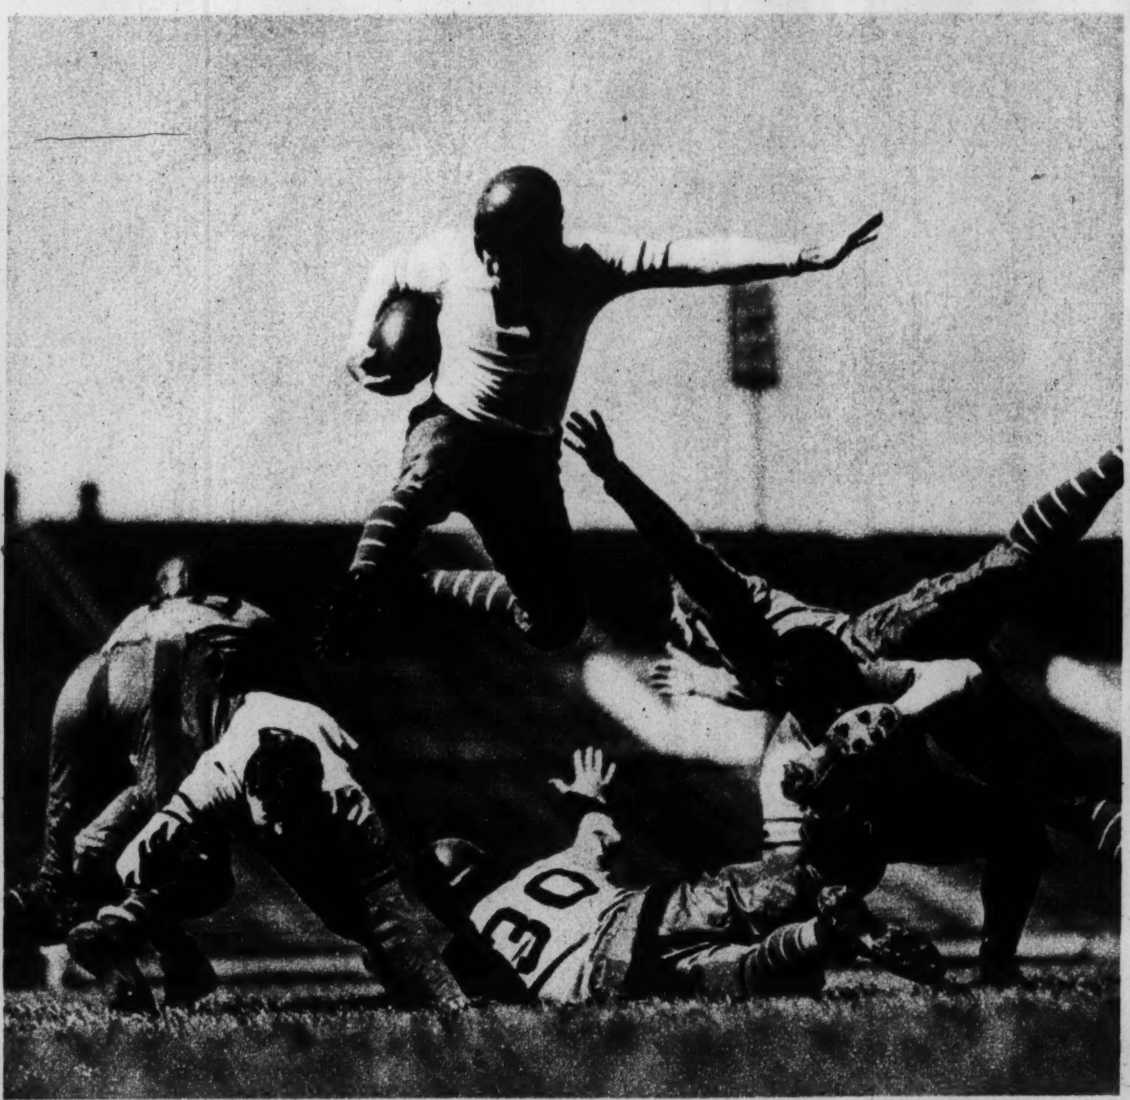


AMERICA WANTS TRIM LINES, NOT FAT. No nation in the world is so beauty conscious as America. Quaker Oats is a food par excellence for modern people who want to build firm, shapely bodies, sparkling vitality. Oatmeal's proteins are famous for building the right kind of firm, clean flesh and muscles. Energy—vitality—sound nerves. All are important and all are contributed to by the valuable proteins, minerals and Thiamin in Quaker Oats.



OATMEAL OUTSTANDING IN 5 HEALTH ESSENTIALS. Few other foods offer such an abundance of so many health essentials as Quaker Oats. In addition to its valuable content of Thiamin, Protein, Iron and Phosphorus, it provides the solid, "stick-to-the-ribs" nourishment needed for robust daily energy. That is why it is such a splendid food on which to start the day. In millions of homes it is the energizing breakfast of men, women, and children. This delicious food is so easy to prepare, too. Ready in only 2½ minutes.

IRON FOR VITALITY AND RESISTANCE. Iron is essential for rich, red blood to carry nourishment to every cell in the body, to build vitality and resistance. Everyone knows that iron-rich foods are important, but not everyone knows that oatmeal is a rich source of iron. Now with the approach of winter it is especially important to build body resistance.



OATMEAL LEADS WHOLE-GRAIN CEREALS IN PROTEINS FOR STRENGTH AND MUSCLES. First among all whole-grain cereals in protein content, oatmeal is a breakfast table favorite of athletes. For proteins are the muscle-building food. Together with generous food-energy they give lasting strength. Children need them to develop sturdy bodies. Another reason why nutrition-wise mothers serve Quaker Oats every day!

COPYRIGHT, 1938, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE DIONNE QUINS THRIVE ON QUAKER OATS. Mothers who have been impressed by the sound progress of these world-famous young Canadian misses will be interested to know that oatmeal has been an important part of their diet throughout this critical growing period. In fact, Quaker Oats is the brand of oatmeal given full approval by authorities in charge of the Quins' care and feeding.

BETTY LOU SAYS: "For a barrel of fun, meet me at the QUAKER PARTY"—every Saturday night, 8 to 8:30 o'clock E.S.T., over 58 N.B.C. stations, including the Red Network, coast-to-coast. A glorious variety show, starring Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou; with Larry Clinton and his famous orchestra; lovable Aunt Jemima of pancake fame, and outstanding guest stars.

Tune in for exciting adventures of "GIRL ALONE." Starring charming Betty Winkler, 4:45-5:00 P.M., E.S.T., Monday through Friday, on your local N.B.C. Red Network station.

SO DIGESTIBLE THAT ALL MAY ENJOY ITS BENEFITS. The value of any food is no greater than its digestibility. The final, clinching virtue of Quaker Oats is its wonderful digestibility. It is easily handled by the delicate stomachs of the very young and the very old, even of invalids. That is why, when you eat Quaker Oats, you can be sure you are getting the greatest possible benefit from its many nutritive properties.

ALL OVER AMERICA DEALERS FEATURE THE "QUAKER OATS HEALTH BREAKFASTS." There is scarcely a grocery store or delicatessen in which you do not find the familiar Quaker Oats package on display. And now all over America you find alert retailers featuring the "Quaker Oats Health Breakfast Sale." With the announcement of the new nutritional disclosures of science, the nation is turning more than ever to Quaker Oats. Get a package tomorrow and begin at once to enjoy the benefits it offers in such delicious, digestible form.

"It's grand to have back that missing month"

"That's what it was for me. Every time my regular pains came on it was at least a day, often two or three, out of my life. A month a year of saving myself — saying no to invitations — all because I thought there was nothing else to do."

"Tom understood, but that didn't help matters. I was cross with him, cross even with Jackie. Then, while glancing through a magazine one night, Tom suddenly said to me, 'Look, Ann, why don't you try this—Midol?'"

"It was only an idea with Tom, but what an idea! How grand I felt when I discovered Midol could really relieve the pain — keep me comfortable — give me back that missing month. If only more women knew what I know now!"

MUCH of the functional menstrual pain to which many women sacrifice from one to three days of "living" every month is, according to many doctors, needless. Such pain may often be relieved, and the lost days saved, through the comforting action of Midol. Unless there is some organic disorder requiring medical or surgical treatment, Midol helps most of those who try it. It is made for this special purpose, and made to act quickly to relieve the pain and distress. A few Midol tablets should see you serenely through your worst day. All drugstores have the trim aluminum cases.

A WORD OF CAUTION TO MOTHERS

Don't Endanger Your Children's Health by Giving Them Unknown "Bargain" Remedies to Take. ALWAYS ASK YOUR DOCTOR before giving ANY preparation you don't know all about Mothers—if you love your children, never give them unknown "bargain" remedies to take without asking your family doctor first.

And when giving the common children's remedy, milk of magnesia, if your doctor says, "Get Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" — do exactly that. Never ask for "milk of magnesia" alone — but always ask for "Phillips'."

Doctors know how marvelously gentle it is for youngsters. Favored by medical men for three generations as a standard, reliable and proved preparation.

Many children like Phillips' in the newer form — tiny peppermint-flavored tablets that chew like candy. Each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips', and a big box costs but 25¢ at your drug store.

A small bottle of Phillips' liquid Milk of Magnesia costs only 25 cents. So — anyone can afford the genuine. Careful Mothers ask for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

Relief Comes Faster

You should feel relief very quickly from this. If pain is unusually severe, you may have to repeat the dose according to directions you find in the box.

People everywhere are taking Bayer Aspirin for rheumatic and neuritic pains and say that results are remarkable. Yet it costs only about one cent a tablet, which makes the use of expensive "pain remedies" unnecessary.

If This Fails See Doctor

If the method outlined above fails and Bayer Aspirin does not give you the expected results, see your doctor. For it will be a sign that you need a doctor.

It is desirable, in any event, for anyone having pains from rheumatism or neuritis to be checked up by his doctor — to find the cause and correct it, if possible.

Backed by Medical Authority

When you see your doctor, ask him particularly what he thinks about taking Bayer Aspirin to relieve these pains. We believe he will tell you there is no more effective way, no more dependable way or no quicker way that the normal person may use regularly.

When you buy, ask for Bayer Aspirin by its full name "Bayer Aspirin," not by the name "aspirin" alone. Do this to get the genuine.
